INSTANT BROWNIES was the name someone gave them during royal tours in B.C. in 1958 and 1959. The name takes in the Guides. Wherever royalty goes they pop up by the hundred, sometimes by the thousand, like park crocuses. They giggle and nudge and squeeze and jump up and down and chatter and scratch and toss their hair and often break through police lines like a screaming tidal wave. Courage was shown by the Queen Mother in approaching them Friday night. The lieutenant-governor took position behind her. Celebrities seem to sense they can walk right up to instant Brownies where lesser humans might fear to tread. By Sunday they will all have turned back into calm and collected little ladies—after infecting everyone who was close to them with royalty fever. And perhaps that's what Brownies are for. U.K. Cuts N. Viet Trade

LONDON (AP)—Under pressure from the British and U.S. governments, British shipowners are quietly phasing out their traffic with North Viet Nam.

The British government also is urging authorities in Hong Kong to discourage owners of British vessels registered in that colony from visiting North Vietnamese ports.

But there are no signs the British government is planning to outlaw the business transacted with the Hanoi regime.

"The principle of preserving free trade is important to us as a trading nation," Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart told an interviewer recently. He added that British trade with Hanoi has no military value.

For months U.S. congressmen and publicists have been worried by reports that ships flying the British, French, Greek, Norwegian and other friendly flags are entering North Vietnamese ports.

Threats of Reprisals in U.S.

Despite contrary assurances by administration officials, some critics believe the British, in particular, have been engaged in large business exchanges with Hanoi at a time when American soldiers are being killed and wounded in the Viet Nam war.

This has produced threats of reprisals by the American maritime unions against ships of countries engaged in the North Viet Nam trade.

But a survey of the situation suggests British trade and traffic with North Viet Nam is marginal and diminishing and that Hong Kong also is cutting back its dealings.

Between 20 and 30 British vessels have visited Haiphong and other North Vietnamese ports from time to time. Fourteen calls were made this year, but some of these have been a single ship making more than one appearance.

At least 17 of these ships are registered in Hong Kong and on charter to foreign, including Communist Chinese, agencies which have rights to send them just about anywhere.

Lately the Norwegian and Liberian governments have banned their vessels from visiting North Viet Nam. Other countries, including Greece, have followed the British lead in getting owners to exclude North Viet Nam from new charter arrangements.

End To Rule By Military Urged In Viet

By EDWIN Q. WHITE

SAIGON (AP) — South Viet Nam's top Buddhist leader declared tonight this war-torn country "must have a congress and constitution to support the government in order to achieve social revolution."

Addressing a rally of more than 10,000 persons, Thich Tam Chau, head of the Buddhist Institute, called again for a national election and a civilian government to replace Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military regime.

However, Chau said a four-point communique issued March 12, which outlined the Buddhist demands, was not intended to criticize or support anyone, or to urge the overthrow of anyone.

Chau said he had met with Ky and Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, the chief of state, before and after issuing the communique. He said Ky and Thieu agreed with the four points and told him: "Keep quiet and keep reassured until the (government) promises are carried out."

Among those promises is an election in 1967.

In addition, the Buddhists are seeking social and economic reforms and a return to military duty alone for the 10 generals composing the ruling military directory.

Informants said men making up the directory had met for three hours to discuss the situation created by the ouster of Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Chan Thi and the Buddhist demands.

Pair Held In Killing

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police today arrested two suspects in the beating death of William Daryl Bohart, 31, of Agassiz, B.C., whose body was found in the bush off a trail in Vancouver's Stanley Park Friday night.

Police said the man had apparently been beaten and his body taken to the park and dragged into the bush.

They said Bohart was free on bail awaiting trial on a charge of conspiracy to defraud a Vancouver branch of the Bank of Montreal here of some $7,200 with cheques which had been stolen from a Seattle trust company.

CITY WELCOMES QUEEN MOTHER

Moment Keeps Its Magic

By PETE LOUDON

Capital region residents cheered, waved flags, saluted and gaped Friday night in a welcome to the Queen Mother Elizabeth that was notable for its informality.

It was a warm greeting. And the Queen Mother responded in kind, dallying with children, graciously giving every photographer time for extra pictures and slowing her car cavalcade wherever knots of people waited.

It was so informal—and the Queen Mother was so responsive—she was half an hour tardy in arriving at Government House.

Her giant Yukon touched down on schedule at Patricia Bay Airport.

There was no band and there was no color guard. But nothing could have added to the thrill of the moment for the crowd, mostly Girl Guides and Brownies.

They'd been gathering for an hour before the 5:35 p.m. touch down. The youngsters were lined before the air terminal like chicks at a feeder, giggling, gasping, jumping up and down and periodically shouting "There she is" whenever anything from a seagull to a Piper Cub appeared in the sky.

When finally the long silver plane appeared in the distance the crowd of 300 who thronged the terminal and its balcony had caught the celebrity fever from the kids.

★ ★ ★

The whining turbo prop engines were an earth-shaking fanfare. The oval door opened, the wheeled stairway was driven to position, and before the moment could lose its magic, the Queen Mother stood framed in the doorway.

There was a surge of welcoming VIPs who had been sheltering inside the terminal until the last moment. They formed up on one side of the stairway:

Mayor and Mrs. Alfred Toone of Victoria, Reeve and Mrs. J. B. Cumming of North Saanich, Rear Admiral and Mrs. M. G. Stirling, Air Com-

Last Chance Tonight

Victorians who missed the arrival of the Queen Mother and the cornerstone-laying ceremonies this afternoon will have a last chance to see her at her departure tonight.

The Queen Mother Eilzabeth was to arrive back at Government House from the ceremonies at 5:10 p.m.

At 8:15 p.m. she was to be guest of honor at an informal dinner tendered by the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Pearkes at Government House.

At 10:20, accompanied by the lieutenant-governor and his wife, by Premier and Mrs. Bennett and the mayor and Mrs. Toone, she is scheduled to leave for the airport.

Route of travel is Rockland, Cook, Fort and Douglas. The Queen Mother will be in the first car in the procession.

Arrival at Victoria International Airport is set for 10:50 p.m. After a short pause for goodbyes, the Queen Mother will board the RCAF Yukon which will carry her to Vancouver, departing at 11 p.m. and arriving 35 minutes later. There, after more goodbyes to her provincial hosts, she boards a Qantas aircraft and departs for Australia at 11:59 p.m.

Conventional Bombs Urged On China

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mme. Chiang Kai-shek said Friday that conventional bombs should be used against Communist China's nuclear installations.

She made the comment in response to questions at a National Press Club luncheon on the growing nuclear threat of Peking.

In her speech and in reply to questions the 67-year-old Mme. Chiang, wife of the Nationalist Chinese leader, stressed that any settlement of the Vietnamese war that is favorable to Hanoi would only benefit Communist China and would not serve the interests of the Soviet Union.

She said it is the design of the Chinese Communists to embroil Russia in a general war so that Peking would come out the real victor.

Mme. Chiang reaffirmed that "we shall return" to the China mainland "and we won't need any of your doughboys to do that."

Russians Leaking China War Story

BERLIN (AP)—A U.S. radio station in West Berlin says it has learned that the Soviet Communist party secretly spread charges that China has been preparing for possible war with Russia.

The U.S. Information Service station RIAS (radio in the American sector) made the claim in a broadcast Thursday. It said the secret letter sent to Communist parties abroad also accused Peking of fostering a long war in Viet Nam in an effort to touch off a clash between the United States and the Soviet Union.

The station said the letter was sent last February by the central committee of the Soviet Communist party to foreign Communist parties.

A RIAS spokesman told a reporter today the station learned of the letter "through sources in East Berlin."

MAKE CHARGES

The broadcast said the Soviet letter charged that the Chinese have:

—Ignored Soviet attempts to heal the ideological split.

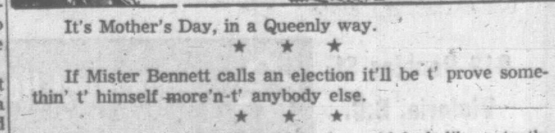
— Systematically prepared their population for an attack either from Russia alone or from both Russia and the United States.

— Stepped up provocations along the Far East border with the Soviet Union.

—Spurned peaceful Soviet efforts to settle the border questions.

—Hoped for continued cold war tensions to erupt into a U.S.-Soviet clash resulting in mutual destructions of the two nuclear giants.

—Rejected every Soviet effort to co-ordinate Communist aid to North Viet Nam.



It's Mother's Day, in a Queenly way.

Soviet Spacecraft Got Stuck in Trees

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The last pair of Russian astronauts to go into space came down in a snowy forest where their spacecraft got stuck between a couple of trees, it was disclosed here today.

It took a dramatic rescue effort and an uncomfortable all-night wait in the wilderness before they were brought to safety.

The story was told in the Communist youth daily Komsomolskaya Pravda by a top Soviet space designer who was identified only as "M.K.M."

The astronauts were Alexei Leonov and Pavel Belyaev who went aloft in the spaceship Voskhod 2 about a year ago. It was Leonov who made the first ever "walk" in space and considerable news blackout was imposed at the time on details of the landing.

The ship had to be brought down by manual control and it came to earth hundreds of miles from the planned landing area.

The designer said he was one of a three-man rescue party which set out on skis to reach the spot after a helicopter sighted the stranded Voskhod.

The rescuers took a helicopter to get to a spot about 1¼ miles from the Voskhod. It took them two hours to travel the distance on skis through the thick forest.

Illegal Gun Cargo Found Aboard Ship

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) —A Bulgarian freighter seized for secretly delivering Communist-made rifles to Lebanon has been released and has sailed for Bulgaria, customs officials announced today.

The captain of the Veliko Tirnovo was arrested after the ship docked here Jan. 29 and unloaded crates marked "machine parts" that turned out to contain 1,500 guns.

Lebanese customs fined the ship $1,900,000. The ship's agents however, reported that the freighter was freed and the captain allowed to leave after paying a fine of only $33,000.

Reports said the arms were to be shipped to Aden, where terrorists are waging a campaign against the British in the colony and the surrounding South Arabia federation.

INSIDE CITY HALL

Backward System May Be Best For Council

By JIM HUME
Times City Hall Reporter

Scissors and pencils were being sharpened at city hall this week ready for the annual assault on the 1966-67 budget.

And at least one city alderman thinks the almost fatalistic approach to the cut-and-trim method is out of date and doomed to failure.

"We seem to approach the annual budget in an extremely backward fashion," says Ald. Hugh Stephen. "We ask each department head to submit a budget for his department and then go over it with a fine tooth-comb cutting here, trimming there.

Hume

"Having done this we decide how much money we are going to need for the coming year and strike the mill rate.

"Wouldn't it be more sensible if we struck the mill rate first, decided how much revenue we had coming in and then parcelled the money out to the various departments with strict instructions to live within the budget?"

One city in England, Birmingham in the smoke-grimed Midlands, already uses the live-within-your-income type of city budgeting.

The process appears simple.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE

A special committee examines the city's anticipated revenue and works out from that what can be spent by each department on a basis of priorities.

That it is successful there is no doubt for this year Birmingham's taxes will rise only four per cent instead of the 12 per cent forecast under the old budgeting system.

Would it work here?

City comptroller James Bramley is mildly sceptical.

"It obviously works in Bormingham," he said. "But I don't know how they make it work.

"Although the budget we bring down later this month is earmarked for future spending it is the decisions that are made during the year, not at budget time, that cost the money."

Mr. Bramley cites several examples calculated to keep budget-makers awake at night.

"You can't grant a 5 per cent wage increase to garbage collectors and then only allow for a 2 per cent increase in the budget," he said. "Neither can you ask the department to hold the line.

"If you do grant the 5 per cent increase and then slash the department's budget only one thing can happen: service must be reduced, men laid off and collections changed from once a week to once every two weeks."

Another example of problems is given from the fire department.

DANGER FACTOR

"A cut in working hours resulted in our hiring 16 or 17 additional firemen," he said. "We could have reduced the working hours and gone on with the established manpower, but that would have undoubtedly resulted in a hefty increase in fire insurance rates to say nothing of the danger factor involved when you are operating so obviously below efficient strength."

Mr. Bramley, prepared to seriously consider any suggestion that might save the city a dollar, still feels that the present method of budgeting is the best and only way.

"A department head worth is salt puts a budget forward that he concientiously feels will do the job," he said. "He knows what he will need to do the job he has already been instructed to do by city council."

While the general public will launch its anticipated scream when this year's program of increased spending is unveiled, it is that same public which forces city spending ever higher.

BETTER SERVICES

"Not only are cities being required to maintain existing services with their steadily increasing costs, but they are being required to provide an increased level of service," said Mr. Bramley.

One thing city councils can do to hold the line even if only slightly.

"This is purely a personal opinion," says the veteran book-balancer. "But we haven't got the money to maintain properly what we already have and we should not be getting into new activities."

It's a bit of advice city aldermen might like to take with them when next week they take their first and preliminary run at the annual budget.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

The storm which battered the coast Friday lies north of the Queen Charlotte Islands and will continue to weaken. Strong winds, cloud and showers are still occurring over the north coast region. Meanwhile a system passed through the southern interior overnight giving snowflurries throughout. Behind this system the air mass began to dry out but some cloud and showers still prevail over the south coast. Continued drying will give further improvement to sky conditions over all areas for Sunday.

. . . QUEEN MOTHER

modore and Mrs. R. C. Weston, Superintendent and Mrs. G. R. Engel, RCMP, and airport manager Jack Knowland and Mrs. Knowland.

The Queen Mother had words for all of them. Then, instead of entering her limousine with her escort, Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes, she turned to the children.

The sun had dipped behind some clouds, but for them it was a brilliant summer day.

The Queen asked Shirley Raper to which Guide company did she belong?

Shirley had to look at her own shoulder patches before replying, "First Elk Lake."

"How are the Guides progressing in Victoria?" the Queen asked Johanna Bergink.

With eloquence deferring to panic, Johanna replied, "Fine."

Then on to the Brownies, a sea of upturned faces washed in smiles. Then a wave to the crowd before entering the car now drawn up for departure. Premier and Mrs. Bennett, who had come from Vancouver in the plane with the royal party, also took their places in a 12-car cavalcade.

Four natty, white helmeted city policemen on motorcycles, who somehow managed to look as bright as the eight scarlet-coated Mounties who were dodging among the camermen, cranked up their bikes. And the parade began while the Guides and Brownies gave three final cheers.

Police halted all traffic on Pat Bay Highway as the cavalcade turned south, giving the royal party a head start to discourage passers.

★ ★ ★

But, perhaps at the Queen Mother's request, progress was slow. Police said later the average speed was only 25 miles per hour all the way to Victoria.

There were pockets of people at almost every intersection and the Queen waved to them all.

At Royal Oak, at Elk Lake, at Town and Country, groups of people waited. There were more children, more Brownies, more Guides, spotted along the highway too.

And there was a tweedy woman standing alone with a Union Jack as big as a tablecloth, tacked to a stick which she waved with both arms. There was an aging loyalist who hadn't time to find a stick, who waved his Union Jack as if he was shaking a rug.

The streets were lined with people as the cavalcade drew closer to the city centre. There were several hundred people waiting at Fort and Douglas and again at Fort and Cook.

★ ★ ★

At Rockland, towards the gates of Government House, people and cars thronged both sides of the street. Many had flags.

Most of the older adults wore smiles that can only be described as tender.

They were welcoming their Queen of the years 1936 to 1952, years of hardship, war and perhaps personal loss—and she had experienced these things with them, so they had things in common.

This was a friend whose kindly face they had studied in magazines and newspapers and in church halls and state buildings, who had raised a family while they had raised families, who was a familiar as one of their own.

And they, at least, welcomed the Queen Mother to Victoria as they would an old friend.

7 Students Chosen For Overseas Work

Seven University of Victoria students have been chosen to teach in underdeveloped countries under sponsorship of the Canadian University Service Overseas.

They will cap their four undergradutate years with a two-year stint abroad, starting in September.

The students are: Daniel Curtis, 1706 Sheridan, to Latin America; Glenda Hawes, 2617 Capital Heights, to Latin America; Joan Climenhaga, 877 Newport, to the southern Cribbean; Rolf Turner, 951 Green, to India; Sandra Neve, 4031 White Rock, to the eastern Caribbean, Trinidad or Tobago; Christine Zaccarelli, 3358 Biscoe Drive, to East Africa or Zambia; Katharine Bergbusch, 1372 Craigdarroch, to Ghana.

They were considered a "pretty fair number" out of Uvic's student population of 3,000 to apply for the overseas service, by CUSO representative on campus, Dr. John Ogelsby.

Five Uvic students were seen abroad by CUSO last year.

"So far we've had 100 per cent acceptance of applicants," said Dr. Ogelsby.

The students, selected by CUSO, are hired by governments of the countries where they will teach.

Their exact destinations will be announced later.

PROUDEST BROWNIE OF THEM ALL

Proudest Brownie of them all today is Margaret Patton of 195 View Royal.

On ordinary days she is just another member of View Royal Tuesday Pack at All Saints' Church.

But today she was to be the bearer of the roses—and was to present a bouquet to the Queen Mother during ceremonies at the provincial buildings.

Margaret, 10, was chosen by lot. Her mother says she was too overwhelmed to comment.

Navy Crews Attempt To Move Bomb

MADRID (Reuters)—An unidentified object believed to be a missing American hydrogen bomb will be moved from its perch 2,500 feet under the Mediterranean sea before U.S. navy crews try to raise it to the surface, it was announced today.

Rear-Admiral William S. Guest, commander of the force trying to recover the object, said he proposed to try moving it to a more favorable recovery area because of the steep slope of the sea bottom where it now is resting.

"If successful, this course of action will lessen the risk of having the object fall from its present precarious position into much deeper water," a statement from the U.S. embassy here said.

The object was located Thursday, half-shrouded by what looked like a parachute, about five miles off the fishing village of Palomares on the southeast Spanish coast.

Its discovery appeared to have ended a two-month search for a nuclear bomb that fell into the Mediterranean from a U.S. B-52 jet bomber after the plane crashed during a refueling operation in mid-air on Jan. 17, three other bombs carried by the bomber were later discovered on land.

Contractor Hits Mystery Pickets

The contractor at the Red Lion Motor Inn said today he will wait until Monday before taking legal action against unidentified pickets.

"It depends whether they are there or not," said Siegfried Marquardt.

"They have no right to be there. There is no dispute on the job. The law says the majority don't have to join a union if they don't want to but unions feel everyone must be in."

The pickets, who showed up on three days this week, are protesting non-union tradesmen on the job.

Mr. Marquardt said his company has 10 men in a union and 15 outside. Of the sub-trades at the Red Lion site, about 25 are union members and four or five are not.

He considered the unidentified pickets are the work of a union seeking certification at Marquardt Construction.

Since the pickets first showed up last Tuesday, union plumbers and electricians have not gone to work, he said. But work continued at 85 per cent of normal.

Three separate moves have been taken against the pickets.

The first was to seek an injunction, but this was not granted in B.C. Supreme Court this week on the basis of the material filed by lawyer David Hummel.

Later, two informations were taken out alleging infractions of the provincial Trade Union Act and the federal Criminal Code.

Neither has been pressed and Saanich police are considering it a private matter since no public inconvenience is being caused.

The lawyer for the pickets, Louis Lindholm, said he is surprised at both informations.

"I am extremely doubtful that either would result in conviction," he said.

He has declined to identify his clients and said they are awaiting the next move from Marquardt Construction.

STEEP ASCENT from the aircraft was negotiated with smooth assurance by the Queen Mother who kept her eyes on the crowd awaiting her. The lieutenant-governor, meantime, kept his eye on the Queen Mother and so did everyone else, including a giggle of cheering Guides and Brownies.

WORRISOME QUESTION!

"What was she wearing?"

That was the worrisome question for male reporters as they interviewed each other in the wake of the Queen Mother's arrival Friday night.

All they could agree on was a blue coat and a flowery blue hat.

All hail the public relations man who passed a typed note to one of the reporters who was on the verge of getting an opinion from a Brownie.

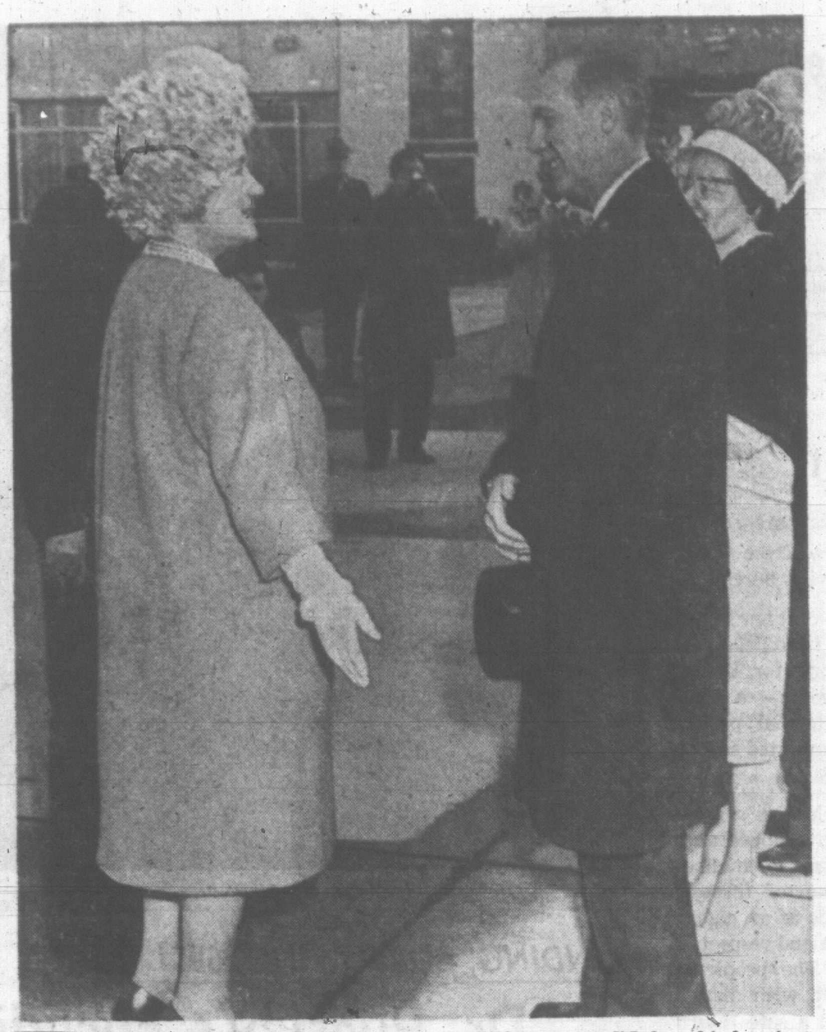
It said her dress was of parma violet shantung.

It was a straight dress with a side panel, detailed on the bodice and hemline with eyelet embroidery in matching silk. Her hat was a toque of tulle and violets. She wore a matching wool coat.

And the solitary women's side reporter present was able to add, "Triple strands of pearls, matching earrings, a diamond and pearl brooch, shoes of deep grey, a matching bag and pearl grey gloves."

Crisis passed. But now comes another predicament.

What will she wear today?



QUEENLY GESTURE underlines a point as Queen Mother chats with Mayor and Mrs. Toone soon after her arrival. If local officials were nervous (and the mayor did drop his hat just before the royal plane arrived) the Queen Mother displayed her flair for putting people at ease.

FEMALE SEX NOT LIKELY TO RECUR?

OTTAWA (CP) — A complaint that women MPs are treated as "something accidental" in the listings of Commons committee members and committee reports was voiced in the House Friday by Mrs. Grace MacInnis (NDP—Vancouver-Kingsway).

She noted that women committee members are listed under "Messrs" with a bracketed "Mrs." after their names in the official Hansard. It was as though they were something accidental and not likely to recur.

Women had been members of the Commons long enough for them to be considered equally with men "and not like raisins in a pudding."

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux said Mrs. MacInnis's complaint would be considered.

Export of Brass Bedstead Knobs Proves U.K. Acumen—Philip

NEW YORK (AP) — After a day of promoting British products, Prince Philip turns today to tending the affairs of Variety Clubs International, a children's charity.

The primary purpose of his 11-day tour of the U.S. is to raise money for the charity.

Prince Philip attends a luncheon today with Mayor John V. Lindsay, Francis Cardinal Spellman, and youth organization representatives. Tonight, he will attend a Variety Clubs banquet.

The prince spent much of Friday touring New York stores, touting British products and drawing large crowds. He acted the role of salesman, but cautioned that no one should get the idea that he is one.

In a humorous talk at the British - American Chamber of Commerce, he tried to put to rest notions that British marketing skill is underdeveloped.

"Any country that can sell tea sets to Russians, export 1,000,000 brass bedstead knobs in 1964 and persuade foreigners to buy water from Glasgow can be relied upon to sell almost anything."

Prince Philip is on his first visit here since he toured with his wife, the Queen, in 1960. He will end his three - day visit Sunday when he leaves for Toronto.

City Business Challenged To Help In Redevelopment

Victoria businessmen were issued a challenge Friday to help their civic government in executing community renewal plans.

The businessmen got the word at the Lions Club of Victoria's luncheon meeting from G. S. Greenhalgh, director of community planning for the city.

Mr. Greenhalgh, who spent years in a similar capacity in both Regina and Calgary, spoke on the changing city.

He told the audience that they should generate whatever influence they can to spark "a minor paint-up job or possibly a major development like Place Ville-Marie (in Montreal)."

He said the city needs the businessmen's help to continue "its dynamic development."

He said it wasn't just a matter of attracting tourists but of preventing the city from becoming static.

Our Royal Visitor

IT IS ALMOST 27 YEARS SINCE today's Royal Visitor captured the hearts of this community on a ceremonial journey that had taken her and the late King from the Atlantic coast to this Pacific capital. The occasion transformed a revered symbol into a warm human personality who has enjoyed the continuing affection of Greater Victoria people.

That sentiment has been further nourished by the all-too-brief program that has renewed our acquaintance with the Queen Mother during the last few hours.

It was a happy feature of the visit that special efforts were made to arrange the motor-cavalcade routes and other appearances so as to permit as close a contact as possible with our people — some of whom are children of parents who were young admirers of the Queen Mother on her last visit here.

We are fortunate that her schedule allowed her to officiate at the cornerstone laying for British Columbia's new museum — a royal gesture to our centennial project which will be commemorated as long as the building stands.

It is the Queen Mother's great gift that her attractive appearance and renowned charm of manner have remained unchanged through the years. She stands as an enduring focus of affection and respect in a turbulent world. The people of this community will wish her a pleasant journey and a safe return to her home.

Mr. Loffmark Rides Again

THE PROVINCE'S MINISTER of industrial development, trade and commerce, rode his favorite hobby horse — economic union between this province and American Pacific Coast states—into Vancouver the other day with whip and spurs flying.

It may be that Mr. Loffmark's idea of integrating the economies of the whole Pacific Coast has a certain dollar-oriented attraction—but even that is only from the short-term viewpoint. Mr. Loffmark fails to come to grips with the really pertinent aspect of economic union—the political consequences. Does he really believe that it is possible to integrate specific areas of two sovereign nations without splitting them off, at least in large measure, from their parent countries?

It hardly seems possible that Mr. Loffmark believes the United States government would allow, as he suggests, Washington, California and Oregon (why not Alaska, too, and make it complete?) to drop customs barriers unilaterally with British Columbia and that the Canadian government would allow this province to make a similar move.

The minister propounds the theory that unnecessary industrial duplication in Canada and the United States is slowing down the economic growth of both. "The Yanks are second to none," he says, "in producing heavy industrial machinery. We in British Columbia have 50 per cent of all the hydro-electric power potential in North America. Why try to duplicate each other instead of pooling our resources?"

Thus in one swift blow the minister of industrial development seeks to reduce his province to the traditional role of "hewer of wood and drawer of water," which, along with the rest of Canada, it has been trying to rise above for decades.

If Mr. Loffmark were to travel extensively around the world—particularly throughout Asia, Africa and South America—he could see at first-hand the economic results in countries which are trying to subsist on the products of primary resource industries. He would see what happens when the primary resources give out or world demand for them weakens, and there is little or no secondary industry to fall back on.

Come to think of it, a long educational trip for the minister might impress him with the fact that money-making is not the only cri- think of it, now that they have at last had a chance to hear about it?

. . . How I Wonder What You Are . . .

THERE SEEMS TO BE A GOOD deal of haste in the handling of preliminaries for the 300-foot needle proposed for the Inner Harbor. The first public knowledge of the project came with disclosure in the legislature that title to the Belleville Street property was being cleared in preparation for construction of the tower. City Council was said to be in favor of the idea. But has anyone stopped to think about the effects of this structure on the Victoria scene?

The city's chief glory is its scenery. As a tourist centre we should protect our chief asset to the full extent, and anything which is proposed to come between us and the view should be looked at with a critical eye.

Certainly a tower of the height proposed would dominate the Legislative Buildings and the incomparable westward prospect toward the Sooke hills. Few if any such needles, built usually for fairground and tourist gimmick purposes, have displayed any real architectural beauty. What do they become once the novelty has worn off? How many tourists coming through Seattle are going to be impressed by a needle only half as high as the one they have already visited?

The legislation to remove federal restrictions on the harbor-front property places a heavy responsibility on the city council. The property had been restricted to esplanade use, although never yet developed for this purpose. The restriction had saved it from becoming the site of a paint company extension, and later of a marine warehouse. Surely a city that aspires to honors as a tourist centre should develop its unique Inner Harbor in the most beautiful way possible. The city of gardens should start at the waterfront if the title is to stick.

Does the proposed needle fit into this Victoria picture? Could it become an integral part of Victoria, or would it become merely "The Thing"? Council seems to have moved very quickly in an unpublicized way. What do the planning advisers think of the proposal? Even more interesting, what do the people think of it, now that they have had a chance to hear about it?

A Soiled Word

AN EXAMPLE OF THE DEterioration of commonly used words is found in the sign on the mobile hot-meal van that has begun to serve some of the elderly people of limited means in Saanich.

The word is "welfare". This is assumed by some persons protesting the wording to indicate what has been called social welfare. Social welfare is the euphemism which long ago was substituted for the words "relief" or "dole" in order to avoid their unpleasant connotations.

It is right and proper, of course, that the dignity and respect of an individual should be preserved against any implied stigma of poverty. It is a misfortune of our times that when this is achieved by substituting a respectable word for those which offend, the respectable word itself soon takes on a sort of threadbare disreputability

". . . All right everybody . . . back to normal . . . !"

SPENDING, BORROWING, SELLING

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Dr. Pugsley's Euclidian Theorem

UNTIL his name appeared obscurely in the papers a few days ago I had never heard of Dr. William H. Pugsley, a professor at McGill University. Probably few Canadians outside Montreal's academic elite had heard of him, either. This is a great pity. For Dr. Pugsley, judging by his recent speech, appears to be a man of common sense, a most uncommon specimen, a very rare bird, in Canada's current debate. Anyhow, while Parliament was playing out a more than usually weird script, doubtless written by the late Ian Fleming for his hero, James Bond, Dr. Pugsley was telling the nation a few simple home truths. Of course nobody listened to him. He could not compete with the high melodrama of politics.

Hutchison

Nevertheless, the facts cited by Dr. Pugsley will remain, to threaten the nation's life, long after the present Parliament is dead. They are uncomplicated facts, really. A child can understand them. Yet the nation does not understand them because debate among the politicians of all parties scrupulously avoids facts as if they were sordid, shameful and beneath contempt.

Unanswerable

Dr. Pugsley's Euclidian theorem is neat and unanswerable. Canadians, he says, do not save enough money and fail to generate enough capital to develop their own resources. They borrow capital heavily from other nations and, to raise it, sell their resources to foreigners. "Less capital of our own can only mean we will need even more from the United States. Thus, the United States will come to own a still larger proportion of the industry here." As Euclid could say Q.E.D.

Even if foreign investment is urgently needed in a growing nation the additional need of maximum Canadian capital, saved at home, is so obvious that you would expect all government policy to be shaped accordingly. But it is not. In fact, it is shaped in the main for precisely opposite purposes.

From Ottawa to the smallest municipality government does just about everything imaginable to discourage Canadians from saving their money and investing it in their own industries.

The ever-increasing taxes collected by government at three levels are monies that cannot be saved for business investment. To be sure, the new compulsory saving device known as the Canada Pension Plan will accumulate vast sums but they will be spent by the provincial governments mainly for social investments of various kinds. All of them are desirable, some essential, but for the most part they provide no capital for business expansion. Moreover, when government is systematically inflating the currency the average Canadian may well wonder why he should save money which is sure to lose its purchasing power later on.

Capital Gains Tax

But the ingenuity of government in draining the nation's capital is not yet exhausted by any means. As Dr. Pugsley observes, the latest proposal is a tax on all capital gains. The money thus collected would no longer be capital. It would not be used for industrial investment. It would be used to pay the running costs of government, the nation's daily housekeeping bills. "A tax on the country's capital funds," says Dr. Pugsley, "can only increase the country's dependence on foreign capital."

Here is the vicious circle by which Canadians try to have their cake and eat it. On the one hand, we solemnly resolve to make the country grow by massive investment, both domestic and foreign. On the other, we commit so much of our income in advance to expanding state services that there is not enough left for adequate savings.

We talk boldly of buying our resources back from foreigners, some day, but as we are going now we shall never save the necessary capital. Indeed, as we are going now we shall sooner or later plunge into another foreign exchange crisis, devalue the Canadian dollar again and pretend that this conjuring has solved our problem when it has merely admitted our failure and ratified our folly.

Well Understood

All these facts are well understood in Ottawa and were fully explained to me not long ago by a major and exceedingly unhappy statesman who is just as smart and educated as Dr. Pugsley but necessarily not as candid in public.

Do not suppose for a moment that the politicians are too stupid to realize what is happening. They realize all right but they are caught in the net of self-deception that envelops Canada today and strangles its energies as Gulliver was pinned down by the pygmies.

When an independent, non-political thinker like Dr. Pugsley sees through the nonsense you may be sure that he will be denounced as a reactionary, an economic Neanderthal, perhaps even as a capitalist (the ultimate crime) though clearly the nation's greatest need is more capital.

If every Canadian were encouraged to make himself a small capitalist and invest in business we would have a good chance of solving our economic problem and, with it, our political problem of national independence. Instead, we prefer the slogans, the hoopla and the soothing auto-intoxication to the facts every time.

FROM OTTAWA

By MAURICE WESTERN

From the Mess: A Conservative Leader?

THE aftermath of the Munsinger debate is a pervading uneasiness about the leadership of both major parties. This cannot be disguised by caucus ceremonials. Whatever may be said or not said about it in public, it is one of the facts of our political life. On the side of the Liberals the crisis has had no effect on the more obvious candidates for the succession for the good reason that none was openly involved in the parliamentary struggle. Active as they may well have been behind the scenes, they were spectators in the House of Commons. No reason of good sense required their intervention for they were not principals in the affair, they had no interest in prolonging debate; and the points of difficulty which arose were best left to the procedural experts.

Western

Distinct Change

On the side of the Conservatives, however, there has been a distinct change. It was Mr. Fulton who dominated the debate in the closing days and by dominating it made himself once again the subject of fascinated speculation among political observers. There was a time after his disastrous venture into provincial politics when Mr. Fulton looked the darkest of dark horses for the national race. But if merit still matters in public life, few who watched his performance this week would bet against him now.

Mr. Fulton's power does not flow simply from debating ability. He was always a formidable debater, possibly the best in his party, but he did not always have the stature he possesses today. From the time he returned to Ottawa after days of chaos, something happened to the party. Not being leader, he did not exert complete control but his moderating influence was at once apparent and, as the outcome demonstrated, it was not dissipated, even by Mr. Nielsen's discordant and violent attack of Monday evening.

Indefinable Quality

As Mr. Peter Newman observed in a column, there was a "prime ministerial" quality about Mr. Fulton's speeches. This is not a quality which is easy to define. It is certainly not a matter of lucidity or superb articulation; some very successful prime ministers have been distinguished for neither. But it includes among other things an aura of command, a deep sense of public affairs, disciplined self-restraint and the many intangibles which compel respect in all quarters of the House.

There are in the country, and especially in provincial capitals, eminent and very intelligent Conservatives who may have high ambitions. But they share one handicap; they have not been tested in the House of Commons. It is in the House that Mr. Fulton has achieved the summit of his powers.

What may happen in a popular convention, no one can say. All sorts of considerations are weighed by delegates in smoke-filled rooms and the qualities possessed by Mr. Fulton are not those which seem to have counted for most with a great body of Conservatives in recent years. If he is to be judged by the standards of the image-makers, it may well be that someone else will snatch the prize.

On the other hand, there is a thoughtful opinion that Mr. Fulton may be favored by the tide of public disgust with the politics of recent years. He has some traits; a certain diffidence, an intellectual's dislike of emotional fuzziness, a disinclination to compete in the back-slapping arts, which might at other times be considered handicaps but in changed conditions count in his favor.

Issues or Personalities

It may be that the country would now prefer the politics of issues to the politics of personalities. In that case Mr. Fulton's record should be reassuring. That he has not shrunk from issues will be apparent from his many appearances as a central figure in past controversies.

If Mr. Fulton comes well out of the Spence inquiry, his prestige in the House of Commons will be a serious problem for his rivals within the Conservative party. No one knows how the other possible heirs apparent would look if transposed from legislative to parliamentary seats. But there is no doubt in Mr. Fulton's case on Monday and Tuesday: he looked like a leader.

NOT FOR EVER

"National character" is sometimes a useful concept, but it is also dangerous because one slides so easily into the demonstrably false image of something innate, biological, that goes on and on, century after century.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

FOR a quiet ramble go out to Logan Park, off Viaduct Avenue by way of Interurban Road.

Here the Saanich Parks Department has made a nice hiking trail through the fifteen acres of parkland.

By the small creek you will find many little frogs, waiting with just their eyes above the water. As soon as it is quiet they will commence to sing again.

Here the Water-Parsnip with its fine-toothed leaves is now appearing; mixed with it you can find the Water-Hemlock, whose leaves have coarse teeth.

There are a number of old stumps along the way that stand out like giant flower pots crowned with Salal, Huckleberry and perhaps a few seedlings of fir and cedar.

Also on view are some "nurse logs" that show the spectrum of plant life from the lichens and mosses to the growing trees.

There is a little swamp at the western edge where the Hardack is breaking into leaf. Along the edges the Ninebark leaves have already appeared and, of course, our old friend the Arum or Skunk cabbage.

There are some really fine old broadleaf maples in this area, as well as a grove of red alders that are clean and tall. Examine the mottled trunk of one of these and see the tiny lichens growing there.

There are a number of high moss-covered rock outcrops and here the Bittercress is in full bloom.

Carefully lift a piece of bark from some old log and you will find many termites working away. Perhaps you may be lucky and find one of the queens with its extra large body and dark-brown head.

Close by there is sure to be a Salamander moving along in the shade in search of some insect.

Replace that bit of bark, please.

Lower Liquor Age

I notice the government proposes to raise to $150 the fines for minors who enter licenced drinking premises. This is supposed to make it fairer to waiters who can be assessed this much for serving them.

Surely while the act is up for consideration it is time to reduce the minor age for this purpose to 19 years from 21.

In our province a person of 19 may vote and may be trained to carry weapons and kill in the armed forces. Why maintain this silly pretence that they cannot handle liquor just as well at 19 as at 21?—For Fair Play.

Vacant Seats

The other evening I attended the Solarium "Showtime 66" and would like to say what a lot of real talent that organization has!

The audience was very enthusiastic, but there were so few people there.

Where were all those people who complained so loudly last year about the "minstrel" show? It makes one's blood boil that they do not patronize the talent of Victoria.—An Admirer.

Bird Song

What a joy it is to hear the birds singing once again.

I do hope that when the gardens are being attended to that pesticides and sprays will be used sparingly, if at all, for this kills the birds.

As I am writing I can hear a robin singing to its mate.—(Mrs.) Olive Detloe Wilson, 3059 Harriet.

Phallic Symbol

Reference is made to your recent news item regarding the proposed space needle on Victoria's waterfront.

So we too, like Pompeii, Paris, Toronto and Seattle, are to have a civic phallic symbol. To what will we be testifying? The fecundity of Social Credit or the fertility of Mr. Bennett's imagination?—Curious.

End Hypocrisy

I have been encouraged to read in recent news reports that the subject of national sweepstakes is to come up at this session. We should do away with the hateful hypocrisy to which we are now subjected, and keep tens of millions of our dollars in Canada, that now go to Ireland and Britain, for sweepstakes and football pools.

Let us all write to our MP, Ottawa, and ask that the Criminal Code be amended so that we may have a sweepstake for the Queen's Plate race, which is run annually in Toronto in June.—Doris Ashdown, 1890 Haro, Vancouver.

Forgetting Aggressors?

No wonder Russia is annoyed at—and fearful of—Germany being re-armed and furnished with nuclear weapons. This antagonism and objection is natural and understandable since Germany broke the peace pact between them and attacked Russia in the early 1940s, and probably could have conquered had not Russia's severe winter halted the Germans until Russia was able to drive them back, capturing the intermediate territory.

Why is it that communism is portrayed as the only or most aggressive power when it was fascism that twice in this century plunged the world to war? (Mrs.) L. Pratt, Galt, Ont.

Not for a Chosen Few

As a taxpayer I would like to comment on your article about civic employees receiving reduced parking rates in the Fisgard Street parkade. I heartily disagree with this situation.

This building was built with public funds for the benefit of everyone, not a chosen few.—C. W. Haines, 310 Huntington.

Condemnation

I think everyone should read and consider seriously the article by Norman Cousins, "Is the War in Viet Nam 'Just Right' for the U.S.?"

I feel it is a very factual condemnation of the world of 1966. Gallant men, innocent women and children are dying in Viet Nam so that the present industrial boom can be maintained.

Surely the money which is being wasted in the blood-bath of Viet Nam could be channelled into something more productive such as the war on poverty and the feeding of the many millions of hungry people in all parts of the world—some even in our own Canada.—M. P. B. Wrixon, 2530 Lansdowne.

Dead March as Appropriate

Congratulations to Mr. Bennett on the show he threw at the Causeway the other night — and then it wound up with a mournful, doleful playing of the Centennial tune.

This music would be more appropriate at a service in a funeral home for the "late departed". Why not substitute the "Dead March"—just as appropriate, and better known by the general public?—Temporarily Disgusted.

Destructive

Montreal La Presse

Up to the present time, this unfortunate Parliament, paralyzed by vendettas, has done nothing worthwhile. It has marked time while confronted with an enormous legislative load. When will it once again become conscious of its true responsibilities? . . . The two parties in the House, which have fallen many notches in the eyes of the public, have for weeks been in the process of destroying each other. If this sorry spectacle does not soon end, our parliamentary system will only be able to come out of it staggering. It must be hoped that this prospect has already been haunting for some time the minds of the more lucid and serious members. If not, the situation is even worse than it appears. . .

Another aspect of this interminable crisis is the profound division that it risks creating within Parliament and the two principal parties, between French-Canadians and English-Canadians. Whatever errors and responsibilities weigh on each, it must be noted that the partisan fights conducted at Ottawa in recent years have for the most part had French-Canadians as targets and victims. . . . Whatever one says, whichever way one turns, one comes back in the end to an impression of disarray, to a sort of state of impotence in face of events which exceed normal proportions. Things are at the point where only a sudden recovery close to a miracle can again give life and movement to this sorry Parliament which is at the mercy of its own contradictions.

LUCIEN CARDIN

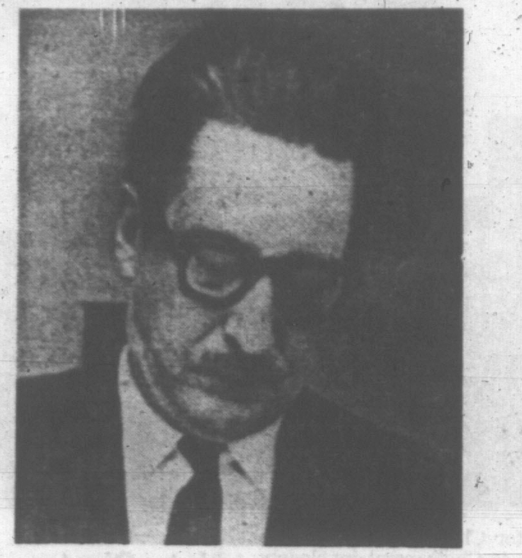
The Man in the Centre Of a Political Hurricane

By GEOFFREY STEVENS
in The Globe and Mail

OTTAWA—One of those sick jokes making the rounds on Parliament Hill late last week went something like this: "Have you seen the latest picture of Cardin? He's sitting cross-legged on the ground, a bottle of gasoline in one hand and a match in the other."

In the explosive, totally unfunny atmosphere of Parliament the joke produced only a few grim chuckles.

But it was, perhaps, one of the kinder things being said about Minister of Justice Lucien Cardin.



JUSTICE MINISTER CARDIN—"Seldom has one man been the object of so much attention, wrath and abuse."

Seldom in the 98-year history of Parliament in Canada has one man stood in the eye of a hurricane. Seldom has one man been the object of so much attention, wrath and abuse in the House of Commons.

A lot of words were hurled at Mr. Cardin; some were picked up by the Hansard reporters while others were mercifully omitted from the official record.

These were words such as traitor, treason, witch-hunt, McCarthyism, blackmail, scandal-monger and rabid animal. A literary aberration — Cardinism — intruded into the language and promises to linger long in the corridors and lobbies of Government.

(Cardinism is too new a term to have been formally defined. Judging, however, by the venom with which it was spat out in the chamber, it means a distinctively Canadian brand of McCarthyism.)

Most Degrading Exhibition

Who is this man, who has provoked such rage, who has set Parliament on its ear, who has plunged the Commons into one of the most degrading exhibitions in Canadian history?

Lucien Cardin does not look like a man who would attempt a fiery suicide. He does not look like a man who would shatter parliamentary traditions by angrily accusing, on the floor of the Commons, a former prime minister of mishandling what has been described as a sordid case involving a risk to national security.

He also does not look like a man who, less than a week later, would publicly affirm that more than one former minister was involved in the case and assert he had good reason to believe the woman in the case had once done espionage work.

Anyone who has watched Mr. Cardin in action in the Commons and had an opportunity to talk to him at any length comes away convinced that the justice minister is what he appears to be — honest, conscientious, sincere and a scrappy little politician.

Doesn't Cut A Good Figure

Mr. Cardin does not cut much of a figure in the Commons. Short, with dark hair and a tiny mustache, he is dwarfed, in appearance and performance, by such cabinet colleagues as Defence Minister Paul Hellyer, Trade and Commerce Minister Robert Winters, Agriculture Minister J. J. Greene and his own seat mate, Health and Welfare Minister Allan MacEachen.

He appears to be mild-mannered, almost colorless and humorless, a small-town lawyer holding down one of the most important and uncomfortable posts in the Canadian government.

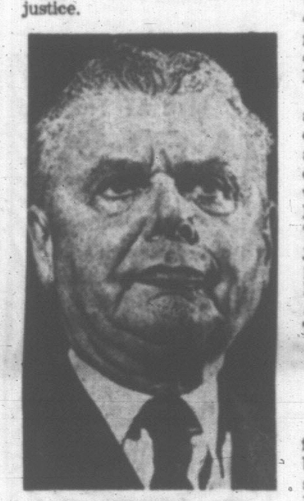
He is no match in debate for his principal antagonists — John Diefenbaker, the master of demolishing opponents by scorn, Erik Nielsen, the great accuser whose thrusts can pierce the thickest hides, and Eldon Woolliams, the westerner with the sledgehammer style and lungs of leather.

Mr. Cardin appears hesitant when he is called on to answer questions and accusations. His English is good, but he seems uncomfortable using the language. Even when using French, he lacks the style and forcefulness of, say, Gilles Gregoire of the Creditistes.

Although he had already been a cabinet minister for more than two years, Mr. Cardin first achieved political prominence late last spring when Prime Minister Lester Pearson unexpectedly chose him to succeed Guy Favreau, who had resigned as justice minister in the wake of the Dorion report.

Born in Providence, R.I., on March 1, 1919, he came to Canada when he was 12. After studies at Loyola and the University of Montreal, he won a by-election in the riding of Richelieu-Vercheres on Oct. 6, 1952. He was re-elected in the five subsequent general elections.

When the Liberals returned to power in April, 1963, Mr. Cardin was appointed associate defence minister, a minor portfolio. Early last year he was shifted to the equally uninspiring post of minister of public works, then on to justice.



JOHN DIEFENBAKER
. . . implacable foe

There is little in Mr. Cardin's parliamentary record prior to this session to indicate he was anything but a quiet, steady member, a competent, hard-working minister and moderate Quebec Liberal determined to streanghen the bonds between French and English Canada.

With but one exception, there seemed to be nothing in his public background to suggest that he would act in such a way as to astound his colleagues and his opponents at least three times in a matter of weeks.

He surprised almost everyone by his defiant stand on the George Victor Spencer espionage case. After Mr. Pearson overruled him and authorized the Spencer inquiry, members of all parties expected him to resign. In an unexpected demonstration of personal and political courage, he withdrew his resignation and stayed in political life. His third surprise was the biggest — his revelations about the Munsinger case.

Opposition MPs struggled last week to comprehend Mr. Cardin's conduct. Gordon Fairweather, a highly respected Conservative from New Brunswick, may have come fairly close to the mark when he described the justice minister as, "a frustrated minister who wishes to commit hara-kari and is willing to take other people down with him."

The key to Mr. Cardin's conduct and the motivation behind his actions is basically to be found in the person of John Diefenbaker. His quarrel is not with former ministers who may have been involved but rather with Mr. Diefenbaker's handling of the case.

By his words and actions, the justice minister made it clear last week that he will gladly sacrifice his own career if he can bring down Mr. Diefenbaker.

Mr. Cardin made it clear in a recent interview that he is convinced Mr. Diefenbaker is anti-Quebec and that he would destroy Confederation if he were ever permitted to regain leadership of the country. This may indicate why the justice minister is apparently prepared, not to commit hara-kari, but rather to go out like a Kamikaze pilot, taking the Tory leader with him.

Put Feelings On the Record

Mr. Cardin first put his feelings about Mr. Diefenbaker on the record in a speech in the Commons on Feb. 22, 1962. It was the one incident which foreshadowed the justice minister's startling behavior in recent weeks.

In that speech, delivered during the Throne Speech debate, the quiet backbencher ripped into then Prime Minister Diefenbaker's attitude toward Quebec and the relegation of Quebec Tories to minor posts in the Cabinet.

"If we, in the province of Quebec," Mr. Cardin told the sparsely - populated chamber, "are able to rejoice with those promoted members and on their behalf, we have no reason to feel flattered by the theatrical and grotesque show to which the prime minister resorted to enhance some comparatively unimportant appointments. It is obvvous that, in undertaking this trip to Quebec City, they tried to create an illusion of the prime minister's interest in the province of Quebec, without the prime minister having to take any action of equal importance which alone might have been considered a sign of true interest, even understanding as concerns that province . . ."

Mr. Diefenbaker has never forgotten, nor forgiven. Over the next four years, the two men sniped at one another, sporadically, with increasing animosity.

The Tory chief got his first good opportunity to even the score when Mr. Cardin ran into trouble last fall in his handling of the Spencer espionage affair. Mr. Diefenbaker led his troops into battle when the 1965-66 estimates of the justice department came before the Commons last month.

Mr. Cardin fought back stubbornly, refusing to yield an inch as the Tories heaped invective on his head and as the government moved toward a financial crisis because the estimates had not been passed.

Cases Reveal Much of Man

The Spencer and Munsinger cases reveal much about Mr. Cardin, the man, the politician and the cabinet minister.

He seems to suffer from a sense of isolation, a sense of standing alone against the fury of the opposition, a sense that even responsible opposition criticism is an assault on his integrity and the integrity of French Canada.

As a politician, he is too susceptible to provocation, too vulnerable to saying things in the heat of anger that no member, especially a cabinet minister should say.

He is also possessed with an alarming candor, a willingness, almost eagerness, to talk about things he should not mention. He was persuaded to appear on the television program This Hour Has Seven Days last November, failing to foresee the political consequences of confirming Spencer's identity during the telecast.

And in the interview and press conference he exhibited the same candor in talking about the Munsinger case. He had not intended to discuss the case at the press conference, but whereas most politicians would have refused — on the ground of national security, if necessary — to answer questins, Mr. Cardin, in his desire to please, attempted to answer.

He began by suggesting reporters refer questions to Mr. Diefenbaker, but ended by confirming what had previously been no more than rumor.

Mr. Cardin may also have exhibited a poor understanding of the nature and function of Parliament. He insisted repeatedly that tactics that are fair for the opposition are fair for the government, that if what he did on the Munsinger case was blackmail, it was also blackmail when the Tories attacked him on the Spencer case.

This is not necessarily so.

Cannot Use Same Tactics

In the parliamentary system, the role of the opposition is the role of the critic, inquisitor or attacker. The government, which combines both legislative and executive powers, must fight for its programs but it cannot use the same tactics as the opposition. When a cabinet minister speaks — as Mr. Cardin did in accusing Mr. Diefenbaker of mishandling the Munsinger case — he speaks for his department and the government.

In the Munsinger uproar, Mr. Cardin probably meant to speak only for himself, but because of his position he spoke also for the government, the law officers of the Crown and, to some extent, for the judiciary.

What will happen to Mr. Cardin? "I have no definite plans to retire, but I hope some day to be able to go home and live a normal life like the rest of you," he told reporters.

It promises to be a while before Lucien Cardin will be able to forget events in Ottawa and live a normal life.

Canada was not the only country embarrassed by a "sweet life" scandal.

In stern, communist Cuba Premier Fidel Castro fired long-time aide Maj. Efigenio Ameijeiras for his extracurricular activities. He faces a court martial.

A number of other Cuban officials were arrested for excessive wining and dining at foreign embassies in Havana.

At the same time Castro denied reports of growing unrest and subversion in his regime.

He also made fresh accusations against his former allies, the Chinese, and said Cuba was prepared to make a complete break in relations with Peking. The present feud started at the beginning of the year when Castro charged China had broken an agreement to supply Cuba with 250,000 tons of rice.

The British election campaign moved into its final two weeks with French President Charles de Gaulle indirectly supplying much of the fireworks.

De Gaulle let it be known that British membership in the European Common Market, which he previously blocked, would now be welcome.

The Labor party, deeply divided over the advantages of ECM membership, gave an equivocal reply. The six-nation trading bloc would first have to accept the British method of agricultural subsidies, said Chancellor of the Exchequer James Callaghan.

Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart also pointed out that France's recently - announced intention of withdrawing from NATO has changed the situation which existed when Britain made a bid for ECM membership in 1963.

Conservative Leader Edward Heath said he welcomed de Gaulle's NATO declarations and hoped they will lead to needed revisions in the alliance.

Meanwhile President Johnson was canvassing other members of the 14-member put up a united front against de Gaulle.

'Parliament Contributing Only Nasty Footnotes to History'

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA — The past week must have left many Canadians with the uneasy feeling that our way of life has somehow been violated.

The ethics of our federal politicians were being questioned right across the country, and it was a disillusioning display.

In Sherbrooke, Que., Yvon Dupuis, the former minister without portfolio in the Pearson government was on trial, charged with influence peddling.

Newman

In Vancouver, an inquiry was told at its opening session that Mr. Justice Leo Landreville, an appointee of the federal Liberal government to the Ontario Supreme Court, was handed $25,000 worth of Northern Ontario Natural Gas Company stock in 1957, which eventually gave him a personal profit of $117,000.

In Ottawa, the trial continued of Raymond Denis, the former executive assistant to the minister of immigration, charged with offering a Montreal lawyer a bribe to have him drop opposition to bail for narcotics smuggler Lucien Rivard.

Grotesque Sight

But the real grotesquerie was the sight of a nation of sober citizens glued to their television sets, breathlessly sharing in the pale misadventures of a Munich bar hostess.

This spectacle was hardly made more edifying by the fact that it had been the logical outcome of the deliberate disclosure — five years after the event — of confidential RCMP files on the private lives of Conservative ministers. Or that it had taken place under the auspices of Lester Pearson, a Nobel Peace Prize winner, an avowed intellectual, a hopefully sane force in an insane world, a man who in speaking of the Diefenbaker administration in the House of Commons in March 20, 1961, declared: "The government takes refuge in sensational slanderous statements to conceal its own weaknesses . . . by accusing its opponents of selling the country short, even of playing the Communist game. There is a word for that kind of tactic which has entered into our language and that word is 'McCarthyism'."

Who or what is responsible for this poisoning of our federal politics? Where is the rotting well that has backed up and contaminated the system?

Both Conservatives and Liberals have a simple answer. They blame each other.

Tory Version

According to the Tories, the events of the past weeks are the natural outcome of the Pearson government's mishandling of the nation's business. Having been outmanoeuvered at every turn by John Diefenbaker, the Liberals have now resorted to vicious personal smears, in an attempt to throw the blame for the whole mess on the opposition.

The Liberals unanimously blame John Diefenbaker. One leading Liberal backroom advisor puts it this way: "The whole crisis is the child of the intolerable presence of John Diefenbaker in national politics. Parliament and the nation are victims of his irascibility and irresponsibility. His negativism is a heavy stone dangling from the neck of Parliament; Diefenbaker's very presence causes a government to conduct itself in ways that are foreign to its temperament."

The truth, it seems to me, lies not so much between these two views as in a combination of them.

It seems to be the effect which Lester Pearson and John Diefenbaker have on each other which is causing most of the trouble. Their relationship is, in many ways, like a neurotic marriage. They're tied to each other and from time to time shift roles, now on the defensive, then on the offensive.

Their linking has produced something close to an organic phenomenon so that while they could be great men individually—together they're a menace.

This relationship probably began to evolve in 1956, during the 21 days of the great pipeline debate, which saw the Liberal pipeline bill pushed through all its stages under closure. In the course of that debate, the House of Commons was in effect shorn of its rights and rules which the speaker is sworn to uphold.

On June 1 ("Black Friday") alone, at least 14 Standing Orders were clearly violated by Speaker Rene Beaudoin. It was the Liberals' cavalier treatment of Parliament which set the tone of the 1957 election campaign and the sessions that followed.

People's Voice

John Diefenbaker, elected as the people's voice charged with prosecuting Liberal arrogance, promptly turned the House of Commons from a debating chamber into a court room. It has remained one ever since.

This atmosphere of bitter prosecution and shrill defence has caused the progressive deterioration of the institution and its manners.

(One startling example of current parliamentary etiquette occurred in the Commons on Tuesday. Marcel Lambert, the Conservative member for Edmonton-West, a former speaker, rose to move a motion of protest against "this unholy situation . . . where the events, the pressures and the love of the libido seem to crowd out all else."

(His dignified appeal for common sense was interrupted by Secretary of State Judy LaMarsh, with the crude comment: "Get on with your bloody motion." Hansard reporters cleaned up the lady's language to read "make your motion," but her actual interjection was clearly heard by members on the floor.)

Despite such behavior by their own front-benchers, the Liberals are trying to mesmerize themselves into believing that they could control the House if only they had a majority. They seriously contend that their minority situation gives them the responsibility, but not the authority to govern.

Made to Work

Aside from the fact that the support of Robert Thompson has provided the Liberals with a working majority through two Parliaments, this is a phony argument. Minority governments have been made to work in other democracies, including the United Kingdom where, according to Dr. Eugene Forsey, there were 16 minority administrations holding effectiv power for 32 years between 1834 and 1931.

What's lacking is not a majority, but inspired leadership on the government benches and constructive criticism on the opposition side.

Unless we get both very soon, this nation will continue to develop independently of the federal political machine which is supposed to make it run. Canada's Parliament at present is contributing only nasty footnotes to the history being made in our time.

The events of the week just ended have made even the most cynical members of the House of Commons aware that their power to influence events is oozing away. Like courtiers involved in ceremonial rituals whose meaning has been lost, they grope through a curtain of words, searching dimly for some purpose to their fury.

The Sounding Board

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

Imagine, if you care to, a pollster, with clipboard and pencil poised, standing at the entrance to a shopping plaza.

He—or she—is seeking signatures on a petition. The petition is addressed to the board of trustees of School District X and goes like this:

"As parents of elementary and junior secondary school students in this district, we, the undersigned, request that consideration be given to the formation of speech clinics within the said schools."

How many signatures would you guess a day's polling would achieve? Twenty . . . a hundred . . . five hundred?

Well, I'll tell you my guess. Not one.

Most people would get the cultural collywobbles at the first hint of what was afoot. Many would be mortally offended at the suggestion that their children could not speak their own language.

The poor pollster would be lucky if he himself was not the target of some colorful and well-projected language before the day was out.

You can now file this away in the "kooky-ideas-that-will-never-happen" corner of your wastebasket.

But that doesn't mean that it shouldn't happen.

George Bernard Shaw's Pygmalion has developed—via My Fair Lady—into one of the world's best known and best loved British comedies.

No one—but no one—takes it seriously. Higgins is regarded as the screwiest professor and his metamorphosis of Eliza as the most delicious spoof ever dreamed up by playwright.

* * *

But when Higgins asks, with understandable irritation, "Why can't the English teach their children how to speak?" he has put his finger on a central flaw in the education of all English-speaking people the world over.

Amongst Canadians sloppy diction, ugly vowel sounds, malformed words and grammatical vulgarisms are becoming more and more the accepted pattern of speech.

It passes without a blink if someone is asked how their son is doing at university and replies with "Oh, he's getting along real good."

Idiomatic speech? Maybe. Ugly and vulgar? Definitely.

More and more well-educated people who are public figures and therefore—whether they like it or not—prototypes for young Canada, are rejecting the good, rich dipthong "u" in favor of the hooty, ignorant-sounding "oo" so prevalent to the south.

This, to my mind, constitoots an act of treachery against a beautiful language. There ought to be a statoot we could invoke that at least would put the offenders under bond to mind their "oo's" and "u's" for a substantial period.

But we sacrifice a lot of important things to the golden gods of the South and language maladjustments are just another form of genuflection.

* * *

Of more vital import than the mistreated "u" sound and the slurred short vowels—so that hurry becomes her-ry and swab, swaab—is the fact that we try to avoid altogether pronouncing the consonants.

In fact, the whole purpose of our speaking seems to be to use as little as possible the organs of speech; lips, tongue, jaw, resonating chambers of the head and chest and the bellows of the diaphragm.

Continual complaints over the last few months, from audiences and an adjudicator, concerning mumbling, murmuring and gargling actors, prompted these observations.

But in this day and age it is not only actors and singers who need to articulate and resonate clearly. If this were so then the whole business of speech could be relegated to the drama and music schools and the rest of us could continue to speak as sloppily as we pleased.

But all our young people are potential politicians, club executives, teachers, lecturers or preachers.

* * *

This is a far more talky age than any preceding it and don't show me a microphone and remind me that it is also the electronic age.

For I will tell you that it is the ultimate in poverty of standards and slipshod attitudes to allow electronic projection to do what you are fully capable of doing for yourself.

Not only that, but while the mike may carry your voice to the rafters of the biggest hall, it is also going to amplify the flat and the nasal tones and emphasize the blurred articulation.

The human speaking voice can convey or destroy personality, which is something for us to remember.

What is more of a shock than for an attractive woman to get up and unexpectedly assault us with a colorless or nasal voice?

As Higgins says of Eliza—I quote from memory—"It's her speech that keeps her in the gutter, not her wretched clothes and dirty face."

Nanaimo to Hear Local Symphony

This Sunday, Victoria Symphony Society's 20-piece chamber orchestra, with duo pianists Winifred Scott and Robin Wood and conductor Otto-Werner Mueller, travel to Nanaimo to present a concert in the Wakesiah Secondary School.

Nanaimo Symphony Society is co-operating in the presentation of this concert.

Sunday's trip by the Victoria musicians is the latest in a series of concerts at various Island centres which have been participated in by the full Symphony Orchestra, the School of Music Faculty Trio and the Chamber Orchestra.

In all instances the concerts are made available through a grant from the H. R. MacMillan Family Fund through the Vancouver Foundation.

In February the Trio played at Lake Cowichan Secondary School, receiving co-operation from the principal, O. Paulson, and enthusiastic attention from the students.

Violinist Jean Angers, pianist Robin Wood and cellist Hans Siegrist played in the middle of the huge auditorium with their audience of over 600 youngsters surrounding them, many of them huddled on the floor in the closest proximity.

On March 11, the full orchestra performed at Lake Cowichan.

Robin Wood and his wife, Winifred Scott, played the Mozart Double Piano Concerto.

"Mr. Mueller with his illuminating, often witty commentary had the large audience in the palm of his hand," an observer comments.

Preceding this concert, in the afternoon, the trio performed at Duncan Secondary School with another audience of around 600.

The trio has also played at the secondary school at Milne's Landing, Sooke, where it was greeted with enthusiasm, and on more than one occasion at the University of Victoria.

Negotiations are now under way with the object of repeating the chamber concerts at the end of April in Courtenay and Campbell River. There is already evidence of strong support for the proposal.

Wildlife Film Of Mexico To Be Shown

The last in the winter series of Audubon Wildlife films sponsored by the Victoria Natural History Society will be presented next Friday and Saturday at Oak Bay Junior High.

Naturalist, forester and lecturer, C. P. Lyons of Victoria will present his film Mexican Adventure. Mr. Lyons is a well-known nature photographer and film-maker. Much of his work has been incorporated into programs for television.

For 20 years, Mr. Lyons was an officer of the British Columbia department of recreation and conservation. His work included the development of provincial parks. He instigated the "stops of interest" program along the province's highways and directed the restoration of the pioneer gold mining town of Barkerville.

His field-trip movie of Mexico will show the diversified terrain and climate and the richness of flora and fauna of the southern country.

McCALLUM RECORDS

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—David McCallum, co-star in television's "The Man From U.N.C.L.E.," signed an exclusive recording contract with Capitol Records. His first album will include two of his own songs.

THE SOUND OF MUSIC
Victoria Premiere
Odeon Theatre

More than a year after it opened in Vancouver, New York and other large centres, the most popular musical of 1965 was premiered in Victoria Friday night — and an audience of nearly 1,400 was caught up in its warm enchanting glow.

It is, I think what most of us expected: tuneful, cheerful, romantic and colorful and most exquisitely filmed in Austria's Tyrolean Alps. The tempo is leisurely, the company delightful and the lyrical melodies swell around us in soft soothing waves.

What the film seems to lack is realism. There is too much sugar and too little spice and the behavior of some of the principals, particularly in the dramatic sequences, seemed to me unnatural.

* * *

Nevertheless, it's a charming production and the sweetly-modest personality of Julie Andrews triumphs over all. She sings like a lark and dances like a woodland sprite; enchanting and as wholesome as an Okanagan apple.

Remembering Julie as a child entertainer in England, it amazes me that her true personality has changed so little; yet in all her work there is a professional elegance which may one day rival the late, great Gertrude Lawrence.

In The Sound of Music (as most of us know by now), Julie is a novice in a very musical convent at Salzburg, but too filled with mischief and joie de vivre for the meditative life.

When the Mother Superior (Peggy Wood) asks her why she played hookey to go singing through the mountain meadows, she replies:

"The sky was so blue and the day so green and fragrant I just had to be part of it."

To which the chorus of nuns, their faces wreathed in beatific smiles, respond:

"How do you solve a problem like Maria? How do you hold a moonbeam in your hand?"

* * *

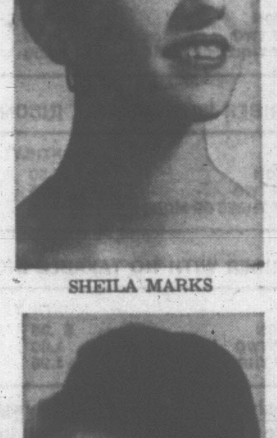
Partly as a penance, the Mother Superior packs the moonbeam off to shine as governess to the widower Capt. Von Trapp (Christopher Plummer), who shares a palatial house and grounds with his seven troublesome but always adorable children.

Maria, of course, is appalled by the captain's iron-fisted discipline. She coddles the youngsters, teaches them to sing and, one very stormy night, packs them into her bed and quiets their fears with These Are My Favorite Things.

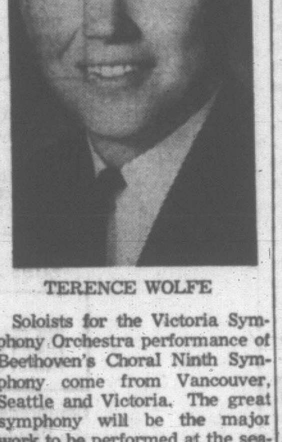
The Rodgers and Hammerstein melodies are, of course, the backbone of the show and one of the high points is the Do-re-mi sequence sung by Julie and the children as they skip and frolic through the lovely old town of Salzburg.

Maria's wedding to the captain is costumed and photographed on the grand scale and the choral, organ and orchestral music are superb.

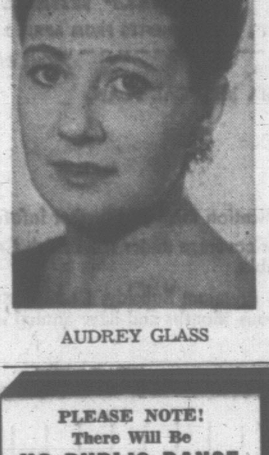
When an audience applauds at a movie show, you know they have enjoyed themselves and that's what they did Friday night.



SHEILA MARKS



TERENCE WOLFE



AUDREY GLASS

Soloists for the Victoria Symphony Orchestra performance of Beethoven's Choral Ninth Symphony come from Vancouver, Seattle and Victoria. The great symphony will be the major work to be performed at the season's final pair of concerts, April 3 and 4. Sheila Ann Marks, soprano, is on the faculty of Seattle's Cornish School, has been soloist with prominent eastern organizations and the Seattle Symphony. Terence E. Wolfe, tenor, Vancouver, was the 1965 winner of the San Francisco Opera regional auditions. Mezzo soprano Audrey Glass of Vancouver was second place winner of this year's Metropolitan Regional auditions in Seattle. Bass soloist will be Victoria's Stanley Martin. Otto-Werner Mueller will conduct the ensemble including Victoria Choral and Amity Singers.

Uvic Choirs Plan Moving Performance

A novel concert arrangement whereby both the musicians and their audience move from church to church hall midway in the program as liturgical music gives way to secular, is planned by University of Victoria choirs.

The concert takes place Monday at 8 p.m. in St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay, and in the adjoining hall.

The 90-voice choir and the small 22-voice Motet Choir are under the direction of Charles Palmer, who has chosen some very beautiful choral works lending the program a rich variety.

In the secular half there will be Madrigals by Monteverdi and some by English composers, two French chansons, a group of Brahms' Liebeslieder Waltzes and songs by Delius and other English composers.

Two motets by Bruckner for mixed chorus, organ and three trombones, and a fine unaccompanied anthem by Weelkes, Hosanna to the Son of David, will be highlights of the sacred music section.

The small choir will sing two selections from the gallery in the church.

There is no admission charge but a collection will be taken during the evening.

BALLET CLASS TO RETURN

Special summer classes in ballet will again be conducted in Victoria this summer by the Royal Ballet's great artist, Franklin White.

Sponsored by the Women's Committee of the Victoria School of Music, the sessions will be held from Aug. 8 to Sept. 2.

Mr. White, who has recently been appointed artistic director with Beth Lockhart, of the new Ballet British Columbia company, is keenly looking forward to working again with some of the outstanding students who were members of his classes last summer.

ORCHESTRA HONOR FOR 7

Young musicians of Victoria have done it again.

For the second successive year they have put this city in the lead among Canadian cities represented in the National Youth Orchestra.

The 1966 NYO, which is to have its biggest tour year ever, will have seven Victorians in its ranks.

They are Vivienne and Norman Abbott, 1239 Oliver Street; Mark Butler, 2684 Seaview Road; Elizabeth Gahn, 419 Cook; Veronica Milton, 302 Moss; Merlin Naduriak, 1264 Gladstone, and John Larsen, 414 Mary.

Altogether 11 British Columbians were chosen following auditions. The other four are from Vancouver and Kamloops.

Seven Victorian's were also chosen last year, which meant that on a per capita basis, Victoria had the largest representation in Canada.

Last year 106 were selected from across Canada. This year there will be 102 from eight provinces. Average age of the young musicians is 19.

Training sessions begin in Toronto, Aug. 1, and after concerts in Stratford and Montreal the orchestra leaves for Europe.

In England it will perform at Croyden, near London, and will then travel on to the Edinburgh Festival.

On the Continent the NYO will play three concerts in France and one in Berlin.

Conductor for the tour will be Walter Susskind.

Australian Film Proceeds To Aid Scholarship Fund

A film on Australian wildlife with a talk by Australian trade commissioner Harold C. Sargent will be given here to benefit the Freeman F. King scholarship fund.

The film, which features birds and animals "Down Under," will be shown April 1 and 2 at 8 p.m. at Oak Bay Jr. Secondary school.

No admission will be charged, but donations will go to the scholarship fund established by the Victoria Natural History Society to honr the well-known local naturalist.

The scholarship goes to a student who will attend the University of Victoria to prepare for a career in the natural history sciences.

At present about $500 is needed to keep the scholarship fund going.

THE IN-CROWD

The well-known trio, The New Beats, will be appearing in Victoria April 9.

In case anyone is slow to identify the group, latest hit song recorded by the New Beats is Shake Hands and Come Out Crying. Songs that helped boost them to the top, however, were Bread and Butter and Run Baby Run.

Don

New Beats have appeared on television's Hollywood A-Go-Go, Where the Action Is, Shin Dig and American Band Stand.

Also appearing on the New Beat show at Esquimalt Sports Centre will be Rocky and Friends from Seattle, R.P.M. and the Regents is the local group taking part.

The Regents will be featuring the newest member of their group, singer Inger Heggelunt who has only made two or three public appearances with the band to date.

* * *

Talking with Don Gallucci of Don and the Good Times last week, I asked him which song had given his group its big start.

"Little Sally Tease," Don replied but he added that their latest release, Sweets for my Sweet looked like doing equally well.

They have just finished an album called Hit Makers, which they made with some other groups but expect to be working on an album of their own shortly.

It was nice to hear Don say that he and the rest of the group had enjoyed the Canadian better than most American audiences.

Jim

Jim Valley of the Good Times told me he had been approached by Paul Revere and the Raiders to play lead guitar, but turned them down for one simple reason — "I think we are just as good as the Raiders. But I took it as a compliment just the same."

In case you hadn't heard, the recording by Bobby Faulds and the Strangers, Walkin' Away, is selling in every record store in Victoria right now.

The song was written by Bobby and the flip-side, When My Baby Says Good-Bye, is the creation of Wes Chambers, sax player for the Strangers.

Blackcats will play for a sock dance at the University of Victoria next Friday . . . Jeff.

TWO LITTLE PIGS confer on their acting roles in up-coming Bastion Theatre productions. Margaret Martin wears her Three Little Pigs outfit which she feels will help her to get the inside track with Peter the Pig on how to play her role in the coming revival of the children's theatre play. In turn, Peter is getting tips from Margaret on how to put over his role in Three Parts Benedict, the new Canadian play in which Margaret will also appear at McPherson Playhouse, Friday.

'Little Pig Sue' Takes Role In Play by Local Writer

Banff Summer School of Fine Arts scholarship winner, Shakespearean Queen, and a little pig — a few of the highlights of Margaret Martin's stage career.

Many times a festival award winner, she is one of Vancouver Island's best-known and most respected actresses of professional calibre.

With St. Luke's Players, she won the best actress award in the Dominion Drama Festival Regional, in the role of Sister Josephine in High Ground, and also for the role of Marianne Cabrol in The Calf Before the Hearse in the South Vancouver Island One-Act Festival.

With Tony Nicholson's Intimate Stage, she was named best actress in both the South V.I. One-Act Festival and the B.C. finals, for her portrayal of a 94-year-old woman in The Chairs.

In the avante garde play The Hole, with the Victoria Theatre Guild, she won best supporting actress awards in the One-Act Festival and B.C. finals.

With Bastion Theatre, Margaret has appeared in The Inspector General, Three Little Pigs, Dark of the Moon, Life with Father, The Wizard of Oz, and The Red Shoes. She will be seen as the Witch in Hansel and Gretel (touring Vancouver Island schools before and after Easter, and playing at the McPherson during the Easter holidays).

Two summers (1952 and 1955) were spent as a scholarship winner at the Summer School of Fine Arts in Banff.

CHILDREN'S PLAY

Three Little Pigs, in which she played Little Pig Sue, was one of Bastion's most popular children's productions. It will be revived this summer at the Butchard Gardens.

Meanwhile, Margaret and her porky friend are both in Patrick O'Neill's comedy Three Parts Benedict, premiering at the McPherson Playhouse March 25.

Appearing with them are Harry Hill, John Drean, Robert Price, John Heath, Ian McIntyre, Bronwen Palfrey and Nancy Watt.

Three Parts Benedict is directed by Peter Mannering.

Intimate Setting of Lounge

Stage settings designed by well known artists Barbara Burns and Peggy Walton Packard will suggest the fireside of the Oak Bay Beach Hotel lounge, for the Norma Macdonald Memorial Concert at McPherson Playhouse, March 28.

The setting will have nostalgic memories, for all those performing have played in the intimate setting of the lounge when Mrs. Macdonald owned the hotel.

Business houses and individuals are volunteering assistance of all kinds to ensure expenses being kept to a minimum. Proceeds of ticket sale and donations will go to the fund to purchase a memorial full concert grand piano.

Latest to add their names to the cavalcade of Victoria's finest artists who will pay homage to Mrs. Macdonald's memory, are the Abbott family — Vivienne, violin, Jocelyn, piano, and Margaret, soprano; Sylvia Hosie and Pamela Trueman; Al Denoni; Irene Henderson; Bill Hosie; Patricia Wiekes, and the Sons of Norway folk dancers.

Tickets are available at McPherson Playhouse and donations to the fund can be sent to the Victoria School of Music, 615 Pandora Avenue.

LOOKING AROUND AT ART

By ROBIN SKELTON

Dublin Print-Makers in Fine Show at Uvic Gallery

The Dublin Graphic Studio was founded four years ago.

A number of Irish artists rented the basement of a lovely Georgian house in Upper Mount Street, Dublin, raked together the necessary equipment, and, supported by a small number of sponsors, organized a studio where the crafts of print-making could be studied and practised.

Skelton

From these small beginnings the Graphic Studio has developed into a society of real importance, and has now achieved international recognition.

During 1965 it mounted an exhibition of the work of its members in Hamburg, and carried off the first, second, fourth, fifth, and sixth prizes in the Italian Institutes competition for illustrations to Dante's Divine Comedy.

It has launched a scholarship program, and, of the 22 artists now working in Mount Street, four hold scholarships provided by the organization.

Every working day finds a minimum of 10 artists laboring together in the Studio.

These are a few of the facts behind the exhibition of lithographs and etchings by members of the Dublin Graphic Studio which is currently being shown at the University of Victoria Gallery.

This is the first time the Studio's work has been exhibited in North America, and we are fortunate to have this opportunity of seeing how a small number of industrious and dedicated artists, in a community not much larger than our own, have succeeded in such an imaginatively co-operative venture.

The quality of the work on display is of a high standard, and of considerable variety.

Patrick Hickey's Three Horses has a monumental quality rarely to be found in prints, and the balance of different textures in his Still Life with Ginger Jars is totally convincing.

His Still Life with Pewter Jug, on the other hand, suffers somewhat from a number of rather blurred areas. It is clear that he is still exploring, and still developing.

In many of these works one can detect both assurance and exploratory hesitance. Charles Harper's dramatic Jesuit Preacher and Cinema Screen are full of linear force, but handle details clumsily from time to time.

Ann Yeats' Birds in Autumn and Bird Escaping are impressive in their simple, yet profound, handling of a highly poetic theme.

The birds are archetypal, vivid, disturbing, and the composition has that apparent simplicity which can only stem from absolute sureness of vision.

Her Dog in the Night, however, though equally romantic, is less completely sure of itself. The textures are interesting without being authoritative. I feel, again, that more is to come, and that Miss Yeats is steadily developing her techniques as well as her vision.

The word vision comes often to my mind in surveying this show. Caney Clarke's Mollusc's World and Una Cradock's Viking Ships both indicate strong symbolic feeling.

The former is delicate, lyrical, decorative; the latter is strong, forceful, even ominous, reminding me a little by its bold dramatic simplicities of the work of the late Elizabeth Rivers.

In Mr. Clarke's and Miss Cradock's work I detect a desire to mythologize, to rearrange the visual world in terms of symbolic structures.

This tendency is also noticeable in the work of Jan de Fouw, whose Sound of a City and In the Pool, though less confused than M. Lydon's Torso, have a similar turbulence and drama.

Drama is very much a part of these artists' vision. Brian Bourke's figures are aggressively vivid and vital, and John Behan's two works use both form and color with almost theatrical power.

I myself, however, have a weakness for the work of Leslie MacWeeney. Her Girl at the Window is unpretentious, sensitive, moving. It is a piece of superb understatement, and, like all Miss MacWeeney's work, has a quality of grace and compassion which few artists can accomplish.

It is hard to portray sentiment without overbalancing into sentimentality, but Leslie MacWeeney has managed it.

Pauline Bewick has managed it also in her Lion, though only just. Her Cat in a Wood is less successful, though her Drunk Man reveals enormous potentialities.

This is, indeed, a show revealing the artists potentialities as often as it reveals their achievements. Dublin and Ireland must be proud of these young artists, and I advise collectors to visit the University Gallery with investment in mind.

These are people worth supporting.

First Of Many To Come

ASPECTS OF THE EIGHTEENTH CENTURY. Edited by Earl R. Wasserman. The Copp Clarke Publishing Co. Ltd., 346 pages. $7.00.

Reviewed by W. G. Shelton University of Victoria

Johns Hopkins University originated its annual Humanities Seminars in 1963 with a series of lectures devoted to the 18th century, delivered by outstanding scholars, and now made available in printed form.

The variety of topics considered makes this book valuable to students in many fields as well as to the interested layman.

Naturally any collection of this type is bound to be uneven but the contributions, on the whole, are satisfactorily thought-provoking.

CRITICISM

The major criticism one could make would concern the lack of biographical notes or even identification of the authors.

George Boas leads off with "In Search of the Age of Reason," a search which turns out to be fruitless. For every rationalist in the Age of Reason, Boas can find a sentimentalist, a religious mystic, or practically anything else.

Isaiah Berlin, on the other hand, accepts the usual characterization of the Enlightenment which sees it as culminating in the French Revolution.

True to form, Alfred Cobban refuses to accept the French Revolution as the outcome of the writings of the philosophers.

HARD TO ACCEPT

There is merit in his insistence that the Revolution was the opposite of what men like Voltaire would have wanted, but his rejection of the influence of Rousseau is harder to accept.

In his chapter on 18th century music, Edward E. Lowinsky makes the most determined effort to relate the general temper of the age to one of the arts.

He claims that the shift in popularity from the complex contrapuntal forms of Bach to the use of one dominant melodic line had ideological significance.

Characteristically, Rousseau was in the forefront of the revolution, this time as a composer. His opera, "Le Devin du village," was written on behalf of the common people and the simple, heartfelt music they could understand.

There are other sections on science, poetry, the novel, art and education, most of which contain food for thought.

Judging by the results, of the first one, the Johns Hopkins Humanities Seminars should have a long and useful life.

MANY SIDES OF BOBBY

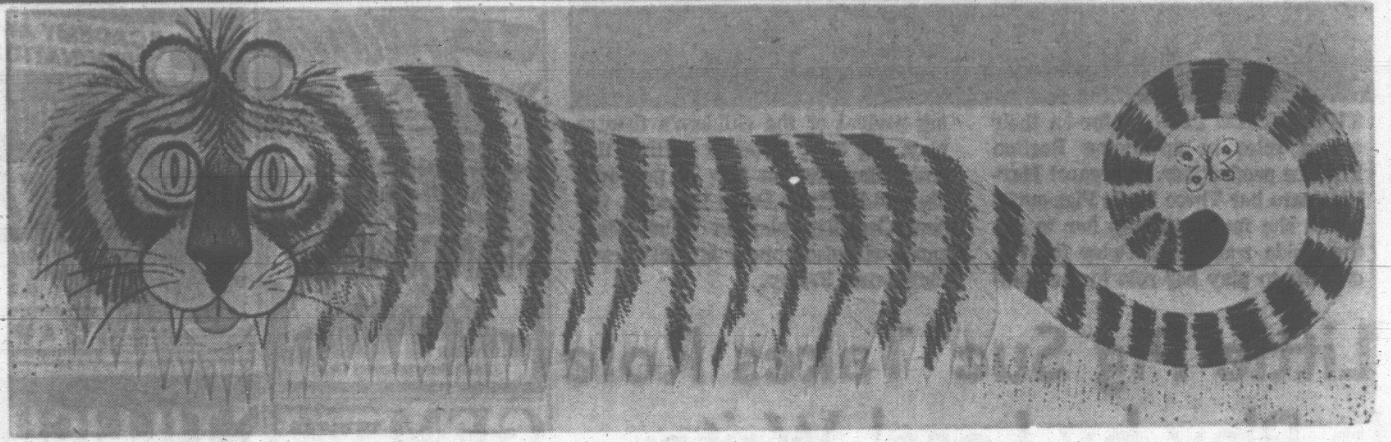
Bobby Hull: by Jim Hunt. Ryerson Press: 105 pages; $3.95.

There are many sides to Bobby Hull.

And author Jim Hunt has done a creditable job of ferretting out some of the questions of what makes Bobby skate.

There is Bobby the dynamic hockey player who last weekend set an NHL scoring record at 27 years of age—he now has 53 goals—his disarming personality; astute business entrepreneur, and the family man to whom hockey is a means to an end—peaceful retirement on his farm raising cattle.

For the rabid hockey fan or just the Saturday night addict, Jim Hunt's book is well worth reading.



"A Tiger is what this thing ain't . . ." Illustration by Colette MacNeil for George Bain's award-winning book.

Leacock Medal Awarded for Animal Rhymes

An associate editor of the Toronto Globe and Mail, George Bain, has been awarded the 1966 Stephen Leacock Memorial Medal for Humor.

Widely known as a witty columnist, and author, Mr. Bain has been awarded the honor for his book, Nursery Rhymes to be Read Aloud by Young Parents With Old Children.

Published last fall by Clarke, Irwin and Company, Toronto, it uses the alphabet as a chain upon which to dangle delightful commentaries about animals all over the world, couched in a humorous verse style that sugar-coats basic facts concerning them.

Imaginative and equally humorous illustrations decorate the book, the work of Colette MacNeil.

Mr. Bain's previous book was a witty recounting of his adventures as a roving correspondent for the Globe and Mail in Washington, London and Ottawa, entitled I've Been Around and Around and Around and Around.

Navy Earns Tribute In Book

1966 NAVAL REVIEW, edited by Frank Uhling, Jr., Annapolis, United States Naval Institute, 1966. Maps. Photographs. $12.50.

This beautifully published volume, abounding with clear, sharp, full-paged photographs showing the United States navy in its various roles, is packed with information relating to the navy of the past, present and future.

There are essays, 11 in all, covering a variety of areas of interest to all naval men. "Submarine against Submarine" by Capt. F. A. Andrews, "The Maritime Strategy of Great Britain" by Vice-Admiral Sir Peter Gretton and "Foreign Policy and Sea Power" by Dr. G. F. Muller give some idea of the topics discussed.

Four appendices include "Naval and Maritime Chronology," "Sea Power, July 1964-June 1965, A Commentary," "Blue-Water American Merchant Ships, 1947-65" and "U.S. Defence Program, 1966-1970."

This is a valuable book, published for naval personnel, and contains much which would interest officers in the Royal Canadian Navy.

Quebec Isolation Slowed Canada Early War Effort

IN DEFENCE OF CANADA, VOL. II, APPEASEMENT AND REARMAMENT by James Eayrs.

University of Toronto Press. 261 pages. Illustrated. Index. $6.95.

Reviewed by Dr. R. H. Roy

The second volume of Professor Eayrs' work on Canadian defence policy deals with the period from 1933 to 1940. This era starts with Canada in the depths of the depression, and consequently intent on solving its economic and social problems.

The Canadian armed forces, already suffering from fifteen years of neglect, were at their lowest ebb since the 1890s.

There were no modern guns, tanks or aircraft; militia officers and men turned most of their pay over to their regiments to keep them operative; and such work as was done to airfields and barracks was a result of single unemployed men — "the Royal Twenty-Centers" — working under governmental direction.

DEFENCE POLICY

Aside from a small arms factory, there was no munitions manufactured in Canada.

Equally important was the attitude of the Canadian government, that is, Mr. Mackenzie King, towards defence policy.

As Dr. Eayrs points out, King was primarily interested in domestic affairs, and of these none was more important than national unity.

The isolationist sentiment in Canada was strong, especially in Quebec, and Quebec was a Liberal stronghold.

It followed, therefore, that King was unwilling to commit Canada either to action by the League of Nations or by the empire and commonwealth when it came to taking a firm stand against either Mussolini or Hitler.

King was a politician to his fingertips, and no one realized more than himself that his power rested on votes.

NOT DYNAMIC

No matter how much one might condemn his extreme caution and lack of dynamic leadership with the benefit of hindsight, there is no denying that most of the country felt much as he did.

Canada's slow rearmament pace after 1937, and the quickening increase in strength in 1939, is exceptionally well described in this volume.

Dr. Eayrs' access to hitherto unpublished material in the Mackenzie King collection throws new light on Canadian defence policy. There is much yet to be written, and even in this account — the best so far — there are gaps.

Appeasement and Rearmament should be in the "must read" category for those interested in Canadian history. Service personnel will find it fascinating. It should be on their bookshelves too, along with Liddell Hart's Memoirs.

He Was Born Cabotto And Travelled Blotto

CENTENNIAL TALES AND SELECTED POEMS, by Watson Kirkconnell, University of Toronto Press (for Acadia University), 530 pp., $7.95.

Reviewed by R. G. Lawrence

The appeal of this anthology of poetry depends on the reader's taste much more than do most volumes of the kind.

If his tastes run to rather old-fashioned poetry, with an emphasis on narrative, most of the poems having a regular form and some kind of rhyme scheme, then there is much here that is pleasurable and rewarding.

If, on the other hand, the reader is impatient of conventional poetic formats and rhymes, he may develop early a sharply critical attitude.

MAY SQUIRM

Whatever one's degree of tolerance of rhyming poetry, even by this distinguished scholar and President Emeritus of Acadia University, the most kindly disposed reader may squirm at some of Dr. Kirkconnell's choices of rhymes.

Perhaps the most memorable rhyme of the kind is this:

> John Cabot was an Englishman—in Genoa born Cabotto,
> When of his voyages we read, it seems that he was blotto.

One might accept the rhyming "teepee-sleepy-creepy" in exigent circumstances, but what is one to say of "window-Hindu-skin do" or "fine as-Minas" in apparently serious poems?

These poems incorporate many similar ineptitudes, reinforced by an uncomfortable combination of intrusive scholarship and bad taste (in a poem about Nova Scotia the author writes, "And in Dartmouth there are cultured Hottentots").

PROLIFIC WORK

Unquestionably there is variety in the hundreds of poems published here; Dr. Kirkconnell's prolific work encompasses serious poetry, most often on the subject of death, several quite funny parodies of well-known poets, and many narrative poems.

The rewarding section "The Flying Bull and Other Tales" consists of sixteen story poems (originally published in 1940), most of them tall tales in the Paul Bunyan tradition, with a few that concern romance and tragedy.

The flying bull is a huge, whisky-drinking beast which survives a hundred-mile journey via tornado, and "The Trapper and the Bears" tells of a trapper who endured a minus 98-degree freezeup in northern Ontario by sleeping with two hibernating bears.

PASSAGE OF TIME

The volume ends with 117 pages of poetry translated by Dr. Kirkconnell from 49 different languages or dialects. Most of the poems deal rather vaguely with the passage of time, sorrow, and death.

The originals of these poems are difficult for a reviewer to come by; thus it is impossible to say whether or not the translations reproduce the tone or thought of the writer, yet does seem remarkable that almost all of these foreign poets write in couplets or alternating rhymes.

Cartoons To Delight Housewife

BROOM, BRUSH AND BUCKET by Peter Whalley; Ryerson Press, 1966; 100 pp.; illustrated; $3.50.

In 1861, a young English woman named Isabella Beeton wrote her renowned Book of Household Management. It was an immediate success which she followed up with two others — Everyday Cookery and Housekeeping Book and Dictionary of Everyday Cookery. Mrs. Beeton's books made her famous, and as late as 1958 a much revised edition was published.

Mrs. Beeton, of course, wrote for an era when both families and houses were large and servants were cheap.

Mr. Whalley has seized on the idea of how her advice of a century ago might be interpreted today. In a series of hilarious cartoons, each based on an excerpt from her book, he has produced a delightfully humorous book which housewives old and young will enjoy.—R.H.R.

Historical Romance Humorous, Convincing

FREDERICA by Georgette Heyer. London, Bodley Head, 1965. $4.75.

Grant McOrmond

Georgette Heyer's latest novel is written in the tradition of her other thirty-two historical romances. Set in Regency London, it tells of the adventure of the Merriville family.

The eldest, Frederica, seeks the assistance of a distant cousin, Lord Alverstoke, in launching her beautiful younger sister, Charis, into society.

Alverstoke, wealthy, bored, cynical, and uncharitable, much to his own surprise, becomes virtually the self-appointed guardian of the orphaned family. He succeeds in extricating the youngest, twelve-year-old Felix, from a variety of escapades.

During the process he finds himself falling in love with Frederica.

In Frederica, as in many of her other novels, Georgette Heyer has managed to recreate vividly and accurately Regency England.

Readers who enjoy historical romances that are humorous, well written and convincing will certainly find Frederica a very enjoyable novel.

'PENINSULA' ADDS WORKING SPACE

It's Worth a Second Look

By PAULINE GRAVES

Here is a kitchen in a small home with ideas that you will want to borrow.

The placement of the built-in range at right angles to the counter, for example, is worth a second look, for this placement leaves more working counter space available along the walls.

With the range in a peninsula, the peninsula top can be made extra wide behind the burners and used for snacks or breakfasts.

Two stools fit neatly below the overhang.

Planned near the kitchen door, the peninsula partially blocks off the kitchen working area and creates an entry, so that the whole kitchen cannot be viewed from the other room when the door is open.

And this is where the wide top comes in handily again, for the overhang can be a relay point when serving dinner.

Division of the kitchen makes the back wall almost a pantry, with a desk and planning centre at one end.

The desk is worth a note, for it is an attractive part of the kitchen.

Four shelves jut out from the cupboard's end.

Left open, they display colorful accessories, and they are only twelve inches wide to allow head clearance.

Instead of a plain wall above the desk, perforated board covers it, the texture a nice contrast to the rest of the room.

It has practical use, too, as a bulletin board.

QUIZZING the GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

Q.—Are the small white grubs around the roots of strawberries and primulas the strawberry weevil? If so, how can I deal with them?—A. M., Victoria.

A.—The description fits the strawberry, or primula, weevil. The recommended control is aldrin, as a soil fumigant. This should be used exactly according to instructions on the label. Also advise you to obtain the bulletin on strawberry growing, from Department of Agriculture, Parliament Buildings, free of charge.

Q.—I put in many daffodil bulbs two years ago. They flowered last year, but while there are plenty of leaves this spring, only two flower buds have appeared. This is most disappointing as I had counted on a good spring display. Can you tell me the reason?—T. A. D., Oak Bay.

A.—Your daffodil bulbs have probably divided into a number of small bulbs which are not yet of flowering size. Give the bulbs some fertilizer now, such as 4-10-10. Dig them in late June after the leaves hav e become yellowed and withered. Replant only the largest, plump, well-rounded bulbs in October, to flower in spring. The smaller ones should be planted in another section (vegetable garden for instance) to grow on to flowering size for another year.

Garden Meant For Pleasure, Not Overwork

There is a wonderful quality about a garden that is completely peaceful and unhurried.

When the gardener finds himself rushing from chore to chore, he should call a halt at once and re-examine things.

How can the garden be simplified? What can naturalized? Which high-upkeep plantings can be eliminated?

It is far better to grow six rosebushes well, with proper but not onerous attention, than to have 26 bushes whose care involves a struggle.

Three peonies can be a great satisfaction, or half a dozen chrysanthemums.

Even one peony and one chrysanthemum, each in a strategic place near the house, can be pure joy in its season of bloom—and no burden in between.

Painting Jobs Not As Bad As They Seem

If one of the "must do" jobs at the cottage this year is painting the floors and porches, don't despair.

There's an easy to apply paint for just this purpose and it's available in a host of appealing colors. Should gaping cracks in the wood mar the looks of the floor, fill them with a mixture of putty and the paint you plan to use.

As soon as the filler is hard and dry, it's safe to start painting.

Aphids Move in On Young Plants

With the warm days, hordes of aphids will move in for a feast on the tender new plant growth.

Be on the watch for them and spray with a contact-type solution. For these, the spray must hit the insect for best results.

BEASTALL ADVISES:

Rose Pruning Top Item for March

The pruning of bush roses is one of the main items on the home gardener's work calendar for March.

The exact time this work can be done depends a lot on the weather, and more so on the location of the garden.

Jack

Close to salt water there is e very chance that frosts will end around mid March but further inland, in the hill districts or in sheltered valleys, it is often mid-April before we can feel safe.

It is better to be a week or so late than to have the last few growths destroyed on a bush that was pruned a little too soon.

If you have never seen a rose bush pruned it would be wise to attend the rose pruning demonstration in Beacon Hill Park on Wednesday, March 23, at 2 p.m.

This is an annual event sponsored by Victoria Horticultural Society with the co-operation of Victoria parks department, and is conducted at the parking space immediately north of the hill and west of the animal pen.

Here you see a rosebush pruned by a professional while describing the procedure, and answering questions. There is no better way to learn the fundamentals of handling roses.

For those unable to attend, here is my regular ABC rose pruning guide.

Before doing any cutting, see that the secateurs are sharp, and the blades clean; and the same applies to pruning saw.

Always study the bush, noting its habit of growth, its shape and whether it needs improving, and estimate what should be left and what could safely be removed.

Then tackle the job in this order:

A. Remove all dead pieces and any twiggy growths smaller in diameter than a lead pencil.

B. Remove any branches which have grown into, or across, the centre of the bush. Cut these either to the stem from which they originated, or to the crown of the plant.

C. With this much wood removed there should be from three to five canes left, reaching about 36 inches into the air. These are now shortened to about 12 or 16 inches depending on the vigor of the bush and whether a large display or a few choice blooms are wanted.

The shorter the canes, the less blooms, but their quality will be improved.

Each cut is made directly above a growth bud, and slanting so that the high point is over the bud itself and the low point opposite the centre of the bud on the opposite side of the cane.

If the cut is too far beyond the bud there will be die-back. If it too close, the bud may be damaged.

Do not get sentimental over those new growths that have been developing for the last two months. Cut to the height suggested whether the bud at that point is growing or dormant.

Do not be afraid to tackle the job. As long as you leave a few buds on the canes you will get new growths and flowers, and that is what you are after.

Clean up the prunings, rake all the old leaves and twiggs from the bed, and burn everything to prevent spread of rose blackspot.

The final step is to spray the bushes and the soil surface with a fungicide. There are sprays designed for this purpose which have been used successfully for several years.

There are also combined insecticide-fungicide mixtures, and some manufacturers put out rose spray kits containing the essential sprays for keeping the bushes free of both diseases and pests.

Check the sprayer with clear water first, to make sure it is operating properly, and be careful not to breathe the fumes from the spray concentrate.

When spraying see that the mist does not drift over your skin, clothes, and particularly keep it off leather boots.

Wash all exposed skin surfaces as soon as the job is finished.

WEEK'S WORK

More cuttings of young growth can be taken now from all the different kinds of pelargoniums, which include the bedding geraniums, fuchsias, chrysanthemums.

Root the cuttings in sandy soil in a sunny window, or in a sunroom.

Rockery plants and other perennials can be put in now. They are in active growth and will make fine displays the first year.

Rose pruning in gardens by salt water, or in other areas free of late frosts can be done now. If frosty period develops over weekend, delay pruning.

If outdoor soil can be well prepared, sow onions and leeks.

The roots of horseradish, rhubarb, mint, sage, thyme, chives and Jerusalem artichokes can be planted.

In poor soils, or those which are exceptionally well-drained, mulching with well-rotted compost or old manure will be of great benefit around all permanent plants.

Some will also need a feeding of a balanced fertilizer scattered or raked into the soil beneath the mulching material.

A Qualified Plumber Is Like a Doctor!

Most people don't realize that qualified plumbing contractors have successfully completed at least seven years of specialized education and training in mechanical theory and practice. Even after acquiring their diplomas, they have to keep studying in order to keep up on the latest developments in architectural, engineering and mechanical theory.

Your plumbing contractor is like your doctor in other ways, too. He is on call 24 hours a day, and he shares your doctor's objective of safeguarding your family's physical health and comfort. And like your doctor, your plumbing contractor is assisted by fully qualified and skilled specialists.

If you have a headache, an aspirin will usually cure it. If you have something more serious, you don't hesitate to call a doctor. That's wise! When your tap is leaking, a new washer will usually stop the leak, but if your plumbing — or heating — problem is more serious, don't hesitate to call a qualified plumbing contractor. That's wise too!

LATE RALLY

Toronto Slide Skids to Halt

By LARRY DWORKIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Industrials appear to have halted their recent slide on Canada's stock markets, making steady gains in the last three days.

At Toronto during the week, however, the industrial index dropped 1.46 to 166.05 a result of sharp falls Monday and Tuesday, recording its fifth consecutive weekly decline.

A total of 20,820,194 shares turned over compared with 18,641,873 last week.

Many observers attribute part of the recent downswing to pressures by central banks in Canada and the United States to keep a tight rein on the expansion of the money supply.

Last week the Bank of Canada raised its bank rate to chartered banks to 5¼ per cent from 4¾ per cent to curb inflationary pressures.

One area hard hit is the construction industry where housing starts this year are well below last year.

LED THE DECLINE

Massey-Ferguson led the industrial decline, falling 2⅞ to 29⅞ on 38,020 shares, partially as a result of the stock selling ex-rights. The rights fell 25 to 80 cents.

Paper issues dropped 2.62 on index to 121.43 when newsprint price increases were rolled back to $5 a ton from $10.

Bathurst Paper was off 1¼ to 22¼, Great Lakes 1 to 25¼, Price Brothers ⅞ to 45⅝, B. C. Forest and Consolidated Paper to 22 and 39¼, and Abitibi ⅜ to 12¼.

Other industrials that took heavy losses were Algoma Steel down 3¼ to 64, Dominion Stores 1⅜ to 22⅝, Imperial Oil and Interprovincial Pipe Line 1¼ to 52¼ and 83¼, and Alberta Gas 1⅛ to 34⅞.

Atlantic Sugar and CPR gained 1¼ to 28 and 62¼, Rothmans 1 to 28⅜ and Wainwright 1.75 to 3.30 on 213,200 shares.

OILS WERE DOWN

Western oils continued down. Banff Oil led the group down despite good reports of the Rainbow Lake discovery in northwest Alberta. The stock retreated 1⅜ to 16⅞.

Canadian Superior, Dome and Husky Oil slipped 1 to 21, 16 and 12⅞. Pacific Petroleum was off ¾ to 11¾ and Central Del Rio to 11¾. Scurry Rainbow advanced 1⅞ to 22.

Speculative oils were generally lower although Mill City climbed 41 cents to 2.11, Spooner and Alminex 20 each to 95 cents and 4.80.

Base metals was the only major group to record gains. Hudson Bay Mining added 1 at 81, Pine Point 1 at 59, Denison and Inco at 40 and 99, and Rio Algom ⅜ at 20. Noranda dipped 1 to 51.

McINTYRE DROPPED

Among golds, McIntyre dropped 2¾ to 89, Dome 1 to 39, Hollinger ¾ to 24¾, Camp-Kerr-Addison ⅛ to 10⅝. Giant Yellowknife was up ⅛ to 12⅝.

In speculative mining, Tribag plunged 30 cents to 1.10; Consolidated Halliwell 21 cents to 1.18 while Coulee rose 20 to 67 cents and Con-Shawkey 11 to 72 cents.

On index, golds were down 1.24 to 166.29, western oils 4.07 to 106.82 and the TSE 1.[illegible] to 156.96. Base metals, edged up .04 to 87.20.

At Montreal, industrials were down 1.47 to 162.82, utilities 1.17 to 148.36, papers 2.63 to 122.97. Banks were up .56 to 121.11. Volume was 5,772,990 shares compared with 5,955,918 last week.

PRICE-FIX SENTENCE RESERVED

TORONTO (CP)—Sunbeam Corp. Canada Ltd. was convicted Friday on two charges of illegal price-fixing in sales of electrical appliances in St. Catharines and Toronto during a four-month period five years ago.

Mr. Justice Campbell Grant of the Ontario Supreme Court reserved sentence to April 1. The company was acquitted on two other charges involving two Vancouver stores during the same period. The dismissed charges involved Army and Navy Department Store Ltd. and ABC Television and Appliances Ltd.

Mr. Justice Grant convicted Sunbeam of attempting to induce Cavers Bros. Ltd. of St. Catharines and New Era Home Appliances Ltd. of Toronto to resell electrical appliances at not less than minimum prices specified by Sunbeam.

Inflation May Force Tax Hike

NEW YORK (AP)—Will a federal income tax increase in the United States be necessary to finance the Viet Nam war and halt inflation?

That was a big question in business and financial circles this week.

Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler said a "moderate" tax increase may become necessary.

President Johnson said he will ask prompt enactment of a tax increase if higher levies are required to prevent inflation.

The joint economic committee of Congress said there was increasing evidence a general tax increase would be needed this year to restrain inflation.

President Johnson signed a bill which will bring the government about $6,000,000,000 in additional revenue over the next 15 months.

The first effect of the legislation is to increase to seven per cent from six per cent the excise tax on car sales and to reinstate the 10 per cent on telephone calls, which had been reduced to three per cent. It also provides for speedups in the collection of corporate and personal income taxes.

Personal income climbed to records in February.

INCOME ADVANCED

The commerce department reported personal income advanced by $4 000,000,000 to $556,300,000,000 annual rate in February. Wages and salaries rose $2,800,000,000 to a $376,600,000,000 annual rate.

The department also said corporate profits increased by $1,750,000,000 during the fourth quarter of 1965 to an annual rate of $75,250,000,000. It estimated national income, including corporate profits, at a rate of $571,000,000,000 for the fourth quarter of last year.

The newsprint price situation became scrambled. Last week Canadian producers initiated a $10-a-ton increase, putting the price in the eastern United States at $144 a ton and in the western United States at $134.

This week one producer announced a $7-a-ton boost and two others announced $5-a-ton increases. Then two other producers who originally raised their prices $10 substituted $5 prices.

Cigarette manufacturers boosted the wholesale prices of most brands 40 cents per 1,000. This will be reflected in a rise of about a penny a package retail.

Western Firms Hold Price Hike

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two of western Canada's largest newsprint producers said today they had no immediate plans to follow a price reduction of $5 a ton announced by Bowater Paper Co. and Domtar Paper in the east.

A spokesman for MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Co. said their price will remain at $134 a ton in the U.S., still $5 a ton lower than that of the eastern producers who cut back their price, and $10 a ton less than those who did not.

Loans Never Made—Witness

TORONTO (CP) — Kenneth Ingo, a chartered accountant, Friday told a royal commission investigating the collapse of Atlantic Acceptance Corp. that its president, C. P. Morgan, was one of three men paid $177,571 by a farm company for loans they never made.

Mr. Ingo said the other two chartered accountants Harry Wagman and William Walton were auditors for Valley Farms and Enterprises Ltd. of Cornwall.

He said that Feb. 28, 1962, the liabilities side of Valley Farms' balance sheet showed three mortgages totalling about $198,000 and an item of $196,391, called directors loans payable. None of this amount was paid into Valley Farms, he said.

When the company went bankrupt Aug. 11, 1965, the directors loans payable account stood at $18,820.

Listing payments from the directors loans payable account, Mr. Ingo started with a $52,247 cheque paid Oct. 10, 1962.

On Oct. 25, 1962, $25,000 was paid the Toronto-Dominion Bank against a promissory note of Mr. Walton's. Five days later $75,000 was paid Mr. Morgan and Dec. 10, 1962, a cheque for $38,000 was sent Mr. Wagman and Mr. Walton.

He said that on June 16 last year $35,000 ended up in the account of Walter Pahn at stockbrokers Barrett, Goodfellow in Toronto.

Mr. Ingo produced a letter to the brokers which said in part: "I am the beneficial owner of the account held by you in the name of Walter Pahn." The letter was signed C. P. Morgan.

Commission counsel Albert Shepherd explained later that while payments to the men totalled more than $177,000 there were some payments made by them to Valley Farms.

Mr. Ingo said the directors of Valley Farms were Mr. Wagman, Mr. Walton and George Blacklock, a Cornwall businessman who never received money from the loan account.

He said, however, that Mr. Blacklock received direct payments between 1962 and 1964. These were shown as loans to Mr. Blacklock on Valley Farms' books to be repaid by him.

He added that all were outstanding at the time of bankruptcy.

Earlier testimony showed Valley Farms owed Adelaide Acceptance $250,000 and Commodore Sales Acceptance $118,000 at the time of bankruptcy. Both were Atlantic subsidiaries.

West Coast Gaining In Trade

SEATTLE (AP) — The west coast has replaced the eastern seaboard as the United States region most important in trade with Japan, a Japanese businessman said.

"Today, Washington, Oregon and California together account for a third of all the trade between our two countries," said Hiro Hiyama, president of Marubeni-Iida Co. Ltd., and chairman of the economic mission of Japan to the United States Pacific Coast.

The mission, a group of two dozen Japanese businessmen and officials, has been touring the west coast since Feb. 28. Hiyama spoke at a Seattle Chamber of Commerce luncheon.

BY GOVERNMENT

Bankruptcy War Declared

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—An all-out war on fraudulent bankruptcies has been declared by the federal government.

SEN. CROLL
. . . fed up

A special squad of investigators and accountants is being organized to track down such frauds in Canada. This is just one of 10 steps Justice Minister Lucien Cardin has outlined in the Commons.

The Senate has given second reading — approval in principle — to a bill tightening bankruptcy legislation. Senator David Croll (L—Ontario) said the people are "fed up" with fraudulent bankruptcies. The bill was sent to the Senate committee on banking and commerce for further study. After being passed by the Senate it will go to the Commons.

The plans for the war on fraudulent bankruptcies as set out by the justice minister, but lost sight of in the sex and security scandals that roared through the Commons this week, were outlined by Mr. Cardin. The 10-point program includes:

AMENDMENTS

(1) Amendments to the Bankruptcy Act which is obsolete in dealing with the modern sophisticated organized crime syndicates. The government bill, before the Senate, will broaden the powers of the federal superintendent of bankruptcy to make investigations and conduct inquiries.

(2) Proposals to cope with problems that come within two jurisdictions. Mr. Cardin disclosed that as early as 1964 the federal government was in touch with Quebec officials, where much of the fraud has occurred.

(3) Audits of the administration of trustees of bankruptcy by the comptroller of the treasury. This step was taken in April, 1964, and proven to be an effective check on the administration of trustees according to the justice minister. It has been followed by prosecutions.

INVESTIGATIONS

(4) Increased investigations of bankruptcies by the RCMP. The number of such investigations climbed from 33 in 1963 to 185 in 1964. They totalled 123 last year and 32 to date this year.

The RCMP has investigated 200 employees of backruptcies since 1963 with the result that 11 trustees have lost their licences and 12 have been cut off from further work. Mr. Cardin said these measures appeared to be having the desired effect because the number of bankruptcies dropped from 5,562 in 1964 to 5,003 last year.

(5) A selection board is being established to examine the qualifioations and integrity of would-be trustees. There will be more careful scrutiny of applicants for licences as trustees including an RCMP examination.

(6) RCMP spot checks of the administration by trustees in cases regarded as doubtful. This step is in operation.

(7) A book of regulations and procedures is being compiled by the superintendent. It is for trustees to follow to ensure uniformity throughout the country.

SUPERIOR JUDGE

(8) An additional Superior Court judge to sit and act exclusively on bankruptcy matters.

(9) Expansion of the federal bankruptcy branch. Four more positions for auditors and two for investigators have been created. The superintendent will have representatives in Toronto and Montreal.

(10) Formation of a special squad of investigators and accountants. Mr. Cardin said that the investigation of bankruptcies is very difficult because it required an extensive knowledge in the transaction of business.

SEMI-BANK CONTROLS

EDMONTON (CP) — Premier Manning said Friday Alberta's Securities Act probably will be revised this year to tighten its regulation of an increasing number of financial corporations or "semi-banks" in the province.

He said in an interview that the number and variety of these firms, which accept money on deposit, has put an added responsibility on legislators and securities commissions to supervise their operation, especially in view of a number of recent failures of similar corporations, notably Atlantic Acceptance.

Mr. Mann said in the legislature, however, that a national securities commission for Canada could result in ovelrapping federal and provincial jurisdictions over securities legislation. If the U.S. experience is a guide, the premier said, it could also mean a tremendous expenditure of time and money by people who would be dealing with it.

He said he thought the public could be best protected through stronger and more uniform provincial securities legislation rather than through any new federal body.

Natal Exodus Completed By 1968

The movement of 800 residents from Natal — a dying coal town hemmed in by steep mountains near the B.C.-Alberta border, will be completed by 1968.

The town will be demolished and a new community built in its place under a federal-provincial-municipal scheme, believed to be the first of its size in Canada.

Acquisition of the land at Natal will begin this year and construction will follow in 1967.

A report prepared for the governments says relocation is necessary because conditions in Natal — the town is covered in coal dust, its air and water are polluted — are "incompatible with modern living conditions."

Social problems include the mass emigration of youth. There is a scarcity of mortgage capital for new homes, investment is limited and economic opportunities are few. Much of the town consists of buildings almost 100 years old.

The town's 800 residents will be relocated in Sparwood, one mile west, in a gigantic moving operation. New housing will be provided, subsidized where necessary.

Natal will be demolished.

Details of the plan, prepared by the provincial municipal affairs department and a Vancouver consulting firm, were jointly released by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell and federal Labor Minister Nicholson.

Mr. Campbell said the $2,300,000 cost of demolishing Natal would be born by the federal, provincial and municipal governments. Ottawa would pay $1,000,000 and the other two governments $500,000 each.

The remaining money would be realized from the sale of various assets in Natal, presumably to Crows Nest Industries Ltd., which has several mines in the area.

WORLD EYES B.C. MINES

Exciting Days of Boom

By STEPHEN SCOTT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tom Elliott picked up a fistful of the story of British Columbia's mining boom.

It was a pile of dozens of business cards, left by representatives of a vast variety of enterprises connected with mining while they inquired about getting in on the action.

The companies are located throughout North America and many parts of the world. They range from machine shops to Japanese exploration firms.

"They came here because they realize there is a big boom on in mining," said Mr. Elliott, manager of the B.C.-Yukon Chamber of Mines. "It's just fantastic the business it's bringing in."

B.C. is providing some of the liveliest mining action on the continent, in the share market and in the field. One enthusiast says the province is becoming one vast open pit.

RICH IN MINERALS

Authorities say the boom is the combination of several factors. The first is that the province — and the Yukon and Northwest Territories — lie in one of the world's great mineral belts.

Rising industrialization throughout the world created demands for metals, and prices rose. B.C. had never been thoroughly explored. The Japanese spurred exploration by coming in search of iron and copper. Now that country imports about half as much concentrates as does B.C.'s No. 1 customer, the United States.

Open-pit mining was imported from the U.S. to harvest low-grade ores for which tunnelling was too expensive. Under this method, such prosperous mines as Bethlehem and Craigmont, copper properties west of Kamloops in the Highland Valley, came into being. Endako, a $20,000,000 molybdenum mine west of Prince George, also is open-pit, as are others.

Many searchers pore over old reports — the chamber of mines has them back to 1874 — looking for clues to forgotten wealth. These reports are still leading prospectors to "new" fields.

Old reports led to the Endako mine. B.C. Molybdenum is spending $20,000,000 on a property north of Prince Rupert which was mentioned on a 1922 map and in an earlier report. Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. and others abandoned claims at the site of the multi-million-dollar Boss Mountain molybdenum development of Noranda Mines in the Cariboo.

NO LETUP SIGHTED

Those connected with the industry say there is no letup in sight. Mining activity continued almost unabated during the winter, and greater activity is expected in the spring.

It is greatest in the Highland Valley, the Stikine River, Alice Arm and Granduc areas north of Prince Rupert and the Cariboo and Endako districts. To a lesser degree exploration is in progress throughout the province and the Yukon and Northwest Territories, including Vancouver and the Queen Charlotte Islands and some old deposits in the southeast Kootenay.

A report prepared for the industrial development of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority says the Stikine River is one of the most exciting new mining areas in the province. It says that there are persistent rumors that the largest copper body yet found in B.C. or the Yukon has been discovered there.

Vandalism Serious In Access Program

More than 100,000 Vancouver Islanders were admitted to private logging roads owned by five forest companies last year and the steadily mounting use is creating serious vandalism problems.

This was the gist of submissions by MacMillan Bloedel and Powell River Ltd., Crown Zellerbach (Canada) Ltd., and Canadian Forest Products Ltd. Among several other B.C. firms that presented briefs to a special legislative committee Friday.

In general, the public access program launched in 1960 is working reasonably well but its very popularity with recreationists is creating some problems from an abusive minority, the committee was told.

However, none of the submissions advocated closing the roads to the public again.

M.B.P.R. reported 56,861 persons used its 3,016 miles of private road, most of it on the Island, last year. There were cases of theft of chain saws, tools, fire extinguishers, gasoline and other equipment.

"A much more serious result is vandalism which could endanger the lives of loggers," the brief said.

It reported a hunter's bullet kicked a spar tree guy line at Northwest Bay and if the damage had not been discovered before the tree was operated the wire could have parted and employees might have been killed.

In another incident, at Franklin River, a bolt was placed in the swing gears of a shovel loader and if the operator had not noticed it before starting the machinery, flying bits of gear teeth could have cut down bystanders.

MASSIVE LOSS

"We have experienced massive direct loss from fire," the company added.

It said a 1,700-acre fire at Kelsey Bay last September cost $15,000 to suppress and destroyed 27 million board feet of timber. It was caused by a hunter.

"The above incidents are reported to indicate the continuing need for public education regarding responsibilities that are accepted when entering upon lands for recreational purposes," M.B.P.R. said.

Inspiration Profit

MONTREAL (CP) — Inspiration Ltd. announced Friday net earnings for the year ended Dec. 31, 1965, were $782,839, against $951,162, in 1964. J. R. Yarnell, chairman of the General and Mining Services Company said in a statement capital expenditures in 1965 amounted to $44,175,256, an increase of 70 per cent over the 1964 volume.

FOR STADIUM RULING

Board There If Needed

Mayor A. W. Toone told Chamber of Commerce directors Friday he doubts if a centennial stadium arbitration board will ever be needed.

He was referring to a report by chamber president R. J. Bower, who said the contentious issue of a stadium at the University of Victoria — Greater Victoria's gift to the university — was settled by a chamber executive committee meeting between the mayor and Uvic representative Prof. R. T. Wallace.

"I rather suspect the so-called arbitration board will seldom, if ever, be needed," Mayor Toone said referring to amicable settlement of the issue.

Both he and Uvic president Dr. Malcolm Taylor were guests at the directors' meeting in Empress Hotel.

"The university is happy it has been able to play a role in having the municipalities reach agreement," Dr. Taylor said.

The university was pleased to have been given the stadium, "but if the university had to finance it, the project would have been given a much lower priority in development plans," he said.

Mr. Bower referred to disagreement between contributors touching on location and make-up of the stadium management board.

All sides recognized the possibility, if not probability, of "some sort of impasse being reached in some stage of development due to makeup of the board," Mr Bower said.

A special committee sitting as an arbitration board will have referred to it matters bordering on dispute, an arrangement which seemed satisfactory to all, he said, and resulting in signatures to the over-all agreement by all parties.

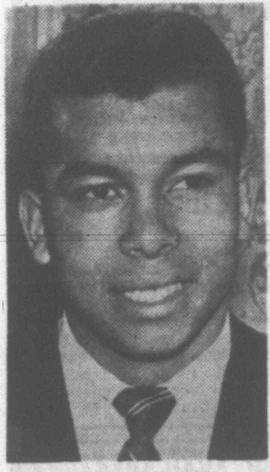
LOOKS AT SPORTS

And now, he said, donning his asbestos gloves, let's open the mail . . .

From Margaret E. Robertson, 2826 Tudor Avenue, some clippings from the Centennial Challenge track meet at Vancouver.



HARRY JEROME

"With the local track season coming up, she writes: "These may be of interest. Bob McLaren and Lyne Eves are Victoria boys."

Indeed they are, m'am, and thanks.

McLaren, running out of Oregon State, tore four-tenths of a second off the men's 300 yards, churning the distance in 32.4 seconds.

Then Eves and McLaren collaborated with Harry Jerome and Mike Evans to help B.C. win the men's medley mile.

Jerome, that's a name to remember. Third in the 1960 Tokyo Olympics, the third fastest human in the world at 100 meters behind Bob Hayes of the U.S. and Enrique Figuerola of Cuba.

Since Hayes and Figuerola won't be in Kingston, Jamaica, in August for the British Empire Games, you know who is favored in the 100 yards?

"But I'm not going to Jamaica," Jerome said recently. "I'm tired of being pulled out of a bag every four years."

Mr. Jerome's point is that nothing is done to help amateur athletes between international events. Asked what he had heard from the B.C. Games committee since 1962, Jerome was explicit.

"Nothing," he said.

Jerome said he wasn't shafting just track and field, but Canada's apathy toward all amateur sports.

"Look at John Russell of Canada's national hockey team," said Harry. "He lost an eye this winter and they held a benefit game in Winnipeg to help pay for his education.

"It was a nice thought and all they could do. But isn't that rather pathetic? I mean, Russell is without one eye for the rest of his life. He's handicapped now whenever he goes looking for a job."

Jerome's solution: Abandon apathy; help those struggling materially; and don't let them down when their day is done . . .

★ ★ ★

From Maureen Griffin, 1470 Rockland, a letter beautifully written on flowered paper (please dear, I get letters on brown paper, toilet paper and other kinds of paper, but never flowered) on the need for Victorians to support their hockey team . . . if they want one.

She writes: "If Victoria fans will not support and encourage the players by attending home games . . . who will?

". . . the Leafs should not only see people but HEAR people.

"We must show Stafford Smythe that the people of Victoria are as deserving of hockey team as any other city.

"The success of this year's team and the future of hockey in Victoria depends on people."

Maureen, there is a Santa Claus. But his name is not S. Smythe.

Mr. Smythe's attitude toward Toronto farm teams is reflected in one word. Money. Or have you forgotten how Mr. Smythe promoted Fred Hucul and Milan Marcetta to Tulsa?

★ ★ ★

From Stuart Keate, former lord of this manor and now high priest at The Vancouver Sun, a clipping of a column by the Montreal Star's Red Fisher.

Fisher wrote at length about Toronto's kindness to Tulsa. Specifically . . . "The Maple Leafs explained that the move was only temporary which, of course, didn't make it right.

"There is something to be said for the transfer of a player to a league of higher classification. Progress is the name of the game, but doing it in reverse is yet another indication of the low esteem major league teams reserve for their affiliates.

"When these things happen, is it any wonder that so many minor league teams suffer from meagre attendances?

"When these things happen, it is the least their major league sponsors deserve."

Publisher Keate scribbled across Fisher's piece: "Are you going to take this lying down?"

Never, sir; never. Standing up, maybe, but never lying down. Usually where I take it is bending over.

And by the way . . . whatever happened to Vancouver's application for a franchise in the National Hockey League?

Seals Keep Hopes Alive By Upsetting Bucks 4-2

(Times News Services)

Guyle Fielder, the old smoothie, has gone on a goal-scoring binge, and that may turn out to be the shoe-horn that is going to squeeze Seattle Totems into the Western Hockey League playoffs.

Thursday night Golden Guyle scored with only 20 seconds of play remaining and salvaged a 4-4 tie with San Francisco Seals.

Friday night Fielder cut it finer.

He scored his 15th goal of the season with only one second left to force another overtime. And a half-minute later, the Totems skated off the ice at Vancouver with a stunning 3-2 victory over the Canucks.

Of his 15 goals, those latest two may be Fielder's most important of the season for Seattle. Friday's victory kept coach Bob Kromm's Totems seven points ahead of the Seals, who still have high hopes of picking off the WHL's fourth and final playoff berth.

The Seals did their part Friday by upsetting first-place Portland Buckaroos 4-2.

The loss left Portland seven points ahead of second-place Victoria Maple Leafs. The Bucks and Leafs both will figure in tonight's activity.

Victoria will play at Springfield while the Bucks visit Los Angeles. Leafs wind up their swing through American League centres Sunday night in Quebec City.

FURIOUS FINISH

Seattle's whirlwind finish must have jolted 3,385 Vancouver fans down to the core. Totems scored all three of their goals in just over a minute of play.

Dave Duke and Ray Brunel gave Canucks a 2-0 lead after two periods and that was the margin with only a minute to go. Then it happened!

Gerry Leonard scored for Seattle at 19:19, Fielder at 19:59, and Jumbo Jim Powers whipped in the winner after only 29 seconds of overtime.

DON HEAD INJURED

San Francisco made the most of an injury to Portland goalie Don Head. Seals, who play Seattle in a Sunday "crucial," pumped in three second-period goals past substitute Dave Kelly and then held off the league-leaders.

Head suffered a groin injury after 15 minutes of play and was forced to leave the game.

Wayne Maxner, Charlie Burns, Tom Thurlby and Gerry Brisson scored for the Seals. Cliff Schmautz, with his 39th of the year, and Chuck Holmes got Portland's goals.

Jose Gonzalez Takes Crown From Fullmer

NEW YORK (AP) — Puerto Rican-born Jose Gonzalez took the American middleweight title from Don Fullmer with a slashing body attack that earned him a unanimous 12-round decision at Madison Square Garden Friday night.

The 25-year-old New Yorker, ranked No. 1 contender by the World Boxing Association, took the play from the Utah boxer from the start with his steaming pokes to the body.

It was the third straight victory for Gonzalez, who has a 31-10-1 won-lost-draw record.

Stringbean Cesare Making Strong Bid to Stay in NHL

CESARE MANIAGO
. . . lifts Rangers

By Canadian Press

New York Rangers have been eliminated from the National Hockey League playoffs again this year but certainly looked like playoff contenders in the last month.

The fifth-place Rangers have had six wins and two ties in their last 12 starts.

A lot of credit for New York's improvement goes to Cesare Maniago, the stringbean netminder making a new bid to stay in the NHL.

Maniago, former Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens prospect, has Emile Francis, Rangers' general manager and coach, thinking he has a dependable goalie for next season.

HAS CONFIDENCE

"Cesare always had the essentials of a good goalkeeper but now he has confidence going for him and it's paying off," Francis said.

The Rangers play the Canadiens while Chicago Black Hawks visit Toronto in tonight's two scheduled games.

Sunday the Canadiens will be at Chicago, the Leafs at Detroit and the Rangers at Boston.

The Canadiens felt Maniago's improvement last Sunday at New York when they peppered him with 40 shots and scored only twice as the Rangers won 3-2. The Rangers have lost six straight this season in Montreal.

"They've got a lot going for them in the pride of winning at least one game here," said Montreal coach Toe Blake. "So we can't take them for granted."

Punch Imlach, Leafs' coach and general manager, will have to get his team up for tonight's game with the Hawks after losing 7-2 to the Canadiens Wednesday night.

The loss caused Toronto defenceman Bob Baun to comment: "When we want to stink the joint (Maple Leaf Gardens) out, we can really do a good job of it."

The last time Chicago and Toronto met, the Leafs were upset 5-1.

HULL CHASING POINTS

Hawks' Bobby Hull will be out to increase his points total. He has 93 points, including a record 53 goals, and is just four points shy of breaking the record of 96 points in a season set in 1958-59 by former Montrealer Dickie Moore.

Should the Hawks defeat Toronto tonight and New York down Montreal, Chicago would move into sole possession of first place in the standings — one point ahead of the Canadiens.

Beswick Unbeaten In National Trials

EDMONTON— Paul Beswick, voted the outstanding wrestler at Royal Roads' Tri-Services College, is creating a favorable impression at the national amateum championships here.

The Victoria-based Beswick was undefeated after three rounds in the Canadian finals.

After drawing with Argyle Rogalski of Regina, Beswick came back Friday to decision Russ Rozyio of Edmonton and Barry Fielder of Calgary in successive matches.

After bulky weight classes have been trimmed to three on a point basis, survivors enter a final round-robin competition. Beswick is given a good chance of reaching the finals in the 154-pound class.

Following tonight's finals, an eight-man team will be chosen to represent Canada in the British Empire Games in Jamaica in July.

Beswick, a native of Beaconsfield, Que., recently was awarded the Michael Phillips Memorial Trophy as the best wrestler at Royal Roads.

Divisional winners included Barry Anderson, Alan McLevin, Dave Martell, Bob Kerr, Dick Powell, Don Timperon and Wayne Harley.

Second Operation On Red Wing Ace 'Quite Successful'

BOSTON (AP) — Defenceman Doug Barkley of Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League was resting comfortably Friday after undergoing a second operation for an eye injury suffered in a league game.

A spokesman at Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary said the surgery Thursday was "quite successful."

Barkley was struck in the eye by a stick. He underwent surgery to correct a detached retina and the second operation was to strengthen the retina.

"It is unusual to have only one operation in these cases," the spokesman said.

Pontiacs Had No Kicks After Ed Tested Boots

The reserves don't seem to have any trouble in filling the biggest shoes in the Esquimalt and District Hockey League playoffs.

It was Ed Hastings' turn to try 'em on for size Friday night.

He came off the Pontiac Chief bench and was the standout as Esquimalt tamed University of Victoria Vikings 5-3 in an overtime thriller at the Sports Centre.

Overtime goals by Pete Dawe and Steve Merriman gave Pontiacs a 1-0 lead in the best-of-five playoff final. Second game is scheduled for Tuesday.

ROUGH BATTLE

Hastings got the call in the second period after referees tagged Ron Griffis, the league's second all-star netminder, with a match penalty following an altercation with Vikings' Jack Blair.

Hastings gave up only one goal, that to George Fuller, but was unbeatable the rest of the way. He made 23 stops. Ted Richter, who replaced all-star choice Ted Hurd in the third and deciding game of the semi-finals, made 27 stops.

Griffis' match penalty could mean a two-game suspension. It marred a rough game in which 18 minors, two majors and the match penalty were handed out.

Canada Faces Finland First

MONTREAL (CP)—The nominating committee for Canada's tennis team Friday announced the team which will play Finland in Helsinki April 29-May 1 in the first round of the European zone of the Davis Cup.

It will be the first time Canada has played in the European zone and if successful against Finland the team will go on to meet either France or Hungary May 15.

The non-playing captain is Fred D. Bolton of Vancouver, secretary of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association.

The players will be Harry Fauquier of Toronto, Keith Carpenter of Montreal, Mike Belkin of Montreal and Bob Puddicombe of Vancouver.

Association president Bob Reid announced today that a 21-team minor jamboree will be staged April 8-10 at Memorial Arena.

Among teams accepting invitations is one from the Montreal Metropolitan League. Also entered are teams from Portland, Seattle, Quesnel, Vancouver, Port Alberni and Nanaimo.

SEEKS NHL APPROVAL

St. Louis Group Deals for Arena

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A St. Louis insurance executive said Friday a group has made arrangements to buy the St. Louis Arena for $4,000,000 in an attempt to bring a National Hockey League franchise to this city.

Sidney Salomon Jr. said his group would buy the building from Arthur M. Wirtz of Chicago and the estate of the late James Norris of Chicago if the NHL acts favorably on the proposal next week.

St. Louis was one of six cities named earlier this year by the NHL to get new franchises in a league expansion. The St. Louis franchise was awarded tentatively on condition that a St. Louis individual or group secure a building.

The Arena, which seats 15,000, has been used by the St. Louis Braves of the Central League.

The Salomon group still must pay $2,000,000 to the NHL for players, a vested interest in the players' pension fund and a share in the NHL's operation.

Vault Mark, Crothers Toppled at Cleveland

CLEVELAND (CP) — An indoor pole-vault record and Bill Crothers' first defeat of the winter highlighted the Knights of Columbus meet, last major event of the U.S. indoor track season, Friday night.

Bob Seagren's 17-foot ¾-inch vault, half an inch higher than his previous best, stole the thunder from a rousing 600-yard race in which young Martin McGrady defeated both Crothers and Tom Farrell of the last U.S. Olympic team.

Crothers, the Markham, Ont., speedster who was running his first 600 of the season after a string of victories over half a mile and 1,000 yards, never threatened McGrady, the indoor world-record holder, who won the event in 1:11, two seconds over his world mark.

Crothers, making his customary late bid, stumbled near the finish and was beaten out for second place by Farrell, indoor half-mile record holder.

POLICEMAN TRAMPLED AT CAIRO

Fans Fight in Streets

CAIRO (AP) — Thousands of rioting soccer fans disrupted a crucial game between two local teams, swarmed out of the stadium and swept through Cario streets battling with police Friday.

Military police fired into the air in an attempt to control the surging mob, which burst across the fashionable Kasr el Nil bridge and headed toward downtown Cairo.

One policeman was trampled underfoot by about 40 of the crowd in the wild rush.

The battle erupted in the 24th minute of the second half of a game between Zamalek and National, two top teams in the Egyptian League.

Zamalek had scored and National's captain claimed the goal was invalid as the scorer was offside.

As the captains and officials argued, crowds in the stands began to hurl stones, bottles and debris on to the field.

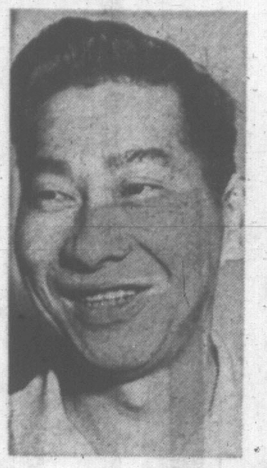
Only Five More Weeks To Grab Rolloff Spots



DOUG LOWE
. . . bowler of week

Pin-busters still hoping for a shot at cash and trophies have only five more weeks in which to win an award in the third annual Bowler-of-the-Week competition sponsored by The Daily Times.

Maple-maulers on southern Vancouver Island lanes finished the 22nd week of competition Friday night and started today on the final five weeks of the 27-week event.

Weekly awards in four divisions — men's and women's fivepins, men's and women's tenpins — are presented each week of the contest to bowlers who post the highest score in league play.

Winners of weekly laurels also become eligible for Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs, scheduled this year on Sunday, May 8.

Waiting for each of the four champions in the rolloffs will be a Times Trophy. Any rolloff champion who is a subscriber to The Daily Times will also receive a bonus award of $100.

Male and female fivepinners will chase rolloff honors this year at Town and Country Lanes, starting at 1:30 p.m.

Tenpinners will begin at 2:30 in their rolloff scrambles. The ladies will shoot for strikes at Mayfair Lanes and the men will be blasting at Aurora Lanes.

STANDARDS ARE HIGH

Finalists will decide Bowler-of-the-Year titles in three-game scratch series.

Completing the list of qualifiers for the 21st week is Doug Lowe, who captured men's fivepin laurels with a 288-268-350 — 906 series in the Foresters League at Gibson's Recreations.

Standards have been high during the contest.

Only three of the men's fivepin qualifiers failed to reach 900 and Don Marshall currently heads the list with a whopping 1,064 series. Best by the distaff fivepinners is the 1,005 tally fired by Dolly Bach.

HELEN TOPS THEM ALL

All the men's tenpin winners recorded scores above 600 and Duncan's Bob Willis racked up the top tally with a 665 series in the 20th week.

Setting the pace for distaff trundlers is Jessie Holding, who racked up a three-game count of 624 in the third week.

DEADLINE MONDAY

Everyone Rates In Times Open

Wayne McDonald's name turns up in the latest batch of entries, so today is a good time to remind the higher-handicapped golfers that the Times Vancouver Island Open is a two-in-one tournament.

In addition to The Times Trophy for open play, the tournament annually sorts out a recipient of the Hugh Francis Trophy, emblematic of the Island's handicap match-play championship.

McDonald, 24-year-old Gorge Vale member, was last year's winner of the Francis silverware while professional Ron MacLeod scored his second success in the open division.

Up to Friday, a total of 135 entries had reached the hands of tournament secretary Leo Derman.

That leaves 25 spots open.

The limit is 160 and it seems apparent that some higher-handicapped golfers are passing up entry because of a fear that they may be left out. Entry preference is given to the 160 lowest handicappers.

DEADLINE MONDAY

Of the 120 entries in Derman's hands, only one showed a handicap over 10.

The deadline for entries is noon Monday.

The tournament will get under way March 27 at Uplands with the 18-hole qualifying round. The 32 low shooters move into the open division and the next 32 low players will campaign for the Francis Trophy.

Six former champions head the list of entries, but MacLeod's name is not yet included. The defending champion said, however, he planned to enter on the weekend.

Other former winners back for another fling include Art Donaldson, Norm Boden, Bill McColl, Joe Briggs, Laurie Kerr and Eric Hibberson.

Dickinson in Lead As Snead Falters

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—Gardner Dickinson is hungry for the $21,000 first prize money in the $110,000 Florida Citrus open golf tournament.

Dickinson, who has had his ups and downs on the tournament-trial, took the lead Friday after the second round with 34-34—68 for a 36-hole total of 137, five under par.

Though Dickinson played good golf, it was the disintegration of Sam Snead's game that gave him a one stroke lead over the field.

Snead went into the second round leading with a five-under par 66, two strokes ahead of the nearest competitor. But his 76 Friday left him at even par for the two rounds with 142.

The field for today's third round was cut to 77 players from more than 140.

One stroke behind Dickinson were Dean Refram and Joe Campbell, with 36-hole totals of 138.

Two strokes off the lead were John Schlee, R. H. Sikes, and Bill Maxwell. Dick Lythle, Tommy Bolt and Gay Brewer Jr., were tied at 140.

Gary Player, competing in his first U.S. tournament of the season, missed the 147 cut, carding a 36-hole total of 150.

Jack Nicklaus had rounds of 70-73 to bunch with six others at 143. Arnold Palmer had a 145 with rounds of 75-70.

Medieval Religion Traced to Modern Cult In 'The Reformation'

The Reformation, fourth in a new series of full-hour special programs called Of Men and Freedom, which explores significant events of the past and their relations to the world of today, will be presented Sunday at 6:30 p.m. on Channel 5.

HOODWINKING the Kommandant, Colonel Hogan gets one of his fellow PoWs to masquerade as a visiting African ruler in a plot to wreck a big diplomatic deal for the Germans and Kommandant Klink, while the "real" prince is in the hands of henchmen, Wednesday at 9 p.m. on Channel 12, in color.

The first program in the series, "The French Revolution," was presented in January, 1965, and was followed by "The Middle Ages," in May, and "The Spanish Armada," in November. "The scope of the 'Of Men and Freedom' series," producer Vicas announced before the first telecast, "Is to outline the roots of our Western Heritage and to provide a portrait of our evolution toward our present traditions and customs."

Consistent with these objectives, "The Reformation," according to Vicas, "deals wiht the great spiritual conflicts of the 16th century, when men, struggling to break away from the constricting atmosphere of medieval religion, evolved a new approach to Christianity, but, in so doing, shattered — perhaps forever — the unity of the Christian Church."

The program is focused upon three men in particular, all religious reformers: Martin Luther, John Calvin and Ignatius of Loyola. The first two were the great architects of the Protestant Reformation; the third, St. Ignatius, the founder of the Jesuit order, showed one way of reforming the Catholic Church itself.

Meet the Press

One of Africa's foremost spokesmen, Tom Mboya, Minister of Economic Planning and Development of Kenya, will be the guest on "Meet the Press" Sunday at 3:30 p.m. on Channel 5.

Mr. Mboya, who arrived in the United States this week for a brief visit, is currently chairman of the United Nations Economic Committee for Africa and general secretary of his country's ruling political party, the Kenya African National Union.

The Draft

KOMO-TV and ABC combine to present a special one-hour report on the draft tonight at 6:30, over Channel 4. Examining the local story of Selective Service will be KOMO-TV's "Viewpoint", followed by a national report on the draft by "ABC Scope."

Producer-moderator Art McDonald takes the "Viewpoint" cameras to the Seattle Selective Service Board — a typical "Weekend Warrior" reserve training session — an enlistment centre — and the Western Washington Induction Centre where all young men, enlisting or being drafted are processed and sent on for training.

Included in the Channel 4 presentation is a rarely filmed personal appearance of a 21-year-old boy before his local south end draft board. The young man, Glenn Sugiyama, is a Seattle University student who has just been re-classified as 1-A. He seeks a deferment, but is turned down.

Heritage

The Rev. G. A. Heimann of Winnipeg, a Lutheran Minister, is the subject of Heritage's third Portrait of a Clergyman to be telecast Sunday, at 3:30 p.m. on Channel 2.

Mr. Heimann came to Canada from Warsaw more than 50 years ago. He was ordained in Edmonton, then in the 1920's took charge of four congregations in the Emerson, Manitoba area.

At the same time, he worked closely with the railways as a representative of the Lutheran Immigration Board. In this capacity he assisted thousands of Lutheran immigrants from Europe to find jobs and homes in their new country.

Twentieth Century

"Woman Doctor in Viet Nam" will tell the story of Dr. Pat Smith's war against disease among the Montagnard tribesmen of the strife-torn nation's Central Highlands in "The Twentieth Century", Sunday, at 6 p.m. on Channel 7. CBS News Correspondent Walter Cronkite is the reporter.

Dr. Smith is an American who has been in Viet Nam since 1959, first at a leprosarium and now as head of a hospital in Kontum, a provincial capital of 10,000 near the Laotian border. The 40-bed hospital serves up to 100 patients. Many of the mountain tribesmen, together with their families, live and sleep on verandas in the hospital compound.

A 1951 graduate of the University of Washington Medical School, Dr. Smith is aided by two nurses from Milkaukee, Joan Blonien and Jean Platz. They treat illnesses ranging from leprosy to war wounds to tuberculosis, dysentery and typhoid.

A highlight of the broadcast shows Dr. Smith performing an operation on a 12-year-old boy for removal of a bladder stone. The broadcast follows Dr. Smith on her rounds (she speaks the local language) and shows Dr. Smith and the nurses opening packages sent by well-wishers in America and flown in by the American military.

ANDY GRIFFITH

Country Hick Has Become Wealthy Star

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Andy Griffith, in the person of Mayberry sheriff Andy Taylor, shuffled over to visit the Gomer Pyle show recently as a guest star.

It figures.

Griffith, you see, is part owner of the "Pyle" show and a personal friend, indeed a benefactor, of that show's star, Jim Nabors.

It's not that Andy is rescuing his buddy in the ratings. Jim is better off than Griffith. The latest Nielsen poll shows Gomer Pyle in third place (behind Bonanza and Red Skelton) and Andy's series in the ninth spot.

Nor does Griffith need the exposure himself. But Gomer, you will recall, was the filling station attendant on Andy's series before joining the marine corps.

CUTE IDEA

The producers and writers of both shows decided it would be a cute idea to have Andy make a guest shot with Jim.

The script was easily concocted by having Opie (Andy's son on his own show) run away to join the marines by paying a visit to his old hero, Gomer.

It's Griffith's first guest shot in the six years his series has been on the air.

And despite his desire to quit after the third season, Andy is preparing for his seventh year on the tube. The previous six have been astonishingly well-rated, usually in the top ten, rarely falling as low as 15th.

It was said his show would nose dive when Nabors departed years ago. But the ratings remained steady. Last year, when Don Knotts pulled out, the wise guys predicted this time, surely, Griffith would founder.

SERIES GAINS

Instead the series gained ground.

Like Lucille Ball and Red Skelton, it matters not with whom Griffith surrounds himself. Viewers obviously tune in to watch the shaggyhaired star and the supporting cast be hanged.

Next season still another supporting character will be introduced. A county clerk played by Jack Dodson.

"There won't be any deputy next year," Griffith said. "But I have to have someone to talk to, to progress the story. From now on I'll be spending more time with Floyd, the barber, and the new county clerk."

Griffith is just beginning his three-month hiatus and in addition to personal appearances, he will move his parents to a new home on the outskirts of Los Angeles.

Little of the country boy remains in Andy Griffith. He's a hip, wealthy television star who calls his own shots and knows where he's going.

Usually he's going to the bank—with sacks full of money.

BIT PARTS: George Maharis has signed to star in "Mister Innocent" for Sam Spiegel . . . Robert Conrad's father, Leonard Falk, will make his acting debut in a segment of his son's television series, "The Wild, Wild West" . . . the Miss Teen pageant will be emceed by the four young "Peyton Place" stars, Ryan O'Neal, Barbara Parkins, Pat Morrow and Chris Connelly.

Alice Comes to TV-Land

Lewis Carroll Classic Telecast Thursday As Animated Musical

Alice in Wonderland, the wonderous children's fantasy classic by Lewis Carroll, will be presented as an hour-long, fully-animated musical special Thursday at 8 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6.

The special, produced by Hanna-Barbera Productions in association with Screen Gems, will present some of literature's most lovable characters "voiced" by major stars of stage, screen and TV.

Talented, young actress Janet Waldo, who lent her voice to teen-ager Judy on the popular cartoon series, The Jetsons, will voice the role of Alice, the heroine who finds herself in Wonderland.

Guest celebrities providing voices for the special include comedian-actor-writer Bill Dana, entertainer Sammy Davis Jr., actress Zsa Zsa Gabor, comedian Howard Morris, the late Hedda Hopper, Daws Butler, comedian Harvey Korman and Allan Melvin.

Special guest stars will be Fred Flinstone and Barney Rubble of The Flintstones cartoon series, playing, respectively, the front and rear ends of the Blue Caterpillar.

Alice In Wonderland is adapted for television by Bill Dana with music by Lee Adams and Charles "Buddy" Strouse, who wrote the Sammy Davis hit musical, Golden Boy, and Bye, Bye Birdie.

Camera Canada

Almost anything can happen at a world's fair. President McKinley was shot at one in Buffalo; the Eiffel Tower arose from one in Paris; and a couple were married in parachutes over one in New York. Practically all of them have been memorable occasions, and there's a wealth of historic films and photographs to prove it.

The best of these have been assembled for a fascinating Camera Canada documentary entitled A World Of Fairs, to be seen Thursday, at 10 p.m. on Channel 2. The program will also include a preview of Canada's rising Expo 67.

Among the highlights of the program: rare film of the infamous belly dance of Little Egypt at the Chicago Fair of 1893; films of the fabulous St. Louis Fair of 1904, which inspired a hit song and a Hollywood movie, and visits to the recent fairs at New York, Brussels and Seattle.

Wayne and Shuster

It's 'Murder, Italian Style' on the Wayne and Shuster Hour when the comics present a wacky spoof of murder mysteries, featuring Johnny as Inspector Martini of the Rome Police, Frank as Rock Handsome, American movie idol, and Paul Kligman as the great director Federico Felluni, of Parmigiano Pictures.

The hilarity takes place on CBC television's Show of the Week, Monday, at 9 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6., in the third of W & S's comedy-variety hours of the current season. As their special guests they will feature the brilliant French-Canadian mime, Claude St. Denis, performing several silent sketches in the tradition of Marcel Marceau; and Betty Robertson, one of Canada's outstanding interpreters of popular songs and ballads.

Absent from the last Wayne and Shuster Hour, the popular dancer Don Gillies returns, with Pauline Ross as his partner.

Dean Martin Show

Host Dean Martin greets the Supremes, Herb Alpert and the Tijuana Brass, Jane Morgan, Imogene Coca, and Jackie Mason to The Dean Martin Show colorcast Thursday, at 10 p.m. on Channels 5 and 8. The Step Brothers and the Krofft Puppets complete the roster of headline guests.

Dean opens with "I'm Gonna Change Everything," then introduces the tap-dancing step Brothers. Jackie Mason's monologue follows.

Imogene Coca, in a skit, sings and dances her way through "People." Dean and Imogene conclude the first half with "When You're Smiling."

Exploration N.W.

"Exploration Northwest" views the scenic Canadian Rockies in "Banff Trail Ride," Monday, at 7 p.m., Channel 4.

Along with 70 trail riders—teen-agers and old timers; seasoned veterans to pillow-in-the-saddle riders — Exploration host Don McCune rode into the Eisenhower massive area near Banff, Alberta.

The tour on horseback searched the high country of Canada for new sights and experiences. They fished in mountain lakes, camped in areas of great natural beauty, took pictures of the famed Rocky Mountain "Big Horn" and even had a brush with a grizzly bear!

N.W. Traveler

"Northwest Traveller" visits the enchanting island of Penang, two miles off the mainland of Malaya; on Wednesday, at 7 p.m. over Channel 4, in "Penang—Malayan Island Adventure," to be telecast in color.

Dick Mitchell, Seattle businessman, photographed and narrates an eight-day visit to this island. Mitchell and Los Angeles attorney Jerry Needle were on an 11-month, around-the-world trip.

Three cultures are represented on this 108-square mile island: Chinese, Malayan and Indian. Its population numbers 325,000 people.

NAUTICAL PARTNERS — Danny Kaye and his guest, Fred Gwynne of the Munsters buy a boat in partnership on The Danny Kaye Show, Tuesday at 8 p.m. on channel 12. Also guesting will be Edie Adams, singer Glen Yarbrough and musical director Paul Weston.

Sammy Davis Show

Sammy Davis Jr., host to Judy Garland, the Lettermen, Frank Gorshin and Teri Thornton on "The Sammy Davis Jr. Show" Friday, at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 5, opens the music and variety series with "Once In a Lifetime" and "With a Song In My Heart." (Sarah Vaughan), originally announced for this date will not appear."

The Lettermen in a salute to composer Henry Mancini sing "Days of Wine and Roses," "Mr. Lucky," "Peter Gunn," "Dear Heart" and "Moon River." Comedian Frank Gorshin does impressions of famous actors that might have been cast as Batman.

'Chinese War Menace Exaggerated'

WASHINGTON (WP) — Communist China's ability to wreak havoc on world order is being grossly exaggerated, two Asian scholars told a Senate hearing this week.

A fallacious assumption has developed that national revolutions can be launched in the world "by buttons pressed in Peking," Harvard Prof. Benjamin J. Schwartz told the Senate foreign relations committee.

This is "a notion based on the same fear of the diabolical cleverness of Communists which we used to direct to Moscow," he said.

China's leaders spend far more time "preoccupied with Chinese domestic issues" than they do "plotting to extend their control over China's neighbors," said China-born John M. H. Lindbeck of Harvard.

He called Peking's leaders "amateurs in the field of international politics."

Their testimony was aimed at cutting down what they regarded as a distorted, larger-than-life-size image of the Chinese menace that is circulating in this country. Committee chairman J. William Fulbright (D—Ark.) sought to show that administration leaders, especially Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara, are creating that impression by their warnings of Chinese "aggressiveness."

Viet Nam "provides the only case until now of the successful adaptation of the Chinese strategy" of revolution for using the "countryside" to assault the "cities," said Schwartz.

He noted that North Viet Nam's Ho Chi Minh rose to power primarily as a nationalist leader, although he was also a Communist, and Viet Nam was bursting out of a colonialist past.

NO MAGIC FORMULA

Peking has no "magic formula which will work everywhere in the "underdeveloped world." and it is primarily exporting "strategy," not revolutions, said Schwartz.

Lindbeck and Schwartz concurred in the concept of "containment but not isolation" for China that had been endorsed by two previous committee witnesses. Both expressed unhappiness about the way the United States got into the Vietnamese crisis, but agreed that there is no easy way out now that the United States is deeply committed.

Schwartz said he was very uneasy about the Vietnamese war; "I am not sure we know how to make over a non-western society." The critical need, he said, is to "create new political structures" there.

Sen. Claiborne Pell (D—R.I.) asked what would happen if the United States should wipe out "all the manpower available to the Viet Cong and North Viet Nam" and they should call for Chinese manpower.

Lindbeck said he felt that the Chinese "would be very cautious about putting their men into South Viet Nam to confront American military forces."

But Schwartz said, "I think there would be a great danger of Chinese intervention in that case."

WANTS TO LIVE IN QUEBEC

Ramsey Seeks Asylum

TORONTO (CP) — Bearded Ronald B. Ramsey, who produced anti-war tapes for broadcast to American troops over Radio Hanoi, says he will travel to Montreal Monday "to join separatist friends" while waiting to hear the result of a bid for asylum in Canada he says he will make next week.

"I strongly sympathize with the Quebec separatist movement," he said in an interview.

At a press conference Friday he said he would be arrested if he tried to return to his home in Los Angeles.

"I am planning to meet with my Canadian attorneys in the near future and write to Prime Minister Pearson to apply for asylum in Canada," he said.

The 27-year-old Ramsey is known in the United States as Granny Goose—the man who tapes anti-war shows for broadcast to U.S. troops in Viet Nam. He said he made his first tape in Canada Friday.

He would live in Quebec if granted political asylum, he said.

"I will challenge the travel ban the U.S. imposed on me when the government revoked my passport," he said.

Last month in Washington the U.S. justice department said it is investigating Ramsey's activities for a possible violation of federal laws governing sedition.

VANCOUVER PROSECUTOR:

Accused to Face Relaid Charges

VANCOUVER (CP)—City prosecutor Stewart McMorran says he has instructed his department that in some cases charges against a man that have been dismissed by magistrates are to be laid again.

McMORRAN
. . . answers complaints

The prosecutor made the statement in a letter to Attorney-General Bonner following questions from the provincial law-enforcement department.

Complaints have been heard at city council meetings that the city prosecutor's office was relaying charges in certain cases which had been dismissed the first time by magistrates because the arresting officer could not appear in court.

Mr. McMorran said that in about 15 or 20 cases out of some 120,000 charges handled each year he does order the charges laid again even though the magistrate had previously dismissed them.

"I feel that unless charges can be re-laid in proper circumstances another stronghold will be lost in the constant battle some of us must continually wage in the effort to prevent the further encroachment of bureaucracy, complacency and insensibilities," Mr. McMorran's letter said.

It also said some magistrates do not understand the problems of administering court cases and erroneously believe that dismissals, on "flimsy grounds," are the right of accused persons.

His letter said some magistrates dismiss a case if the prosecution is not ready to proceed but the defence is, or because a police witness has taken ill at the last moment and cannot appear.

Government Bends To WCTU Wishes On Liquor Laws

VANCOUVER (CP)—The provincial government refuses to relax B.C. liquor laws because it's afraid of the Women's Christian Temperance Union," Ernie Le Cours, Social Credit member of the legislature for Delta, said Thursday.

Le Cours, in a speech to a group of students at the University of British Columbia, said the 1,000-member WCTU is imposing its wishes on 2,000,000 people in the province.

"They cause all the trouble. Its cowardly of the government to bend to the WCTU's demands. And it's hypocritical because Victoria derives considerable revenue from liquor."

He said lots of people who oppose liquor do so because "liquor makes people feel good and they can't stand that."

Le Cours said the Social Credit cabinet sits in an ivory tower, but if the members got out and rubbed elbows with the people in the streets, maybe there would be some changes."

Walkout Ended

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — A walkout by 1,000 construction workers at the construction site of the Northwood pulp mill ended Friday as a dispute was settled over the handling of injured workmen.

COLLEGE CHIEF SAYS:

$140 Top Price Set For Dental Plates

The president of the College of Dental Surgions of B.C. said Friday no one need pay more than $140 for false teeth and anyone who has could apply for a refund from his organization.

But Dr. E. P. Munsie of Vancouver added one important qualification — if the higher price was paid as a result of an agreement between dentist and patient then there can be no refund.

Dr. Munsie explained in an interview a submission he made Thursday to a special legislative committee studying dental mechanics and technicians regulations.

He said the dental college's schedule of fees provides for a standard charge of $140 for a set of dentures.

Anyone who was charged more is entitled to the extra money back "unless the dentist has told them beforehand" that his price was higher.

He said refund applications should be made to the college's registrar. Payments are made out of a special assessment on all dentists.

Members of the committee predicted there would be a run on refunds because they knew of many persons who paid more than $140 for their plates.

Dr. Munsie said that there have been only a few applications for refunds over the years "because the average fee is just about $140 or $150."

Cyril Shelford (SC — Omineca) said the public was unaware that the college had set a scale and would refund excess charges and that was why there were few applications.

He said he knew a person who had paid $1,250 for a set of dentures. Dr. Munsie said if there had been no prior understanding or agreed estimate before the work was done, then that person could apply for return of $1,110.

Further Remand For Accused Murderer

Accused murderer Francis Ottly Wollaston, 16, of 734 Sea Drive, appeared in court Friday on a statutory eight-day remand.

The Mount Newton High School student is charged with the Feb. 10 murder of Linda Crocker, 7, of Woodward Drive, Brentwood.

His preliminary hearing was originally scheduled to begin Friday but was fixed for March 24 to convenience counsel.

MAJOR ATTRACTION

Kremlin Secrets Drawing Tourists

MOSCOW (UPI)—The once foreboding, darkly secret Kremlin is now Moscow's No. 1 tourist attraction.

Moscovites and foreigners alike are entering it freely at all times. Large crowds of Russian and overseas tourists line up before its historic monuments, from which all but the privileged few were barred during the life of Josef Stalin.

The Kremlin, described in official guidebooks as the "heart of this gigantic city," is a vast complex within mighty 15th-century fortress walls. It houses not only the seat of the Soviet government but also some of Russia's greatest historic and artistic treasures.

Stalin, after moving into the Kremlin in the late 1920s, turned the ancient fortress into an impenetrable compound, guarded by guns and an ingenious system of electric warning devices.

TREASURES

By closing the Kremlin, Stalin deprived the public of the view of such treasures as its ancient cathedrals with their unique collection of icons and frescoes, or the armory with its priceless collection of the thrones of the czars and state jewels, crowns and Gobelin tapestries.

Nikita Khrushchev, soon after taking power, reversed the Stalin measure. He threw open the gates to the Kremlin to the disbelieving eyes of Moscovites.

Now Moscow citizens are milling around in the precincts and spacious court-yard of the Kremlin, seemingly without a thought that only a little over a decade ago this was not only forbidden, but also most dangerous ground.

SECURITY DRILL TIGHT

But this newly-won freedom has by no means done away with all the security arrangements of the past.

The Kremlin's government offices still remain strictly out of bounds. Here are the premier's offices on whose domed roof flies the state ensigns, hoisted on Lenin's instructions in 1918.

The stray visitor who happens to wander off in the direction of the governmental compound is quickly called to order by the watchful and ever-present policeman's whistle. But no barbed wire and no machine guns are ostensibly used to block off the "corridors of power."

Alaska Gets Ready For Birthday

Northwest Orient Airlines has named one of its top sales executives to co-ordinate travel arrangements to and within Alaska during 1967 when the hundredth anniversary of Alaska's purchase will be celebrated throughout the 49th State.

R. J. Wright, vice-president-sales, said F. E. Coufal, NWA general sales manager, will be Alaska co-ordinator.

"An influx of additional Alaska visitors is anticipated during 1967 because of the many special events planned throughout the year in Anchorage, Juneau, Sitka, Fairbanks, Kodiak, Skagway, Nenana and others among the state's storied towns and cities," Coufal said.

Headline attraction will be the A (for Alaska) 67 Centennial Expositions to be held at Fairbanks, May 27-Sept. 10.

In Anchorage, a Centennial commission has been established to plan for a wide range of events, including those of cultural, historic and other specific areas of interest, beginning Jan. 3.

Operator's Licence Urged for All Boats

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Insurance Agents' Association of B.C. wants a licensing system for all pleasure boat operators and a minimum age for the issuance of such operators' licences.

The proposal was made in one of a number of resolutions endorsed at the association's 18th annual conference here.

The resolution said the number of pleasure power boats operating in B.C. waters "has created water traffic problems in some areas," a problem that would be further aggravated as the number of boats increased.

Other resolutions endorsed asked the federal fisheries department to set a standard for fish boats to be covered by government insurance — with proven need the prime criterion; that provincial and municipal fire codes be amended to require compulsory installation of automatic sprinkler systems in all new frame public buildings and that home owners be urged to keep a fire extinguisher in their homes.

It Was an Isolated Area

Europe, it has been said, begins — or ends — with the Algarve, the southernmost of Portugal's eleven provinces, which stretches in a kind of uneven rectangle for 100 miles east-west between Spain and the Atlantic Ocean and for 30 miles northsouth between the Atlantic and the neighboring province of Baixe Alentejo.

Until quite recently, this southwest corner of Europe was a region known only to its farmers and fishermen and a few discerning visitors. It possesses all of the natural assets of a great resort area, however, and travellers are now "discovering" it in increasing numbers—to the extent that British European Airways will inaugurate direct London-Faro flights on April 1.

Faro is the capital of the Algarve and direct air travel into the province by way of the London gateway should speed the development of a region that has remained relatively isolated for so long because of difficulty of access.

Spring comes early to the Algarve. The almond trees deck the country-side with bridal glory from the end of January and are at their loveliest about mid-February. After that come all the other flowers, and by April the white irises are in full bloom along the roadsides.

From the solitary headland of Cape St. Vincent eastwards for a hundred miles to the Spanish frontier at the Guadiana River, the Algarve possesses most things the holidaymaker seeks: sea, sand, peace, and now an increasing number of good hotels.

Looking across the Gulf of Cadiz and the Atlantic in the direction of Africa, it basks in the full strength of the southern sun and it is separated from the rest of Portugal by a range of hills covered by cork forests.

As to climate, the Algarve, without exaggeration, enjoys the best year-round holiday weather in all of Europe. Its latitude makes it warm in the depth of winter — the almond trees in full blossom present a glorious sight—and its location on the Atlantic seaboard prevents the summer heat from ever becoming enervating.

5,000 Students Expected

HAMILTON, Bermuda — An estimated 5,000 American and Canadian college students will be guests of the Bermuda government during the annual Bermuda College Weeks which will be held here this spring from March 20 to April 17.

While some resorts suffer through the annual college invasions, Bermuda for 10 years has encouraged and nurtured its series of weekly events for the visiting youths.

●

Last year, 15,000 free lunches were served to them and the government spent about $22,000 on free boat trips, beach parties and dances. This year, according to Michael Fountain, the trade development board officer in charge of the festivities, the government will spend more than $25,000.

About 5,000 students—more than 1,000 each week—are expected to visit Bermuda this year, Fountain said.

TISDALLE TO PROTEST BAN ON FIR TREES

Saanich MLA John Tisdalle Friday said he will protest in the legislature the application of a province-wide ban on sale or shipment of balsam fir announced by Forests Minister Ray Williston.

"This will be rough on local nurserymen who handle balsam fir stocks," said Mr. Tisdalle.

He said he will press for establishment of a quarantine area on southern Vancouver Island so that nurserymen could sell their stocks within this region but not for shipment to the mainland—as is done now with cherry trees.

Mr. Williston said the total ban on shipments of live balsam was necessary to prevent the spread of the balsam wooly aphid which has taken hold here on some sections of the mainland and threatens some 260 billion board feet of timber stands in the province.

"We already have a bad infestation here and stopping the nursery stock sales won't help so why put them out of business in this line so long as they don't ship plants elsewhere," said Mr. Tisdalle.

He said if his quarantine bid fails, he will press for generous compensation to the nurserymen for destroyed stocks "because it will be 20 years before they can grow balsam again."

Driver Guilty Of Passing Bus

PORT ALBERNI—The driver of a truck which struck a nine-year-old boy on Beaver Creek Road last month, was found guilty of passing a school bus while it was stopped with lights flashing.

Early Vote Light In N. Cowichan

NORTH COWICHAN — Polling in the contentious recreation bylaw got off to a slow start today.

At Chemainus, expected to give almost unanimous support to the $700,000 bylaw, only 136 people had cast their vote at press time. At North Cowichan municipal hall, 270 people had shown up.

Municipal clerk A. Vandecasteyen said the polling was "about average for a money bylaw and was on a par with the voting in the last December election.

About two-thirds of the 3,500 owner-electors eligible to vote are resident in the south end of the municipality.

However, their vote is divided among polling stations at Duncan, Maple Bay and Somenos.

At Maple Bay only one person voted in the first hour.

The bylaw asked authority to borrow $700,000 for an ice arena, swimming pool and sports centre.

'Abolish Grade System!'

NANAIMO—A school district officer told parents at Mount Benson School Thursday the grade system is "part of the education garbage."

"There's no question we're going to abolish it," said Hugh Taylor, supervisor of pupil personnel services.

"Children don't develop by intervals," he said. "We can't let astrology bias our thinking."

One of a panel of five speaking on "The Team Approach to Child Guidance" Mr. Taylor said that by the time a child has reached grade three, the behavior pattern he will have in grade 12 has been formed.

Another panelist, social worker Russ Neville, said he thought failures in child guidance are too often blamed on parents.

"If it's the parent's fault, why not the grandparents'?"

School principal Gavin Halkett proposed three remedies for guidance problems: a school psychologist and an elementary school counsellor for every 500 pupils; more remedial teachers; and a teacher for emotionally disturbed children and a director of special education to institute such measures as Saturday classes for gifted children.

Dr. William Meekison, director of the Central Vancouver Island Health Unit said, "children with problems are only reflecting difficulties at home."

New Categories

NANAIMO—New categories in the Cedar Hobby Show opening May 12 are pottery and ceramics, and static and flying model aircraft.

The show, a centennial event, will also include displays of rock work, painting, needlework, photography and weaving.

'REJECTED LOVER' MURDERED COUPLE

PORT ALBERNI — A rejected lover was responsible for the murder of a couple whose marriage he had tried to break up, a coroner's jury decided here Thursday.

The jury found that Lionel Joseph Landry, 40, his wife, Eva, 35, were shot at their home here Feb. 26 by Milan Pavelic, 35, who then turned a .30-30 rifle on himself, taking his own life.

The jury found that the reason for the shooting was an affair involving Eva Landry and Pavelic in which the latter was rejected by Mrs. Landry.

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, MARCH 19, 1966—PAGE 23

Arthur Mayse

We have been hearing a good deal lately to the effect that the law is over-zealous in its attempt to guard the rights of the accused, with the result that many who should be enforced guests of the government walk free and saucy out of court.

That too many criminals do escape justice on fiddling technicalities, nobody can deny. However, until one grave fault in Canadian trial procedure is mended, I think we would be most unwise to tamper with the status quo.

What we lack, and what we need very badly wherever an accused person of slender means must defend himself against the formidable weapons of the prosecution is a public defender with a like armament at his disposal.

I further believe that until a tax-supported public defender's office is established in each province, the Canadian conscience will on occasion be troubled by doubts that persist beyond conviction and sentence.

In the case of John Doe against the Crown, we will be forced at times to wonder whether justice was truly done.

★

Change the law's catch-all 'John Doe' to Steven Murray Truscott, a flesh-and-blood young man serving a life sentence in Kingston Penitentiary, and you have the case which is today prickling a great many Canadian consciences.

Steven Truscott has been in custody in one Ontario penal institution or another since 1959. In that year, at the age of 14, he was convicted of murder and condemned to hang—a sentence not imposed on one so young in Canada since 1875.

A year later, after protests that included a sharp reproof from Britain's renowned Manchester Guardian, Steven's sentence was commuted by the federal cabinet.

Was he guilty, as charged, of murdering a 12-year-old girl? A jury in Goderich, Ont., so decided, and an appeal court upheld the verdict.

However, a Toronto woman writer by the name of Isabel LeBourdais was less sure. She launched an investigation of her own, beginning with a close study of the trial transcript.

As she read, her conviction grew that Steven Truscott had been sentenced for a crime which he might not have committed. Her search led her to the murder area and to the town where the trial was held. She hunted up and interviewed everyone remotely connected with the case, and added medical and legal opinions to her file.

After six years of inquiry, she has set down her findings, and her conclusions, in a book to be released under an English imprint this spring.

In it she states bravely and unequivocally that Steven Murray Truscott couldn't possibly have committed the murder.

★

Among those who have read advance copies of the book is Liberal MP James Byrne for Kootenay East. Mr. Byrne rose in Commons a few days ago to ask that a royal commission be appointed to enquire into the 1959 investigation and trial of Steven Truscott.

"I am personally so convinced of this boy's innocence," he declared, that I am prepared to stake my seat on the outcome."

Other voices have been raised. Their number will grow. It seems probable that the Truscott case will be reopened; and if such omissions and irregularities as Mrs. Leboardais alleges are found to have taken place, a new trial should be ordered for the boy who became a convict at the age of 14.

Should matters so turn out, we will have yet another argument for the appointment of a public defender, who through his office can do for the accused what all too often he is unable to provide for himself.

Wrong though it is that the guilty should go free, it is infinitely worse that the innocent—among whom the young man in Kingston may yet be numbered—should be punished for crimes they did not commit.

'Why Should Kids Live Like This?'

By ROGER STONEBANKS

More than 300 Saanich children are living in deprivation.

They are the direct dependents of the 202 adults in the municipality living on welfare.

"It is a wonder they are not ill with pneumonia," says welfare administrator Frank Heaton.

"People are living in semi-slum conditions because rents are so high."

"Why should the kids, because of unfortunate circumstances, be in this position?"

Mr. Heaton took me to visit three typical families.

They lived in run-down wooden buildings, without insulation. Damp could be seen seeping through ceilings, directly above children's beds. All the homes were cold.

A number of the children were home with colds and flu. The adults looked pallid, indicating malnutrition.

Rents ranged from $45 to $70 a month. But the cost of heating the uninsulated homes is between $20 and $45 a month — depending on how much heat you can do without.

●

Welfare payments range from $125 to $250 a month. This means roughly half the monthly welfare cheque goes towards rent and heat.

Two of the homes we visited were being rented by deserted wives. One has seven children, the other three.

"Sometimes you feel a bit ashamed," said one woman, living in a home that felt more like a refrigerator.

"Especially when the kids want to bring their friends home. I've heard people say why do you live in such a small house. It's all I can afford."

Coun. Edith Gunning, chairman of the health and welfare committee, said more money is spent heating some of the homes than on food.

Landlords refuse to spend money to have the places repaired, and many are next to impossible to heat.

"It's a wonder how these people exist after they pay rent, heating and clothing expenses," she said.

To combat these conditions, Saanich has told senior officials to study and bring in a report on low-rental housing.

The project envisaged would be a three-storey, 65-suite apartment for low-income people of all age groups. Captial costs would be borne by provincial and senior governments.

●

Rents would be roughly half what welfare recipients now are paying for rent and heat, allowing them to spend the extra money on food. Good living quarters, as well as improving individual morale, would reduce medical expenses for ills caused by poor housing.

I asked Mr. Heaton who are the people on welfare.

He said some are older men laid off who can't get new work, but the biggest group is widows and deserted wives with children.

They receive between $125 a month (with one child) and $250 a month (with six children).

What of the common charge that they are lazy and won't work?

"Who the hell is going to live on that when they can get anything else," snapped Mr. Heaton. "There is the odd one — and only the very odd one — that isn't genuine."

The welfare people we spoke to were enthusiastic about a low-rental project.

"Wouldn't that be wonderful," exclaimed one of them.

Another, noting that half her rent and heat expenses would be saved under such a scheme, said: "We're always broke by the middle of the month."

Considering their circumstances, it is perhaps surprising they are not completely overwhelmed by the forces ranged against them, from runaway husbands to slum landlords.

The homes were as neat and tidy as they could be made. Pictures were arranged on one wall to make a home-like appearance. In one living room three daffodils provided the only beauty.

●

And there was at least one encouraging word from Mr. Heaton.

Most of the children brought up on welfare don't turn into welfare recipients when they are adults, at least not in Saanich.

'Hi Mum' Best Yule Gift A Mother Could Ever Get

By TERRY IZZARD

The miracle of Christmas came true today for Suzanne and Christopher Baker.

Tinsel glistened on a nearby Christmas tree as the Victoria youngsters opened the presents they were never expected to see.

Suzanne, 13, and Christopher, 10, have been in a coma since an automobile accident Dec. 22.

For two months it was touch and go as they lay in separate wards at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

But all that was in the past today as wrappers came off presents and nurses popped in to wish "A Merry Christmas."

* * *

For the children's mother, Mrs. J. R. Baker, 3034 Westdowne, Christopher had a special Christmas surprise of his own.

For the first time he said "Hi Mum."

The eyes which for months stared blankly at the ceiling glistened as he fondled a tiny transistor radio.

Suzanne looked longingly at the new sweaters she will soon be wearing and said: "Can we go home in the car?"

It will be some time before her dream comes true.

* * *

But Mrs. Baker believes in miracles. With good cause.

Until three weeks ago neither child showed interest in their surroundings.

Then, one day, Suzanne spoke.

Within a week she was sitting up and talking again.

Day after day she talked to her still unconscious brother until he, too, came out of the coma.

For the Baker family it was truly a Christmas to rermember.

SUITE GUTTED; MAN ARRESTED

Rear of a grocery store at Cedar Hill Road and Lang streets early this morning was gutted by fire.

Martin Lee, owner of the Cost-Lo Food Market, 3060 Cedar Hill Rd., estimated damage in excess of $1,000.

Fire is believed to have started in the building's living quarters by a cigarette.

Store and its contents were unharmed by flames and smoke but the three-room suite at the rear was destroyed.

Tenant Chester Lahmar escaped unharmed and was later arrested on Lang St. for being intoxicated in a public place.

He pleaded guilty and was fined $15 in central court.

Ask The Times

Q. What is the location and purpose of two strange green lights visible from the foot of Oak Bay Ave. through Baynes Channel?

W. S.

A. The lights, although not precisely visible through the channel, are used for navigation, say transport department officials.

One is located at Turkey Head, near Oak Bay Marina, and the other is at the U.S. air station at Whidbey Island.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Youth Loses His Licence

An 18-year-old youth who drove his car on the wrong side of Sooke Rd. early today was fined $250 in central court.

Gary James Watt, 368 Lagoon Rd., pleaded guilty to impaired driving. Magistrate J. A. Byers also suspended his licence for four months.

SCHOOLS WON'T CLOSE

Greater Victoria schools will remain open to the bitter end despite the inroads of 'flu.

This was confirmed today by senior medical health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread and senior superintendent of schools John Gough.

Dr. Whitbread said his department, despite growing absenteeism in schools, would not recommend any closure.

"The children are better off under supervision at school than they would be running around the streets. This applies to all types of infections," he said.

BOARD AGREES

Mr. Gough said the school board agreed with Dr. Whitbread.

"In my opinion we should carry on as long as we are able to provide staff and maintain a reasonable teaching situation.

"So long as some children are willing to come, we should be able to provide for them," said Mr. Gough.

Dr. Whitbread said that in a severe situation classes could be combined if teachers were scarce.

Dr. Whitbread confirmed that 1,000 pupils were absent from district schools, 236 at Lansdowne Junior Secondary alone.

Asked whether any vaccine was available to Victoria residents to help ward against the 'flu, the doctor said he did not advise inoculations, but each person should be guided by his own doctor in this regard.

Dr. Whitbread explained that 'flu vaccine now available is not "specific," as was the vaccine which was available when the Asiatic 'flu came to B.C. several years ago. The virus now prevalent is really a combination of viruses, none of which may be destroyed by the vaccine.

"In any event, to be effective, it would have to be given a couple of months before the 'flu arrives," he added.

Scene Quiet As Lions Work

While 800 Lions and wives descended on the Empress Hotel this morning, all remained quiet on the convention front.

The Lions were pussyfooting through the first phase of their two-day spring conference. Unlike most conventions, there was no "hootin and hollerin."

A spokesman for the group said that although social events are planned today and Sunday "this is a working conference."

Lions' representation comes from Northwest Washington and British Columbia. The topic of the conference is Lionism education. Workshops and panel discussions will cover better ways to serve the community.

Dead-End Road Faces Car Club

Residents Protest Racing at Sandown

JOSEPH SAVILLE

By RON SUDLOW

Vancouver Island Track Racing Association may find itself wheeling up a dead-end road.

A petition circulated this week among North Saanich residents opposing the club's move to new headquarters at Sandown Park will be presented to council Monday.

The track racing body last week announced a break with Andy Cottyn and Western Speedway where it was a tenant for the past 11 years.

Plans were announced for construction of a three-eights mile paved oval inside the thoroughbred track at Sandown.

The club has signed a five-year lease with B.C. Jockey Club and has started $30,000 worth of improvements.

"I don't know which is worse, them or golden nematodes," said cattle farmer Joseph Saville, 1895 John, whose property adjoins the race track grounds.

He began collecting signatures last weekend after hearing of the club's intention to set up Sandown Raceways.

"All but two of the persons I called on signed the petition. And they were only small property owners," he said.

Mr. Saville claimed Saturday night auto racing throughout the summer would disrupt "the peace and quiet of the community and devaluate property.

"Nobody wants these rip-roaring things around here," he said.

23 SIGNATURES

Municipal clerk Michael Allen said the petition contained 23 signatures which he termed "a pretty fair representation of the area."

Said Reeve James Cumming: "I would imagine council will support the petition.

"It embraces almost everyone surrounding the track."

Mr. Saville suggested squealing tires and popping exhausts would impair production at E. I. Beal's poultry farm at 1805 Glamorgan.

"In 10 years all this area will be subdivided and no one wants one of those things roaring in their backyard," he added.

Annual horse racing at Sandown doesn't bother residents he said.

ADJUST TRAVEL

During the meet residents adjust their travelling so they don't get caught in Sandown traffic, and horse racing doesn't disturb livestock, he explained.

Reg Midgley, president of VITRA which plans jalopy and modified racing at the track, said the petition wouldn't be circulating "if they knew how we look at auto racing."

He added the club is planning to support and contribute to community activities.

"We have stated to council members and residents if the noise is a problem we will run with mufflers," he said.

Tearful Goodbye To Food Stall

The surplus food stall on downtown Cormorant Street handed out its last supplies today to Greater Victoria's poor people.

A near-tearful Mrs. E. E. Harper, along with her husband, said:

"I feel very badly. But I'm 77 and running a high-blood pressure."

The Harpers have run the free food stall behind the Elks Club for the last 13 years. For health reasons, they are having to give it up and today was the last day.

★

"There have been plenty of calls from people willing to help but no one to take it over full-time," she said, as a dozen volunteers brought in food donated by Greater Victorians.

Outside, more than 50 persons—mainly women with small children—waited for the free food.

Mrs. Harper, who said, "I wouldn't have missed it for anything," said about 400 persons benefit each month from the stall.

They comprise 150 families with an average of three persons to a family, although some people have eight or nine children.

★

In bad times, the stall has served the needs of as many as 300 families.

The stall was packed with all kinds of food—bread, meat, fruit, vegetables and preserves. Volunteers collect and bring the food to Cormorant Street.

Saanich welfare administrator Frank Heaton said the ending of the free food stall will hurt many families.

"They often got up to a week's free groceries from it," he said.

HER MAJESTY QUEEN ELIZABETH
THE QUEEN MOTHER

A GOLDEN TROWEL had been prepared for use by the Queen Mother in her venture into masonry today. She was to use it to spread a token glob of mortar atop this massive polished granite block. C. E. Project is well under way as federal-provincial project, at Belleville and Government Streets.

A WOMAN'S VIEWPOINT

By Pat Dufour

Poverty and independence walk hand in hand in Jamaica. And, as fervently as Jamaicans would like to banish the former, they seem just as eager to renounce its partner.

During my stay in Montego Bay, I was repeatedly told that Jamaicans would like nothing better than to become the 11th province of Canada. Although Americans outnumber Canadians as tourists, it's Canada that reigns in top spot in Jamaica's affections.

Enthusiastically pro-Commonwealth, educated Jamaicans are quick to tell you, "We weren't ready for our independence which we received in 1962. We're too poor a country and too unskilled in the process of good government."

Canada is responsible for Jamaica's top source of income, the shipping of bauxite to the aluminum plant at Kitimat. Some of our other ventures have not been so successful.

Halfway to Negril, driving along a winding road that hugs the coral-reefed shoreline, one passes a gleaming white factory that now produces baseballs. Puzzled as to why Jamaicans would be interested in baseballs when cricket and soccer are their main sports, I was given the explanation.

Prefer To Be Unrestricted

"A Canadian firm built the factory and started making brassieres. But Jamaican women aren't too keen on wearing them so the bra business went bankrupt!"

Lack of business acumen is also responsible for the closing down of a once-prosperous shoe factory in the Reading district. When the Jamaican owner died, he good-heartedly left the business to his employees. Short-sightedly they settled for the hard cash offered them for the purchase of the building which now stands barred and empty.

To drive along any Jamaican road is to enter a jousting match that will find you competing for road space, your opponents ranging from goats, pigs and cows to North American tourists who dangerously forget that in Jamaica you drive on the left side of the road.

The days of slavery don't seem far away when you watch women, crouched under zinc-roofed lean-tos, using hammers to break up the rocks that are used for road construction.

These Are No Palaces

In the country districts you pass wooden huts, no larger than a prairie outhouse, that are home to as many as 11. If they can afford it, families use one hut as a kitchen and another as living quarters. This is to avoid the danger of fire. Any late afternoon you'll see men, squatted on donkeys, going home with baskets of wood which they've gathered for fuel. The kitchen hut is no luxury. As one Jamaican explained: "If the kitchen burns down, we still have somewhere to live."

Undoubtedly, this primitive form of cooking is responsible for the bad burns I saw when I visited the children's ward of St. James Hospital in Montego Bay. I've never seen worse anywhere. One little tot was scarred from neck to mid-calf.

My daughter Nan and her friend, Judy Kirkby, decided to go to Jamaica when they graduated from the Royal Jubilee Hospital last fall. In letters, they had described conditions at the hospital but I was still unprepared for what I saw.

In an almost open ward that had cots crammed so tight there was barely room to move between them, over a score of patient-eyed children lay or sat on wet, messed sheets. The case list included burns, the usual child diseases, one suspected TB infant, one with meningitis, and a suspected typhoid, the latter being bedded in a tiny glass-doored room off the main ward.

Clean Sheets Are Luxury

It was only when I saw such conditions that I could believe the girls' complaints that they had been disciplined for changing sheets (you turn them around and around as long as there's a clean spot to use), the use of syringe needles over and over again and the almost continuous lack of such basic items as toilet paper.

Can you imagine a hospital laundry where every item is washed by hand in large tubs, where sheets are patched over and over again, with those that are stained being bleached by the primitive method of rubbing soap into them, then being left on rocks to dry?

I visited the hospital kitchen where the kerchiefed cook and her helpers were preparing the evening dinner, which never varies. It doesn't require too much effort, consisting of three pieces of bread, a glass of milk and a helping of cold, doughy pudding.

Yet to many of the patients this diet is a gourmet's delight compared to their every-day fare.

Two Days Without Rest

I'll never again be able to eat a banana without remembering the toiling lines of women (most of them old) who carried 80-pound bundles of bananas on their heads when we visited the docks at night. Banana loading is continuous during the banana boat's weekly visit, the women working as long as two days at a time.

I only saw one man tackling this formidable chore. Most of them stand around or hand the bunches to the women as they file past the trucks that have brought the fruit in from the plantations. For each bunch, often toted the distance of a city block, the women workers receive a token valued at a penny.

I hoped that I might hear them singing "Day-O" or "Star-O," the banana-loading songs made famous by Harry Belafonte. But the women were too busy keeping the snake-like lines moving with only the odd interruption caused by their own off-beat commercial ventures.

Now and again a worker will drop out of line to ask tourists if they would like her payment token as a souvenir. Naturally most tourists agree and give the woman at least 25 cents . . . a 250 per cent profit on her regular pay!

Men workers on the sugar cane plantations fare no better. They have to cut a ton of cane to earn the magnificent sum of $1.75!

Overwhelming Contrasts

In contrast to this basic struggle for survival, Jamaicans are treated to the sight of tourists flooding their country, spending dollars as if they're going out of style, most of which remain with the hotels with too few used either in business taxes or wages.

Yet this doesn't seem to disturb even the educated Jamaicans too much. They rationalize that tourism is their third largest industry and hotels must be encouraged to cater for the visitors. They're more concerned with the waste of funds on the political level.

The most often quoted example given me was the fact that Jamaica has three prime ministers, all housed in official residences. The prime minister, old and sick, had to be supported by a doctor to make the short trip to the door of his residence, when he made a supreme effort to greet the Queen when she called on him. Acting Prime Minister Sangster is respected by both the government and the opposition, but the opposition becomes resentful when it refers to the last of the top-flight trio, the deputy prime minister.

They summarize, "We're paying dearly for independence while poverty sits at our table."

The chill bite of a March wind was forgotten by these delighted Guides when Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother chatted with them soon after her plane touched down at the Victoria International Airport.

Radiant Guides and Brownies Greet Their Honorary President

More than 110 Brownies, Guides and Sea Rangers from all over the Saanich Peninsula were present when Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother landed at the Victoria International Airport, Friday evening. They'd waited in a chill wind for half an hour but the anticipation of meeting the honorary president of the Girl Guide movement and the resulting jiggles, jumping up and down and twisting to scan the clouded horizon kept them warm.

The small contingent formed the largest part of the welcoming crowd — and certainly the most enthusiastic.

Having greeted the more circumspect official welcomers, the Queen Mother delighted her young admirers by walking over to chat with many of them and discuss one of their favorite subjects, guiding.

So excited were the youngsters, that they appeared tongue-tied as their honorary president asked them questions about their companies and guiding in Victoria. They represented packs and companies from Royal Oak, Cordova Bay, Sidney, Elk Lake, Brentwood and Keating.

The youthful contingent had been granted permission to greet the Queen Mother as a result of a request by captain Mrs. Eileen Callard of the First Sidney Sea Rangers.

As she reports, "They'll remember this moment for the rest of their lives!"

As the Queen Mother took her place in the car that was to take her to Government House, Guides, Brownies and Sea Rangers dashed across the tarmac for one last smiling farewell. One of the last glimpses the Queen Mother had of the airport was a sea of radiant faces, each one seeming to reflect the wonder of the moment.

STATUS SYMBOL

MONTREAL (CP) — Primitive art is becoming a status symbol as well as an artistic fashion, says a decorating columnist here. African carvings, Peruvian pots and other mementos reflect an owner' awareness of strange parts of the world, she says, "which may be the strongest status symbol of all."

Doing The Town

with DOROTHY FRASER

Lasting beauty for your home . . .

If you are a devotee of the strictly contemporary and avant-garde in furniture and home appointments, this may leave you cold . . . But if, on the other hand, you love the elegance, the graciousness, the soul-satisfying look and feel of fine traditional furniture . . . there's one place you should visit often . . . and that's Home Furniture's Gallery . . . the beauty of whose offerings is almost overwhelming! . . . We saw some lovely new pieces the other day . . . Italian marquetry . . . satinwood inlaid . . . with antique gold trim and Florentine marble tops . . . A small and a large console . . . a commode and coffee table . . . To blend in with these pieces, there's a charming antique gold corner curio cabinet with lighted interior . . . and little gilt Victorian chairs upholstered with richly hued velvet . . . True elegance, if ever we saw it! . . . There are other curio cabinets too, in various finishes . . . solid mahogany, hand-carved coffee and lamp tables with beautifully grained marble tops . . . All this furniture is individually selected . . . imported . . . made to last a lifetime . . . and bring ever-growing satisfaction to the lucky owners thereof . . . See it soon at . . . Home Furniture Company, 825 Fort St., 382-6138.

. . . and suddenly it's spring! Flowering trees are bursting into bloom all over the place . . . even downtown! . . . Aren't you glad you live in Victoria? And doesn't the rest of the country wish they did?

Spring goes to your head . . .

Whatever else you do . . . or don't . . . buy to celebrate the arrival of spring, there's one thing you MUST have to put you in the new season's fashion picture . . . and that's a new hat! . . . After looking at some of the latest arrivals in Miss Frith's millinery department, we can only say that if you don't fare forth this spring in one of the smartest, most glamorous chapeaux you've ever owned . . . why, you've no one to blame but yourself! . . . It needn't even be a very expensive hat (unless, of course, you fall in love with one of the exclusive imports) . . . because some of the smart models we saw this week have practically pin-money price tags . . . There's a stunning white and coffee bali straw with high rolled brim and sort of zig zag trim . . . Equally smart in navy and white . . . Another wide brimmed coffee color bali with faille scallop trim around brim and crown . . . A supple lacy straw draped beret . . . A high draped turban of soft woven straw that you can crush in your hand . . . great for travelling . . . A couple of ultra-smart straw "saucer hats" to sit well back on your head . . . one all black, the other black combined with pink . . . A head-hugging (and head-turning) wig of yellow-centered black shellacked daisies . . . See these stunners at . . . Miss Frith Millinery & Fashions, 1617 Douglas St., 383-7181.

Those "unconstructed" suits and coats we've told you about seeing right here in Victoria are featured in the very latest issue of Vogue.

That unmistakable "Liberty Look" . . .

Among the many new arrivals at W & J Wilson is a big shipment of Tana lawn from Liberty of London . . . that famous material that's known and loved the world over . . . and used to fashion everything from charming summer evening, resort, and street dresses to shirts and blouses and skirts and at home wear for grown-ups . . . dainty frocks for little girls and their older sisters . . . While that stand-out-in-a-crowd "Liberty Look" is still unmistakable, there are a lot of new designs this season . . . and colors are downright luscious: . . . Blendings of mossy greens and blues and apricots and golds and rose . . . a beautiful selection of designs with navy background (and you know how difficult it is to find a really good navy print!) . . . This Liberty yardage is 36 inches wide . . . costs but $2.75 a yard . . . And of course we don't need us to remind you how easy it is to launder and care for . . . Our advice is to see it soon while the selection is still full and complete . . . You might even be lucky and find material to match one of Wilson's new tailored Liberty blouses . . . in which case you could buy the blouse ($12.95) and a couple yards of material for a skirt to make up yourself for a very smart (and inexpensive) summer outfit! . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177.

A transistorized, self-charging clothes brush is the newest electric gadget, we hear. Said to do a terrific cleaning job. This is especially timely now that navy is such an "in" color!

Learn to dance the Arthur Murray way . . .

Of all the activities engaged in by man . . . almost from the time he learned to walk on wto legs . . . one of the oldest and most loved the world over is dancing! . . . You might even say that man was MEANT to dance . . . to help him relax, express himself . . . to socialize . . . and even to keep fit! . . . This being even truer today than ever before, what with all our modern-day tensions, etc. . . . it seems to us the height of good sense to learn to dance properly and beautifully and effortlessly . . . and the place you can learn to do just that is the Arthur Murray Studio . . . where the teaching of ballroom dancing has been refined to a science . . . and where you'll have loads of fun while you're learning . . . make new friends . . . enjoy regular studio parties! Arthur Murray teachers will teach you all the new dances . . . bring you up to date on the old ones . . . After only a few lessons a whole new vista of recreation and enjoyment will be opened to you . . . Remember, you don't need a partner to take dancing lessons at Arthur Murray's . . . And an introductory course is quite inexpensive . . . so why not phone or drop in for further information? . . . Open noon to 10 p.m. . . . Arthur Murray School of Dancing, 715 Yates St., EV 5-1476.

Giant earrings and rings in oddball shapes and geometric designs . . . mostly black and white . . . are the newest accent jewellery to hit the fashion pages.

Eaton's have a lovely way with weddings . . .

Funny how we all think we know about weddings . . . until we get involved in one ourselves . . . either as a bride-to-be, or parent thereof . . . Then it's all apt to seem a bit overwhelming . . . Eaton's, however, DO know all there is to know about planning weddings in every meticulous detail . . . and they're ready, willing and able to offer you every kind of advice, as well as take over every detail of wedding preparations if you so desire . . . What you do is contact the Consultant at Eaton's Bridal and Gift Registry as soon as the engagement becomes official . . . From then on, you can sit back and relax . . . (after all, engagements are supposed to be enjoyed!) . . . Eaton's provide "full coverage" for weddings . . . This includes invitations, cards, flowers, cars, wedding cake, reception . . . they'll even arrange for your honeymoon trip! . . . The Gift Registry Consultant will keep a record of the bride's needs, tastes and choices in silver, china, linens, furniture, etc., for the benefit of friends in search of the perfect gift . . . help select and plan everything for the couple's new home . . . And we might add that all this super-service costs you not an extra penny . . . Truly, Eaton's offer the most all-inclusive wedding service we've ever heard of! . . . Eaton's Bridal and Gift Registry, 382-7141, Local 373.

Look for plenty of color afoot for spring and summer. Newest shade is celery green, a soft whitened tone for daytime wear. Big news in New York, we've seen some very smart celery green shoes right here at home.

An apartment home on the waterfront . . .

It's probably no news to most of our readers that we're enthusiastic and long-time tenants of a townhouse at Christie Point . . . So when we were asked to tell you something about this unique-in-Canada apartment development, we're right in our element . . . on home territory, so to speak! . . . First about Christie Point itself: it's a narrow peninsula jutting out into Portage Inlet . . . a little gem of scenery and serenity . . . only 9 minutes easy drive from downtown . . . Now for the townhouses: they consist of five bright spacious rooms on two floors . . . 3 bedrooms and bathroom upstairs (two quite large rooms, the third a little smaller) . . . Large living room with dining area . . . full-size kitchen equipped with atomatic washer and dryer, stove and fridge . . . big window . . . plus powder room and huge storage closet on ground floor . . . another storage room outside . . . Oh yes, and these townhouses nestle along the waterfront, surrounded by lawns and trees and gardens . . . (all of which are maintained for you, of course) . . . Delightful views on every side . . . One secluded townhouse block is reserved for adults only; in the other three blocks children are welcome . . . And if you think all this sounds expensive, you're wrong . . . rents are just $148 and $153 a month . . . Unquestionably the best apartment value in Victoria . . . if not in the whole of Canada! . . . Christie Point Apartments, 2891 Craigowan Rd., 385-0644.

CASUALLY SMART . . . a hand-knit sweater in heavy orange and white wool. The oversize collar may be rolled or folded to form a soft turtle neckline. For those who enjoy working with their hands there are new spring fashion patterns and interesting yarns available in Victoria.

In Step With Style By Nona Damaske

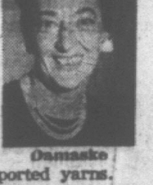
Hand-Knits Hit Top

Knit one, purl one . . . this could be the beginning of your own hand-knit costume. Knitted and crocheted garments are invading the high-fashion field.



Damaske

Beginners and experts alike are visiting knitting shops for exciting new patterns and fascinating imported yarns.

This week I spent an interesting hour in a small shop where help is offered to the "knit one—drop one" set as well as to the experienced group who may wish to design their own patterns. Knitting is a growing pastime for women of all ages.

Little girls take odds and ends of wool and knit scarves for their dolls. The teen-agers are all agog over bulky knits with mad patterns.

Young matrons are knitting dress and coat costumes and Grandma is creating all the wonderfully useful items that a family enjoys. Knitting is marvellous therapy for the elderly . . . keeps mind and hands busy while the body rests.

There are also men in Victoria who knit, but it seems they wish to remain in the background.

To begin with, help will be needed to learn to read a pattern, but soon the symbols become familiar and you are on your way. Poppy Jones recommends a classic pullover without a pattern as a first-attempt garment. Mohair yarn and large needles are a good first choice as the sweater will knit up quickly and keep a beginner from being discouraged.

One's first attempt may have a tendency to be uneven . . . this is less apparent with mohair yarn as uneven tension will not be noticed.

Boucle is a little more difficult to work with as it is a bumpy yarn and the stitches are hard to count. A dropped stitch in this yarn is, however, not such a tragedy as in the smoother type . . . stitches do not 'run' in boucle.

Double or worsted yarn, long a bread-and-butter item, is now entering the fashion field . . . lends itself admirably to coats and suits.

Non-crushable, washable linen and cotton yarns are popular at this time of year and are a boon to the traveller.

Six-inch square swatches are scattered around the shop to illustrate how the various yarns look when knitted. Yarns of all types from France, Switzerland and England are piled high in a profusion of gay colors. Beautifully illustrated pattern books from England, Canada and the United States are all pictured . . . turtle or ring necklines . . . the double-breasted look . . . capes . . . tie belts and cardigan coats.

Those who have been knitting for years often need assistance with a complicated pattern, fitting or blocking. This help is readily available in the little shop which I visited.

Annual meeting, Diocesan Board of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Anglican Church, next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Christ Church Cathedral parish hall. Sessions to begin with Holy Communion Service. Tuesday at 9:30 a.m., in the cathedral.

SEW SIMPLE WITH Eunice Farmer

Dear Eunice:

Whenever I make a suit in a heavy, textured-type wool, I simply can't get the skirt zipper to look flat and smooth. I've almost given up. Have you a solution? Mrs. J. P.

Dear Mrs. J. P.:

I suggest to my students that they always use a centre back zipper closing instead of a side closing. The side closing seems to add inches to your hip measurement and also accents the curve of your hips. I also prefer the lapped-type application, instead of having the seam at the centre of the zipper. If you haven't tried it, do; I think you'll like it.

Also, one last point, please don't use nine-inch zippers in your good skirts. They look most unattractive hanging down so low below the end of your jackets. Long zippers were made (in my opinion) for slacks and skirts of teenage girls who have large hips and small waists and are always in too much of a hurry to carefully put on and take off . . . thus the many broken zippers in the short lengths.

Once again you will be tackling suits and will come face to face with the problem of making bound buttonholes. If you haven't already sent for your free copy of my easy-to-follow method of making bound buttonholes, do so today. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Eunice Farmer in care of your paper. Ask for "Bound Buttonholes."

Clear Disaster Area By Covering Switch

By Penny Saver

There is always a part of the house that is conspicuous, and one hot contender is the little area around light switches. If you have a garden-happy hubby who comes in soiled after a hard afternoon in the yard, that little space, only a few inches in perimeter, can be declared a disaster area. The kitchen light switch is the sweetest of the bunch, as it is continuously coated with jam, jelly and peanut butter. Light switches seem to fascinate the child who has just devoured one of those sticky sandwiches.

On some wall finishes, it is easy to remove these marks. However, wallpaper and some paint jobs present a problem. What every house needs is a few switch plates.

These devices are rectangular plates with holes in them for the switch. Made of china, a plate for a single switch sells for 69 cents. These come in various colors, with delicate blue and purple flowers, and designs in other colors. Two half-inch screws hold the plate in place.

Double-switch plates are a boon to the household for $1. These are available in the same patterns. They are so easy to clean, too, with just a swoosh of a cloth dipped first in a mild cleaning solution.

There's a lot in store for you in this shop. If you want to know where Penny found these, give her a call at 382-3131.

The Scientific Approach to Hairdressing
Rebuilding and Conditioning Damaged Hair
The proper approach to the permanent rebuilding of the structure of damaged hair is quite simple really. The fact that hair is 97% Protein, assures us that Protein, and only Protein, can "feed" the hair the strength that it has lost through improper care.
When you work all day, you lose the energy you had at the beginning of the day. This is exactly the same condition present in the hair when it needs conditioning. You can not just drink water and expect to replenish your energy. You must eat food. Similarly, when the hair loses Proteins and becomes "tired" or "sick," it must have these Proteins replaced in the hair structure. Lanolins, cholesterols and pomades have their place in hairdressing, just as furniture oils and polishes have their place in keeping the furniture in a pleasing appearance. But they will not permanently repair the hair. Only Proteins can do this.
Since the demand for Protein conditioners has been created, many brands have appeared on the market. Many contain ammonia to help the conditioner penetrate the hair shaft. Some have as little as 12% active Protein ingredients, and many have just two amino-acids in their composition.
P.P.T. "S-77," the hair and skin conditioner formulated by REDKEN LABORATORIES INC., contains all 22 of the known amino-acids, and is the only conditioner that we know of that has such a high concentration of naturally organic Proteins, scientifically acid-balanced to the correct ph value for healthy hair and scalp.
To restore health and beauty to your hair, ask for a P.P.T. treatment at the MARGO BEAUTY STUDIO most convenient for you. You, and your friends, will be amazed at the results.

DEAR ABBY ...

She's Putting Cart Before Horse

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: This man, age 52, has been meeting my sister, age 54, in his barn every night for the last nine years. This started one year before her husband died. I have been praying for her and trying to help her all these years, but to no avail. She denies any wrong doing. I have spoken to several clergymen in town about her shameful sinning, and have asked all our friends and relatives to pray that my sister will put aside her evil ways and repent. My brother who is a pastor is on her side. He says I should not judge, that the Lord will be the Judge on Judgment Day, but by then it will be too late. (Galatians 6:1). How can I help my poor misguided sister to be saved if everyone is against me?

ALONE

DEAR ALONE: Your brother is right. "Judge not, that ye be not judged." (Matthew 7:1,2). You could be mistaken. Put yourself in your sister's place. How would you like it if your sister went around asking everyone in town to pray for you when you had done no wrong?

DEAR ABBY: I am 59 years old but don't look it. I weigh 147 pounds and stand 5 feet 2 inches tall. I keep myself looking nice and carry my weight well. I think I look a lot better at this weight than if I were to reduce and get all wrinkled in the face and neck like lots of women I know. I am divorced and have been going with Walt for a year now. He is 50. He speaks of marriage and I am all for it, but here is the catch. Walt says, "If you will go on a diet and keep losing weight until I tell you to stop, and then show me your birth certificate, I will marry you." Abby, I never told him how old I was because I never thought it was important. Besides, we are near enough the same age, and I look younger than Walt. How about the dieting part? Set me straight. I like him a lot.

WALT'S LADY FRIEND

DEAR LADY FRIEND: Better show him your birth certificate first. It might not be necessary for you to lose the weight.

CONFIDENTIAL TO LITTLE D. IN BIG D.: Don't call a doctor a "quack" if you aren't prepared to prove it, or you're a dead duck.

Farming Experts Get Call

TORONTO (CP) — The United Church of Canada is sending a new kind of missionary overseas as part of a quasi-peace corps movement. But a church spokesman denies the project is a radical departure from missionary philosophy.

Jim McNairn went recently to Indore, India — not to preach but to drill water wells. An experienced driller, his skills were needed in the central area of the country which has been plagued by a water shortage.

He is to remain in Indore for about six months teaching Indians modern drilling techniques, then will return home to Seaforth, Ont.

The church has sent an auto mechanic to Nepal; a chicken farmer and an agronomist to Brazil; a business administrator to a Zambian hospital, and a ceramics expert to India.

Rev. James Ormiston, personnel director of the United Church's board of overseas missions, says there's nothing new in the job of the short-term worker in the mission field.

"Go back as far as you like in mission history and you will find the same sort of thing."

Mr. Ormiston denies the short-term worker's job is purely technical and non-theological. This kind of practical help is a genuine expression of Christian commitment, he adds.

"The worker, even if he is going to teach wood-working and will do no preaching at all, must have a basic Christian orientation.

"There is no creedal examination involved, but we would never send a conscious agnostic . . . The person must not be unsympathetic to what the church represents."

Pay is between $4,000 and $5,000 a year, depending on the size of the worker's family. There is no salary distinction between a physician and a pig farmer.

"Increasingly there is a place for the layman on the frontiers of missionary service," says Mr. Ormiston.

Nelson Group Establishes World Church

By JEAN BAKER

NELSON (CP) — The shake-shingled cottage on Kootenay Lake looks like a summer home but the function of Yasodhara Ashram belies its appearance.

This is a community believing in the universality of religions. Here Christian, Hindu, Buddhist and Jew pray, chant and meditate together.

The ashram—an Indian name for a group of students seeking spiritual truth—was established last July on 83 acres of fruitland and forest rolling back from the mountain lake.

Its founders are two Germans whose names in this Temple of All Religions are Swami Sivananda-Aadha and Swami Premanda. The former was Sylvia Helmlan, who danced on the German concert stage, and the latter Joseph J. Gnilka, a building contractor.

Both have studied at Rishekesh, an Indian ashram, and have taken their vows of sannyasa, dedicating themselves to "the service of God and man."

All have separate living quarters in small cottages and eat at the main lodge beneath a large painting of Buddha.

Each member goes into the community or country daily to work and contributes his earnings to the ashram.

NEWS OF CITY CHURCHES

Alarm on Morals

The Young People's Society of Victoria's Seventh-Day Adventist Church is deeply concerned over today's declining moral standards.

It is therefore inviting the youth of Victoria to attend three meetings of prayer and meditation in the church at 983 Pandora Avenue next Sunday, Wednesday and Friday at 7:30 p.m.

"We are alarmed by what seems to be a growing refusal on the part of parents and adults in general to shoulder their natural responsibility towards the young," writes G. K. Walton, leader of the Young People's Society.

"They are not being trained in unselfishness, integrity or faith — and every man needs a faith to live by.

"The church has a part to play; but how can it compete with entertainment operators who feel no responsibility towards lifting up the thoughts of men?"

Cadets from R.C.S.C.C. Cougar, the training unit at Shawnigan Lake Boys' School, will attend the 11 a.m. service in Christ Church Cathedral Sunday.

God-Is-Dead Debate 'Shows Thinking Gap'

The God is Dead discussion in some theological circles is evidence of "the tragic gap in present human thinking," Erwin D. Canham, editor-in-chief of the Christian Science Monitor, said Thursday night.

His talk was given in the Queen Elizabeth Theatre, Vancouver, and brought by live transmission direct to Victoria's Christian Science Church at Chambers and Pandora.

Mr. Canham, on a world lecture tour, called for new efforts to perceive the spiritual significance of man's conquest of his physical environment.

"This is the only way to bring under control the forces we have unleashed without destroying the essential values of our society.

"We are now, perhaps as never before, at a great turning-point period in human experience. We have revolutionized our relationship to the brute forces of nature. We have in our hands the possibility of complete victory over many age-old enemies of mankind."

Manila Missionary To Attend Conference

The 38th annual World Missions Conference opens in the Alliance Church, 1039 Yates Street, Sunday at 11 a.m.

Marguerite Sundberg, a missionary from Manila, and Rev. Gleason Ledyard, for many years missionary to the Canadian Eskimos, will be the main speakers.

The conference will continue Tuesday through Friday at 7:45 p.m.

Film To Help Young People Think

Prescription for Doc—a film produced for the 75th anniversary of Seattle Pacific College—will be presented in the Free Methodist Church, 1620 Cook Street, Sunday at 7 p.m.

The story is chiefly concerned with two medical students: one who plans to be a missionary doctor and another who wants to operate his father's highly successful modern clinic.

"This is a film to help young people think the kind of thoughts they must think if the Holy Spirit is to direct their lives," says Rev. Marlin Hopfer, pastor of the Free Methodist Church.

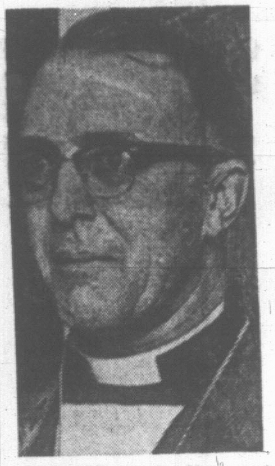
SOLOIST with the Sanctuary Choir of Metropolitan United Church Sunday morning will be Margaret Hurdon Keifer. She will sing Think of Me (Scott) and the choir, directed by Frank Tupman, will present the anthem Immortal, Invisible (Thiman).

PRIESTS QUIT ON CELIBACY

VATICAN CITY (AP) — About 10,000 Roman Catholic priests over the last decade—an average of 1,000 a year—have asked the Vatican for release from their vows, Vatican sources said Sunday.

Celibacy problems were behind most of the requests sent to the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, formerly the Vatican's Holy Office, the informants said.

Many involved men who had already left the priesthood, taken a wife in civil marriage, and wanted later to return to good spiritual standing.



INSTALLED as the Kootenay's sixth Anglican bishop Friday was Rt. Rev. E. W. Scott. He succeeds Rt. Rev. W. R. Coleman who retired last August because of poor health.

Christianity Threatened By Birth Boom

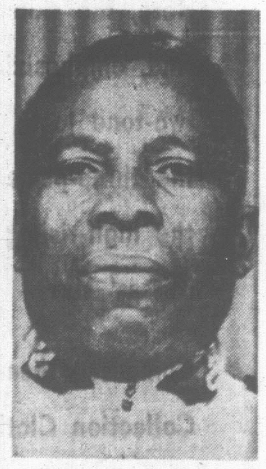
TORONTO (CP)—Christianity is threatened by the world's population explosion, says a joint statement by the Anglican and United Churches of Canada.

The document, prepared by Rev. R. C. Chalmers of Pine Hill Divinity Hall, Halifax, and a committee from both churches, says:

"Unless there is a revolution in the church in her belief in the Christian mission the population explosion will continue to outdistance the increase in the number of Christians in the world."

It adds that churches are reacting in a feeble manner ot the many challenges confronting it.

The document was written chiefly as a study guide on the recommended principles of union between the two churches.



SPEAKER at a missionary rally in Victoria Army Citadel Sunday at 3 p.m. will be Brigadier Benjamin Amu, a national officer from Ghana, Africa. He was trained by the Salvation Army at Accra when Ghana was known as the Gold Coast.

'Lot of Court Cases' If Riding Bill Passes

If the government's redistribution bill passes without amendments to the Elections Act, B.C. courts will be faced with a "flock of cases" opposition MLAs warned in the legislature Friday.

They were referring to a previous argument pointing out that the Elections Act is based on existing electoral districts, most of which would disappear under redistribution.

Controversial Bill 32 passed committee reading with amendments providing for 55 members of the legislature instead of 52 as at present.

Opposition members resisted the bill all the way, urging the whole matter be returned to the Angus royal commission whose report was tabled at the opening of the legislative session.

The non-political report was accepted by the opposition, but the government's bill made significant changes in the Angus recommendations, drawing opposition charges of political gerrymandering.

THIRD READING NEXT

Before the bill passes the legislature it must be given the formality of third reading, without further debate, and when the 27th legislature is dissolved it becomes law.

That makes it law before the next provincial election, opposition members pointed out.

The more amendments there are introduced, the further away from the Angus commission's terms of reference the matter goes, Opposition Leader Robert Strachan said. And the more the bill moves away, the more changes are required, he said.

OUT OF BALANCE

Restoration of a Kootenay seat merely makes the lower mainland and Vancouver Island further out of balance with the rural areas of the province, he said.

If it is mandatory that there be seven seats in the north, as opposed to the commission's recommended five, this should be the reference point for the rest of the province, he stated.

The leader said instead of further amendments, the government had so mixed up the matter and strayed so far from the terms of reference it had no alternative but to refer redistribution back to the commission if it want to avoid the label of gerrymander.

Government "tampering with the bill had upset the balance (between rural and urban areas) still further," said Alex Macdonald (NDP — Vancouver East).

'THIRD RATE OPERA'

Liberal leader Ray Perrault said "redistribution has become more like a third rate comic opera rather than an exercise in judgment . . . tampered and tinkered with three times."

Randolph Harding (NDP — Kaslo-Slocan) said he still was unsatisfied with the amendment giving the Kootenays another seat. "On the basis of population our area is entitled to another two seats," he said, urging the two cabinet members for the Kootenays to stand up and fight for them.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said no legislative body could avoid its responsibility entirely by turning a matter such as distribution over to an independent body.

Gordon Dowding (NDP — Burnaby) said the government is playing off one area against another with its changes to the bill.

NEW VOTER'S LIST

He tried to introduce an amendment that would ensure a new voter's list, but he was ruled out of order by chairman William Speare (SC — Cariboo), who pointed to a standing rule that gives the government perogative to amend the Constitution Act.

Mr. Harding asked Provincial Secretary Wesley Black whether there would be legislation to cover discrepancies as a result of the bill "You'll have to have them" he said.

Mr. Black said he hadn't considered it yet, and Mr. Bonner said he would consider it.

Mr. Harding predicted a "whole flock of court cases from one end of the province to the other" if the bill passes without Elections Act amendment.

J. Donald Smith (SC — Victoria) said the opposition was playing politics with redistribution. He said it had been obvious that in fairness the Angus Commission's recommendations of huge northern ridings would have to be modified.

AGAINST CHANGES

"That's why the opposition decided they would insist on the Angus recommendations — because they are against the changes and they had their sticky political fingers in there from the start," he said.

John Tisdalle (SC — Saanich), who previously had announced he would vote against third reading, said he would support it in deference to public opinion.

He recalled that last weekend he appealed for Saanich voters to bombard the premier's office for demands that the proposed Saanich and The Islands riding be altered but in fact no one had bothered to write.

"They have clearly indicated they are not interested," he said. "If they feel this is a good thing, then who am I to fly in the face of their opinion.

SUPPORT BILL

"And the opinion of the public through the press has been to applaud this bill. Therefore you must support the bill."

Alan Macfarlane (L — Oak Bay) said he would not sit in his seat merely because some editorials approved of the bill.

"I'm sorry the member for Saanich feels he has to knuckle under to one editorial writer," he said, contending the redistribution issue should be sent back to the Angus Commission with new and wider terms of reference.

Parliament 'Sorry Spectacle'

By DON KILLAN
Uvic Correspondent

A policy of brinkmanship has landed Canada in a "sorry spectacle," national Social Credit leader Robert Thompson said here Friday.

About 200 University of Victoria students heard Mr. Thompson describe the situation in Parliament.

"There will be tragic consequences unless a reversal of direction comes soon," he said.

Parliament revolves around two men, Mr. Thompson said. The first resents the second for pushing him out of office; the second is incapable of handling the first now that he has the first's position, he said.

Parliament had become a toy for purposes of personal ambitions and private vendettas.

"We are watching the disintegration of two great political parties but we can't let this bring about the disintegration of Parliament."

CASES ARE EXAMPLES

Citing the Munsinger and Spencer cases as examples, he said "It is not in the best interests of Canada that Parliament be lowered to the depths it is.

"We ought to declare a centennial truce in Parliament."

The Socred leader called for immediate federal legislation on banking, educational grants, welfare programs and penal reforms.

He claimed the Social Credit and Creditiste policies are basically the same but said the Creditistes have associated themselves with ultra-nationalistic separatist groups in Quebec. This alienates them from the Social Credit party which would rather see a more united Canada with a stronger federal government, he said.

DOMINICANS ASK:

What Will U.S. Do If Bosch Victor?

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

SANTO DOMINGO (AP)—A question Dominicans frequently ask these days is: "What will the United States do if Juan Bosch wins the elections?"

Many Dominicans feel the U.S. government is against former president Bosch and determined to prevent his election next June.

Questions on how they got this impression get a knowing shrug in response or the view that the American press and statements by congressmen reflect this position.

U.S. intervention in last April's revolution has also been exploited, with some apparent success, as another example of anti-Bosch sentiment in Washington. Bosch claims the U.S. acted to thwart a revolutionary movement that would have restored him to power. He was overthrown in 1963.

Among the most convinced that such an official policy actually exists are Dominican right-wing extremists, some of whom are known to feel that by opposing Bosch they are doing Washington a favor. Their reasoning usually runs this way: the United States is against Communism; Bosch is a Communist (despite his disclaimers and evidence to the contrary).

THINK IT'S MARXISM

This way of thinking is getting some encouragement from a few American businessmen in Santo Domingo. To them anti-U.S. nationalism, which abounds here, is nothing less than Marxism.

By and large, the fear of Communism is very real to many Dominicans because of what they regard as a "radicalization" — or orientation toward leftist extremism—of local nationalism.

In recent weeks, right-wing extremists have shown their anti-Bosch feelings by violence. This has matched, and in some cases surpassed, left-wing extremist terrorism.

The terrorist campaign is believed primarily aimed at discouraging campaigning by Bosch's party in the interior. The former president has complained that many of his party officials have been beaten or otherwise intimidated by terrorists.

Several scores of Bosch sympathizers have either taken political asylum or are "guests" in embassies for fear of their lives.

HATRED MISSING

Kennedy 'Invades' South

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (UPI) Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, speaking at the school where Gov. George C. Wallace made his last-ditch stand against integration, urged Alabamians Friday to set aside differences and join him as "partners in a common future."

The New York senator spoke to about 4,000 students at the University of Alabama to cap off a Dixie speaking tour that had carried him earlier to the University of Mississippi campus at Oxford, Miss.

* * *

Kennedy, as attorney-general, had helped lay the plans for the integration of "Ole Miss" that led to a bloody riot in the fall of 1962 and of the integration of the University of Alabama the following summer when Wallace made his stand for segregation in the "school house door."

For his part in bringing school segregation to an end in the deep south, Kennedy won the displeasure of thousands of staunch segregationists.

The hatred was hardly evident Friday.

* * *

"I'm delighted to see the inside of this building, I thought somebody might be waiting outside," Kennedy quipped to the laughter of his audience.

It was at the same building in June, 1963, that Wallace first refused two Negro students, James Hood and Vivian Malone, permission to register.

At Oxford, Kennedy addressed 6,000 cheering students in the "Ole Miss" coliseum and then answered questions in which he placed the blame for the integration riot that killed two persons squarely on the shoulders of former Gov. Ross Barnett.

Air Force Association Meet Under Way

The first provincial convention of the Royal Canadian Air Force Association (B.C. group executive) is being held today at the 800 Pacific Wing Headquarters on Wilson Street.

The group administers the association's affairs at province-wide level.

Attending the convention will be group president Frank Porter, secretary Cynthia Blair, treasurer Tony Graham and first vice-president Dick Higgins. Delegates will come from Nanaimo, Vancouver and other mainland points.

Pontiff Removes 'Sting'

By BENNET M. BOLTON

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul's mixed marriage changes went deeper than many experts anticipated, with the lifting of excommunication from Roman Catholics who married outside their church.

The experts were still sorting out some of the ramifications involved in the instruction Matrimonii Sacramentum (the sacrament of matrimony), a seven-point document changing Catholicism's laws.

Henceforth it will be the Roman Catholic man or wife, not the non-Catholic, who must promise to raise children as Catholics. The non-Catholic will be asked only to respect the duty that his or her Catholic spouse has taken on.

Henceforth a Protestant minister or any other clergyman will be able to stand up in a Catholic church, after a member of his faith has joined in marriage with a Catholic, and give his own homily about their new marriage.

The relatives and friends on each side will be able to pray in common for the newlyweds.

MASS ALLOWED

Henceforth the mixed marriage can take place with a nuptial mass, sermon and nuptial blessing just like an all-Catholic wedding. This is a far cry from recent decades when mixed marriages used to be solemnized privately in the church rectory next door without mass or blessing.

The most startling change for many experts here was the lifting of excommunication.

Catholicism still will consider that only a marriage performed before a Roman Catholic priest is a valid marriage.

But Catholics who may one day exchange wedding vows outside their church, and all who have already done so, no longer incur the cutting off from sacramental life that excommunication means.

Theologians said each case can have many theological and canonical aspects of its own.

EXPLAIN APPLICATION

They said, however, that this is how the basic procedure will apply:

—The Catholic involved in what his church considers an illicit mixed marriage outside the church will still be illicitly married, although no longer cut off from the life of his church.

—Such a Catholic must see a priest, go to confession and thereby make himself once again eligible for receiving other sacraments like communion and the sacrament of the dying.

—He or she must also inquire about what is to be done to "regularize" his or her marriage. Some cases will be simple, others complex. But if the Catholic follows these steps, both his personal spiritual status and his married life will be in full accord with the principles of his religion.

—If the Catholic is unwilling to comply with the needed steps, or makes no move to render his marriage fully licit in the eyes of the church, he will continue in a state of sin—but without the stigma of excommunication.

One marriage expert said the new rule was clearly designed to take away the sting that surrounds excommunication, thereby encouraging Catholics involved in illicit mixed marriages to approach a priest and try to put things in order.

Gorge Presbyterian To Honor Minister

Rev. T. H. McAllister, minister of Gorge Presbyterian Church for 25 years, will be honored at a social following the Sunday morning service in St. Paul's-Gorge Presbyterian Church, Tillicum and Walter.

Mr. McAllister celebrated his 80th birthday this week and will assist at the morning service. He was minister when the new Gorge building was dedicated 10 years ago.

LABOR'S STRENGTH IN BRITAIN GROWS

LONDON (Reuters)—Labor's lead over the Conservative opposition in the March 31 general election jumped to 15½ per cent today in opinion polls.

A survey carried out among a cross-section of voters by The Daily Express, a Conservative newspaper, showed no sign that Conservatives were closing the yawning popularity gap between the two parties to reverse the Tories' slim defeat in the 1964 election.

LIFE TOO EASY NOW, SAYS THIS 'YOUNGSTER' AT 102

Near Kaput? Don't Believe It!

By JACQUES ROUSSEAUX

The steady hands shuffled the deck with dexterity and methodically slipped the cards on the table one by one, solitaire fashion.

It was hard to believe these hands will be 102 years old on Monday.

With the game ready for play, Wilfrid Malhiot leaned back in his rocking chair and waved his right hand over the cards.

"Aah, humbug," he said disgustedly, "I wish I had someone to play cards with."

He looked up expectantly.

"Can you play bridge or whist, young man?" he asked.

"I haven't played for at least 10 years, sir," I said.

He was dissappointed.

Then he smiled and said: "You wouldn't want to play bridge with an old man like me anyway."

I didn't consider him an "old man." He's a spry as a man half his age.

He has a flood of memories. He is full of quips and quick repartees.

"How long am I going to live . . . ha, I'm pretty near kaput," he says.

But the snicker in his voice indicated he doesn't believe it.

He hasn't yet been under medical care, he says, at least not for a long time.

When he was a young man he was "condemned" by three doctors when he received a bad chest injury.

Mr. Malhiot was born in the hamlet of Becancourt, Nicolet, Quebec, on March 21, 1864. He came west in 1883.

Sitting in the comfortable apartment he shares with a daughter on Belmont Avenue, he tells enough anecdotes to plot a 100 television series.

His days were those of the warrior Indians, the Riel rebellion, the cross-country pony rides, the sod-busting jobs in the virgin homestead lands of Saskatchewan. There is no end to his yarns and he loves telling them.

He farmed 50 years on the Prairies. His wife, now deceased, bore 12 children.

"It was tough but it was a good life," he says, "God is my boss and we get along fine."

He believes that people come to things too easily today, and therefore the world is in trouble.

Wilfrid Malhiot doesn't want a cake for his birthday.

"I haven't got enought 'poufff' to blow out 102 candles," he quips.

Yet he still goes for a daily walk, weather permitting.

BRIDGE LESSON

By JACOBY AND SON

South knew that he was pushing some when he went to four spades and was not at all surprised when West doubled.

Opening lead—♣ K.

West opened the king of clubs and South's analysis of the lead and review of the bidding told him that West was going to show up with every missing high card. South's count of losers showed seven possible losers, of which three were certainties. He was going to lose to the ace of hearts, the king of spades and either the king or queen of clubs and he had two more possible losers in each minor suit.

Completing the word ARCH with "How can I make the hand?" South noted that he could get some discards on dummy's hearts and ruff some clubs with dummy's trumps. Then South was ready for action.

He won the first trick since he could not afford to give West a chance to shift to a diamond. Then he led his jack of hearts.

West made a good play by ducking but South overtook; led out another high heart and discarded a diamond while West took his ace.

West led the king of diamonds but it was too late. South won in dummy and discarded his last little diamond on the ten of hearts. Then South led a club and West was back in the lead.

He led a trump but all South had to do was to win in his own hand with the seven spot; ruff a club with dummy's eight; return to his hand by ruffing a diamond with the ace of trumps; ruff his last club with dummy's ten and concede a trick to the king of trumps.

It should be noted that if the king of diamonds was the opening lead, South would have had no way to make the hand but West had no way to know that.

Cheaper To Buy Gas; Trio Fined

Three men found out Friday it's cheaper to buy gas at pumps than to pay for it later in court.

Thomas J. Barton, Gary Neil Couch and Gary E. Abercombie were each fined $50 for theft under $50. They pleaded guilty at earlier hearings.

All are serving in the Royal Canadian Navy.

Barton, who stole gas from a fellow serviceman's car was placed on a $100 bond for three months and ordered to surrender his licence for that period.

"The most effective punishment for people like you is that you don't drive for awhile," said Magistrate William Ostler.

Couch was also put on a $100 bond and ordered to surrender his licence for four months.

He and Abercrombie were caught stealing gas from a car on Tillicum March 10.

N.Y. BEATNIKS FOIL POLICE IN SEAL OFF

NEW YORK (UPI)—Beatniks turned out by the hundreds Friday night to foil a police department plan to seal off 14 blocks of their beloved Greenwich Village to non-resident motorists.

The bearded set raised such a wail of protest from behind police barricades that the barriers came tumbling down 2½ hours after they were set up. It looked like a moral victory for the beatniks in the continuing "coffeehouse war."

The barricades were set up ostensibly to reduce the heavy flow of weekend traffic to the hub of the coffeehouse and cabaret district. But there was no doubt the move was part of Mayor John V. Lindsay's drive to rid Greenwich Village of undesirables and restore its image as a tourist attraction.

Trail Junk Dealer Wins Court Battle

VANCOUVER (CP) — Compensation for a Trail junk dealer whose property was expropriated by the highways department will have to be rearbitrated because of a Supreme Court of Canada decision.

The court upheld a B.C. Supreme Court decision setting aside an arbitration award of $25,000 to Charles Ghirardosi.

Ghiraidosi was awarded the amount for seven acres taken by the department for relocation of part of the southern trans-provincial highway.

"We'll have to go through the whole arbitration procedure again," a department spokesman said today.

He said the relocation project has been completed since Ghiraldosi began his fight against the award in 1963.

The land, which Ghirardosi told the Supreme Court of Canada was worth $450,000, was expropriated by the department in 1961.

When the two parties could not agree on a price, an arbitration board awarded him $150,000.

This award was later wiped out and a second board set the price at $25,000.

The B.C. Supreme Court set aside the second award on the grounds the arbitrator appointed by the department was working at the same time for the department in another expropriation case.

Ghirardosi went to the Supreme Court of Canada when this decision was reversed by the B.C. Appeal Court.

Four Fined For Violating UIC Act

Four men were fined a total of $315 in central magistrate's court Thursday for offenses against the Unemployment Insurance Act.

Stanley Williams of Stan Williams Sporting Goods, 1225 Government St. was fined $15 for failing to answer a separation questionnaire regarding a former employee sent to him by the commission's offices.

He pleaded guilty to the offence.

Alexander White, 1403 Cook, pleaded guilty to a charge of making false statements on a claim for insurance benefits.

The prosecutor said White claimed he had been laid off his job when he had left of his own accord.

He had applied for benefits Jan. 24, though did not receive any, despite his misrepresentation to the commission.

A Sidney man was fined a total of $150 on two counts of misrepresenting his earnings to the UIC. Elmer Henry claimed benefits for two weeks in each of April and May last year when he had been working those same weeks.

Henry pleaded guilty to the charges.

Robert Church, 23, of 3392 Kingsley pleaded guilty to a charge of misrepresenting the facts of his employment separation.

He applied for insurance benefits Jan. 28 saying he had been laid off at a city bottling plant.

The commission learned he had left his job of his own

30 Killed In Egyptian Air Crash

CAIRO (Reuters) — Yemeni Agriculture Minister Aly Mohammad Abdou was among 30 persons killed in the crash of an Egyptian airliner in a desert sandstorm Friday night, it was disclosed today.

The plane, a twin - engined Russian-built Antonov of the Misrair airline, was on a flight from Nicosia, Cyprus.

Charred fragments of wreckage and badly mutilated bodies lay scattered over sand dunes and hillocks.

The Middle East News Agency said the pilot of the Antonov reported before the crash that his aircraft had a crack in the cockpit and a suspected fault in the altimeter.

Another report said the pilot made three attempts to land at Cairo, but was prevented by the sandstorm.

Informed sources in Cairo said later the passengers included 15 East Germans.

There also were two Greek-Cypriots, two Danish privates of the UN Cyprus force, and a UN political officer and his wife.

Two Cases Of TB Found In 11,000

Only two cases of tuberclosis and two cases of tumors have been discovered in the 11,000 persons who have been TB-tested in the Operation Doorstep campaign.

Of persons tested, 88 were referred for X-rays and further examination, which turned up the four cases which require treatment.

Importance of total public participation in Operation Doorstep is emphasized by campaign officials, because of the problem of persons in the older age groups passing TB germs to the very young.

The campaign, which first tested school children throughout the Greater Victoria and Gulf Islands districts, is now in the community phase.

The four big Christmas Seal units of Operation Doorstep move into the Victoria-Esquimalt-Oak Bay area March 28.

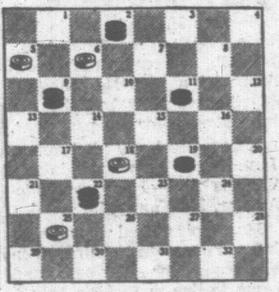
CHIP-DOWN CHECKER TEST



Life is full of seemingly hopeless situations most of which eventually are resolved. Here is one on the checkerboard.

White is surrounded. He's down one man. Three of his opponent's men are kings. White's only blessing is that it's his turn.

White side, moving up the board, to move first and win in nine moves is the challenge. Can you meet it?

Long-time checker star Millard Hopper, who originates these posers, offers his solution below. No fair peeking.

Solution: White 18-14, Black 22-29, White 5-1, Black 9-18, White 1-5, Black 29, White 5-14-23-16-7; then 29-25, 7-10, 25-22, 10-14, 22-25, 14-17, 25-30, 17-22.

CAN YOU FIND THAT NUMBER?

A certain number is composed of four digits the sum of which is 18. The sum of the first, second and fourth figures is equal to the third figure. What's the number?

No fair peeking at answer below.

Answer: Four two nine three meets the requirement.

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

Bahamas has always retained its currency in sterling, but recently it was reported to be changing over to the decimal system, to be in line with most of the other British West Indies, where five shillings is expressed as $1.20 and the pound as $4.80.

It was supposed that Bahamas would follow suit next month, but word has now come from the Crown Agents that this change-over has been postponed, as there is a probability that the islands will convert to U.S. dollar and cents instead, so as to cater to the influx of predominantly American tourists who crowd the islands each season.

Our good friend D. C. Bartley, writing in the March Collectors Club Bulletin, Seattle, has this to say of our forthcoming Centennial Philatelic Exhibition to be held at the Empress Hotel in May—"Victoria is world famous for its atmosphere, scenery and climate. Combine a visit to the Exhibition with a holiday for the whole family. Nineteen-sixty-six commemorates the Centenary of the Union of the Colonies of Vancouver Island and British Columbia to form the Colony of British Columbia within its present boundaries. Come, help us celebrate this historical year. Meet old friends, make new acquaintances in the wonderful family of stamp collectors.

Victoria, is in our opinion one of the nicest places to hold our Annual Convention and Exhibition—you can't miss, they have everything—location, facilities, nice people and lots of fine material."

Four stamps to commemorate the opening of the first deep-sea wharf at Apia, Western Samoa, were issued March 2. Two views of the wharf are shown. Denominations of the stamps are 1d, 8d, 2s and 3s.

Western Samoa is the world's first fully independent Polynesian State and the economy of the country is mainly concerned with the growing of coconuts, bananas, breadfruit, mangoes and oranges, which thrive in the tropical climate and volcanic soil.

EIGHT BILLS, AND ALL IS WELL?

A famous figure skater considered eight his lucky number. Out of habit, when he bought a $103 watch, he paid for it with eight bills.

He did not use five twenties and three ones as might be expected, nor did he use any one dollar bills. With what eight bills in current U.S. use did he complete the transaction?

Answer: Bills used included one fifty, two twenties, a five and four twos.

INSTANT BROWNIES was the name someone gave them during royal tours in B.C. in 1958 and 1959. The name takes in the Guides. Wherever royalty goes they pop up by the hundred, sometimes by the thousand, like park crocuses. They giggle and nudge and squeeze and jump up and down and chatter and scratch and toss their hair and often break through police lines like a screaming tidal wave. Courage was shown by the Queen Mother in approaching them Friday night. The lieutenant-governor took position behind her. Celebrities seem to sense they can walk right up to instant Brownies where lesser humans might fear to tread. By Sunday they will all have turned back into calm and collected little ladies—after infecting everyone who was close to them with royalty fever. And perhaps that's what Brownies are for. U.K. Cuts N. Viet Trade

LONDON (AP)—Under pressure from the British and U.S. governments, British shipowners are quietly phasing out their traffic with North Viet Nam.

The British government also is urging authorities in Hong Kong to discourage owners of British vessels registered in that colony from visiting North Vietnamese ports.

But there are no signs the British government is planning to outlaw the business transacted with the Hanoi regime.

"The principle of preserving free trade is important to us as a trading nation," Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart told an interviewer recently. He added that British trade with Hanoi has no military value.

For months U.S. congressmen and publicists have been worried by reports that ships flying the British, French, Greek, Norwegian and other friendly flags are entering North Vietnamese ports.

Threats of Reprisals in U.S.

Despite contrary assurances by administration officials, some critics believe the British, in particular, have been engaged in large business exchanges with Hanoi at a time when American soldiers are being killed and wounded in the Viet Nam war.

This has produced threats of reprisals by the American maritime unions against ships of countries engaged in the North Viet Nam trade.

But a survey of the situation suggests British trade and traffic with North Viet Nam is marginal and diminishing and that Hong Kong also is cutting back its dealings.

Between 20 and 30 British vessels have visited Haiphong and other North Vietnamese ports from time to time. Fourteen calls were made this year, but some of these have been a single ship making more than one appearance.

At least 17 of these ships are registered in Hong Kong and on charter to foreign, including Communist Chinese, agencies which have rights to send them just about anywhere.

Lately the Norwegian and Liberians governments have banned their vessels from visiting North Viet Nam. Other countries, including Greece, have followed the British lead in getting owners to exclude North Viet Nam from new charter arrangements.

End To Rule By Military Urged In Viet

By EDWIN Q. WHITE

SAIGON (AP) — South Viet Nam's top Buddhist leader declared tonight this war-torn country "must have a congress and constitution to support the government in order to achieve social revolution."

Addressing a rally of more than 10,000 persons, Thich Tam Chau, head of the Buddhist Institute, called again for a national election and a civilian government to replace Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military regime.

However, Chau said a four-point communique issued March 12, which outlined the Buddhist demands, was not intended to criticize or support anyone, or to urge the overthrow of anyone.

Chau said he had met with Ky and Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, the chief of state, before and after issuing the communique. He said Ky and Thieu agreed with the four points and told him: "Keep quiet and keep reassured until the (government) promises are carried out."

Among those promises is an election in 1967.

In addition, the Buddhists are seeking social and economic reforms and a return to military duty alone for the 10 generals composing the ruling military directory.

Informants said men making up the directory had met for three hours to discuss the situation created by the ouster of Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Chan Thi and the Buddhist demands.

Pair Held In Killing

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police today arrested two suspects in the beating death of William Daryl Bohart, 31, of Agassiz, B.C., whose body was found in the bush off a trail in Vancouver's Stanley Park Friday night.

Police said the man had apparently been beaten and his body taken to the park and dragged into the bush.

They said Bohart was free on bail awaiting trial on a charge of conspiracy to defraud a Vancouver branch of the Bank of Montreal here of some $7,200 with cheques which had been stolen from a Seattle trust company.

CITY WELCOMES QUEEN MOTHER

Moment Keeps Its Magic

By PETE LOUDON

Capital region residents cheered, waved flags, saluted and gaped Friday night in a welcome to the Queen Mother Elizabeth that was notable for its informality.

It was a warm greeting. And the Queen Mother responded in kind, dallying with children, graciously giving every photographer time for extra pictures and slowing her car cavalcade wherever knots of people waited.

It was so informal—and the Queen Mother was so responsive—she was half an hour tardy in arriving at Government House.

Her giant Yukon touched down on schedule at Patricia Bay Airport.

There was no band and there was no color guard. But nothing could have added to the thrill of the moment for the crowd, mostly Girl Guides and Brownies.

They'd been gathering for an hour before the 5:35 p.m. touch down. The youngsters were lined before the air terminal like chicks at a feeder, giggling, gasping, jumping up and down and periodically shouting "There she is" whenever anything from a seagull to a Piper Cub appeared in the sky.

When finally the long silver plane appeared in the distance the crowd of 300 who thronged the terminal and its balcony had caught the celebrity fever from the kids.

★ ★ ★

The whining turbo prop engines were an earth-shaking fanfare. The oval door opened, the wheeled stairway was driven to position, and before the moment could lose its magic, the Queen Mother stood framed in the doorway.

There was a surge of welcoming VIPs who had been sheltering inside the terminal until the last moment. They formed up on one side of the stairway:

Mayor and Mrs. Alfred Toone of Victoria, Reeve and Mrs. J. B. Cumming of North Saanich, Rear Admiral and Mrs. M. G. Stirling, Air Com-

Last Chance Tonight

Victorians who missed the arrival of the Queen Mother and the cornerstone-laying ceremonies this afternoon will have a last chance to see her at her departure tonight.

The Queen Mother Eilzabeth was to arrive back at Government House from the ceremonies at 5:10 p.m.

At 8:15 she was to be guest of honor at an informal dinner tendered by Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Pearkes at Government House.

At 10:20, accompanied by the lieutenant-governor and his wife, by Premier and Mrs. Bennett and the mayor and Mrs. Toone, she is scheduled to leave for the airport.

Rout of travel is Rockland, Cook, Fort and Douglas. The Queen Mother will be in the first car in the procession.

Arrival at Victoria International Airport is set for 10:50 p.m. After a short pause for goodbyes, the Queen Mother will board the RCAF Yukon which will carry her to Vancouver, departing at 11 p.m. and arriving 35 minutes later. There, after more goodbyes to her provincial hosts, she boards a Qantas aircraft and departs for Australia at 11:59 p.m.

Conventional Bombs Urged On China

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mme. Chiang Kai-shek said Friday that conventional bombs should be used against Communist China's nuclear installations.

She made the comment in response to questions at a National Press Club luncheon on the growing nuclear threat of Peking.

In her speech and in reply to questions the 67-year-old Mme. Chiang, wife of the Nationalist Chinese leader, stressed that any settlement of the Vietnamese war that is favorable to Hanoi would only benefit Communist China and would not serve the interests of the Soviet Union.

She said it is the design of the Chinese Communists to embroil Russia in a general war so that Peking would come out the real victor.

Mme. Chiang reaffirmed that "we shall return" to the China mainland "and we won't need any of your doughboys to do that."

Russians Leaking China War Story

BERLIN (AP)—A U.S. radio station in West Berlin says it has learned that the Soviet Communist party secretly spread charges that China has been preparing for possible war with Russia.

The U.S. Information Service station RIAS (radio in the American sector) made the claim in a broadcast Thursday. It said the secret letter sent to Communist parties abroad also accused Peking of fostering a long war in Viet Nam in an effort to touch off a clash between the United States and the Soviet Union.

The station said the letter was sent last February by the central committee of the Soviet Communist party to foreign Communist parties.

A RIAS spokesman told a reporter today the station learned of the letter "through sources in East Berlin."

MAKE CHARGES

The broadcast said the Soviet letter charged that the Chinese have:

—Ignored Soviet attempts to heal the ideological split.

—Systematically prepared their population for an attack either from Russia alone or from both Russia and the United States.

—Stepped up provocations along the Far East border with the Soviet Union.

—Spurned peaceful Soviet efforts to settle the border questions.

—Hoped for continued cold war tensions to erupt into a U.S.-Soviet clash resulting in mutual destructions of the two nuclear giants.

—Rejected every Soviet effort to co-ordinate Communist aid to North Viet Nam.

It's Mother's Day, in a Queenly way.

Soviet Spacecraft Got Stuck in Trees

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The last pair of Russian astronauts to go into space came down in a snowy forest where their spacecraft got stuck between a couple of trees, it was disclosed here today.

It took a dramatic rescue effort and an uncomfortable all-night wait in the wilderness before they were brought to safety.

The story was told in the Communist youth daily Komsomolskaya Pravda by a top Soviet space designer who was identified only as "M.K.M."

The astronauts were Alexei Leonov and Pavel Belyaev who went aloft in the spaceship Voskhod 2 about a year ago. It was Leonov who made the first ever "walk" in space and considerable news blackout was imposed at the time on details of the landing.

The ship had to be brought down by manual control and it came to earth hundreds of miles from the planned landing area.

The designer said he was one of a three-man rescue party which set out on skis to reach the spot after a helicopter sighted the stranded Voskhod.

The rescuers took a helicopter to get to a spot about 1½ miles from the Voskhod. It took them two hours to travel the distance on skis through the thick forest.

Illegal Gun Cargo Found Aboard Ship

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) —A Bulgarian freighter seized for secretly delivering Communist-made rifles to Lebanon has been released and has sailed for Bulgaria, customs officials announced today.

The captain of the Veliko Tirnovo was arrested after the ship docked here Jan. 29 and unloaded crates marked "machine parts" that turned out to contain 1,500 guns.

Lebanese customs fined the ship $1,900,000. The ship's agents however, reported that the freighter was freed and the captain allowed to leave after paying a fine of only $33,000.

Reports said the arms were to be shipped to Aden, where terrorists are waging a campaign against the British in the colony and the surrounding South Arabia federation.

West Coast Gaining In Trade

SEATTLE (AP) — The west coast has replaced the eastern sreaboard as the United States region most important in trade with Japan, a Japanese businessman said.

"Today, Washingtoi, Oregon and California together account for a third of all the trade between our two countreis," said Hiro Hiyama, president of Marubeni-Ilda Co. Ltd., and chairman of the economic mission of Japan to the United States Pacific Coast.

The mission ,a group of two dozen Japanese businessmen and officials, has been touring the west coast since Feb. 28.

Loans Never Made—Witness

TORONTO (CP) — Kenneth Ingo, a chartered accountant, Friday told a royal commission investigating the collapse of Atlantic Acceptance Corp. that its president, C. P. Morgan, was one of three men paid $177,571 by a farm company for loans they never made.

Mr. Ingo said the other two chartered accountants Harry Wagman and William Walton, were auditors for Valley Farms and Enterprises Ltd. of Cornwall.

He said that Feb. 28, 1962, the liabilities side of Valley Farms' balance sheet showed three mortgages totalling about $198,000 and an item of $196,391, called directors loans payable. None of this amount was paid into Valley Farms, he said.

When the company went bankrupt Aug. 11, 1965, the directors loans payable account stood at $18,820.

Listing payments from the directors loans payable account, Mr. Ingo started with a $52,247 cheque paid Oct. 10, 1962.

On Oct. 25, 1962, $25,000 was paid the Toronto-Dominion Bank against a promissory note of Mr. Walton's. Five days later $75,000 was paid Mr. Morgan and Dec. 10, 1962, a cheque for $38,000 was sent Mr. Wagman and Mr. Walton.

He said that on June 16 last year $35,000 ended up in the account of Walter Pahn at stockbrokers Barrett, Goodfellow in Toronto.

Mr. Ingo produced a letter to the brokers which said in part: "I am the beneficial owner of the account held by you in the name of Walter Pahn." The letter was signed C. P. Morgan.

Commission counsel Albert Shepherd explained later that while payments to the men totalled more than $177,000 there were some payments made by them to Valley Farms.

Mr. Ingo said the directors of Valley Farms were Mr. Wagman, Mr. Walton and George Blacklock, a Cornwall businessman who never received money from the loan account.

He said, however, that Mr. Blacklock received direct payments between 1962 and 1964. These were shown as loans to Mr. Blacklock on Valley Farms' books to be repaid by him.

He added that all were outstanding at the time of bankruptcy.

Earlier testimony showed Valley Farms owed Adelaide Acceptance $250,000 and Commodore Sales Acceptance $118,000 at the time of bankruptcy. Both were Atlantic subsidiaries.

Arthur Mayse

We have been hearing a good deal lately to the effect that the law is over-zealous in its attempt to guard the rights of the accused, with the result that many who should be enforced guests of the government walk free and saucy out of court.

That too many criminals do escape justice on fiddling technicalities, nobody can deny. However, until one grave fault in Canadian trial procedure is mended, I think we would be most unwise to tamper with the status quo.

What we lack, and what we need very badly wherever an accused person of slender means must defend himself against the formidable weapons of the prosecution is a public defender with a like armament at his disposal.

I further believe that until a tax-supported public defender's office is established in each province, the Canadian conscience will on occasion be troubled by doubts that persist beyond conviction and sentence.

In the case of John Doe against the Crown, we will be forced at times to wonder whether justice was truly done.

★

Change the law's catch-all 'John Doe' to Steven Murray Truscott, a flesh-and-blood young man serving a life sentence in Kingston Penitentiary, and you have the case which is today prickling a great many Canadian consciences.

Steven Truscott has been in custody in one Ontario penal institution or another since 1959. In that year, at the age of 14, he was convicted of murder and condemned to hang—a sentence not imposed on one so young in Canada since 1875.

A year later, after protests that included a sharp reproof from Britain's renowned Manchester Guardian, Steven's sentence was commuted by the federal cabinet.

Was he guilty, as charged, of murdering a 12-year-old girl? A jury in Goderich, Ont., so decided, and an appeal cour upheld the verdict.

However, a Toronto woman writer by the name of Isabel LeBourdais was less sure. She launched an investigation of her own, beginning with a close study of the trial transcript.

As she read, her conviction grew that Steven Truscott had been sentenced for a crime which he might not have committed. Her search led her to the murder area and to the town where the trial was held. She hunted up and interviewed everyone remotely connected with the case, and added medical and legal opinions to her file.

After six years of inquiry, she has set down her findings, and her conclusions, in a book to be released under an English imprint this spring.

In it she states bravely and unequivocally that Steven Murray Truscott couldn't possibly have committed the murder.

★

Among those who have read advance copies of the book is Liberal MP James Byrne for Kootenay East. Mr. Byrne rose in Commons a few days ago to ask that a royal commission be appointed to enquire into the 1959 investigation and trial of Steven Truscott.

"I am personally so convinced of this boy's innocence," he declared, that I am prepared to stake my seat on the outcome."

Other voices have been raised. Their number will grow. It seems probable that the Truscott case will be reopened; and if such omissions and irregularities as Mrs. Lebourdais alleges are found to have taken place, a new trial should be ordered for the boy who became a convict at the age of 14.

Should matters so turn out, we will have yet another argument for the appointment of a public defender, who through his office can do for the accused what all too often he is unable to provide for himself.

Wrong though it is that the guilty should go free, it is infinitely worse that the innocent—among whom the young man in Kingston may yet be numbered—should be punished for crimes they did not commit.

'Why Should Kids Live Like This?'

By ROGER STONEBANKS

More than 300 Saanich children are living in deprivation.

They are the direct dependents of the 202 adults in the municipality living on welfare.

"It is a wonder they are not ill with pneumonia," says welfare administrator Frank Heaton.

"People are living in semi-slum conditions because rents are so high."

"Why should the kids, because of unfortunate circumstances, be in this position?"

Mr. Heaton took me to visit three typical families.

They lived in run-down wooden buildings, without insulation. Damp could be seen seeping through ceilings, directly above children's beds. All the homes were cold.

A number of the children were home with colds and flu. The adults looked pallid, indicating malnutrition.

Rents ranged from $45 to $70 a month. But the cost of heating the uninsulated homes is between $20 and $45 a month — depending on how much heat you can do without.

●

Welfare payments range from $125 to $250 a month. This means roughly half the monthly welfare cheque goes towards rent and heat.

Two of the homes we visited were being rented by deserted wives. One has seven children, the other three.

"Sometimes you feel a bit ashamed," said one woman, living in a home that felt more like a refrigerator.

"Especially when the kids want to bring their friends home. I've heard people say why do you live in such a small house. It's all I can afford."

Coun. Edith Gunning, chairman of the health and welfare committee, said more money is spent heating some of the homes than on food.

Landlords refuse to spend money to have the places repaired, and many are next to impossible to heat.

"It's a wonder how these people exist after they pay rent, heating and clothing expenses," she said.

To combat these conditions, Saanich has told senior officials to study and bring in a report on low-rental housing.

The project envisaged would be a three-storey, 65-suite apartment for low-income people of all age groups. Captial costs would be borne by provincial and senior governments.

●

Rents would be roughly half what welfare recipients now are paying for rent and heat, allowing them to spend the extra money on food. Good living quarters, as well as improving individual morale, would reduce medical expenses for ills caused by poor housing.

I asked Mr. Heaton who are the people on welfare.

He said some are older men laid off who can't get new work, but the biggest group is widows and deserted wives with children.

They receive between $125 a month (with one child) and $250 a month (with six children).

What of the common charge that they are lazy and won't work?

"Who the hell is going to live on that when they can get anything else," snapped Mr. Heaton. "There is the odd one — and only the very odd one — that isn't genuine."

The welfare people we spoke to were enthusiastic about a low-rental project.

"Wouldn't that be wonderful," exclaimed one of them.

Another, noting that half her rent and heat expenses would be saved under such a scheme, said: "We're always broke by the middle of the month."

Considering their circumstances, it is perhaps surprising they are not completely overwhelmed by the forces ranged against them, from runaway husbands to slum landlords.

The homes were as neat and tidy as they could be made. Pictures were arranged on one wall to make a home-like appearance. In one living room three daffodils provided the only beauty.

●

And there was at least one encouraging word from Mr. Heaton.

Most of the children brought up on welfare don't turn into welfare recipients when they are adults, at least not in Saanich.

'Hi Mum' Best Yule Gift A Mother Could Ever Get

By TERRY IZZARD

The miracle of Christmas came true today for Suzanne and Christopher Baker.

Tinsel glistened on a nearby Christmas tree as the Victoria youngsters opened the presents they were never expected to see.

Suzanne, 13, and Christopher, 10, have been in a coma since an automobile accident Dec. 22.

For two months it was touch and go as they lay in separate wards at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

But all that was in the past today as wrappers came off presents and nurses popped in to wish "A Merry Christmas."

* * *

For the children's mother, Mrs. J. R. Baker, 3034 Westdowne, Christopher had a special Christmas surprise of his own.

For the first time he said "Hi Mum."

The eyes which for months stared blankly at the ceiling glistened as he fondled a tiny transistor radio.

Suzanne looked longingly at the new sweaters she will soon be wearing and said: "Can we go home in the car?"

It will be some time before her dream comes true.

* * *

But Mrs. Baker believes in miracles. With good cause.

Until three weeks ago neither child showed interest in their surroundings.

Then, one day, Suzanne spoke.

Within a week she was sitting up and talking again.

Day after day she talked to her still unconscious brother until he, too, came out of the coma.

For the Baker family it was truly a Christmas to remember.

SUITE GUTTED; MAN ARRESTED

Rear of a grocery store at Cedar Hill Road and Lang streets early this morning was gutted by fire.

Martin Lee, owner of the Cost-Lo Food Market, 3060 Cedar Hill Rd., estimated damage in excess of $1,000.

Fire is believed to have started in the building's living quarters by a cigarette.

Store and its contents were unharmed by flames and smoke but the three-room suite at the rear was destroyed.

Tenant Chester Lahmar escaped unharmed and was later arrested on Lang St. for being intoxicated in a public place.

He pleaded guilty and was fined $15 in central court.

Ask The Times

Q. What is the location and purpose of two strange green lights visible from the foot of Oak Bay Ave. through Baynes Channel?

W. S.

A. The lights, although not precisely visible through the channel, are used for navigation, say transport department officials.

One is located at Turkey Head, near Oak Bay Marina, and the other is at the U.S. air station at Whidbey Island.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Youth Loses His Licence

An 18-year-old youth who drove his car on the wrong side of Sooke Rd. early today was fined $250 in central court.

Gary James Watt, 368 Lagoon Rd., pleaded guilty to impaired driving. Magistrate J. A. Byers also suspended his licence for four months.

SCHOOLS WON'T CLOSE

Greater Victoria schools will remain open to the bitter end despite the inroads of 'flu.

This was confirmed today by senior medical health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread and senior superintendent of schools John Gough.

Dr. Whitbread said his department, despite growing absenteeism in schools, would not recommend any closure.

"The children are better off under supervision at school than they would be running around the streets. This applies to all types of infections," he said.

BOARD AGREES

Mr. Gough said the school board agreed with Dr. Whitbread.

"In my opinion we should carry on as long as we are able to provide staff and maintain a reasonable teaching situation.

"So long as some children are willing to come, we should be able to provide for them," said Mr. Gough.

Dr. Whitbread said that in a severe situation classes could be combined if teachers were scarce.

Dr. Whitbread confirmed that 1,000 pupils were absent from district schools, 236 at Lansdowne Junior Secondary alone.

Asked whether any vaccine was available to Victoria residents to help ward against the 'flu, the doctor said he did not advise inoculations, but each person should be guided by his own doctor in this regard.

Dr. Whitbread explained that 'flu vaccine now available is not "specific," as was the vaccine which was available when the Asiatic 'flu came to B.C. several years ago. The virus now prevalent is really a combination of viruses, none of which may be destroyed by the vaccine.

"In any event, to be effective, it would have to be given a couple of months before the 'flu arrives," he added.

Scene Quiet As Lions Work

While 800 Lions and wives descended on the Empress Hotel this morning, all remained quiet on the convention front.

The Lions were pussyfooting through the first phase of their two-day spring conference. Unlike most conventions, there was no "hootin and hollerin."

A spokesman for the group said that although social events are planned today and Sunday "this is a working conference."

Lions' representation comes from Northwest Washington and British Columbia. The topic of the conference is Lionism education. Workshops and panel discussions will cover better ways to serve the community.

Dead-End Road Faces Car Club

Residents Protest Racing at Sandown

By RON SUDLOW

Vancouver Island Track Racing Association may find itself wheeling up a dead-end road.

JOSEPH SAVILLE
. . . started petition

A petition circulated this week among North Saanich residents opposing the club's move to new headquarters at Sandown Park will be presented to council Monday.

The track racing body last week announced a break with Andy Cottyn and Western Speedway where it was a tenant for the past 11 years.

Plans were announced for construction of a three-eights mile paved oval inside the thoroughbred track at Sandown.

The club has signed a five-year lease with B.C. Jockey Club and has started $30,000 worth of improvements.

"I don't know which is worse, them or golden nematodes," said cattle farmer Joseph Saville, 1895 John, whose property adjoins the race track grounds.

He began collecting signatures last weekend after hearing of the club's intention to set up Sandown Raceways.

"All but two of the persons I called on signed the petition. And they were only small property owners," he said.

Mr. Saville claimed Saturday night auto racing throughout the summer would disrupt "the peace and quiet of the community and devaluate property.

"Nobody wants these rip-roaring things around here," he said.

23 SIGNATURES

Municipal clerk Michael Allen said the petition contained 23 signatures which he termed "a pretty fair representation of the area."

Said Reeve James Cumming: "I would imagine council will support the petition.

"It embraces almost everyone surrounding the track."

Mr. Saville suggested squealing tires and popping exhausts would impair production at E. I. Beal's poultry farm at 1805 Glamorgan.

"In 10 years all this area will be subdivided and no one wants one of those things roaring in their backyard." he added.

Annual horse racing at Sandown doesn't bother residents he said.

ADJUST TRAVEL

During the meet residents adjust their travelling so they don't get caught in Sandown traffic, and horse racing doesn't disturb livestock, he explained.

Reg Midgley, president of VITRA which plans jalopy and modified racing at the track, said the petition wouldn't be circulating "if they knew how we look at auto racing."

He added the club is planning to support and contribute to community activities.

"We have stated to council members and residents if the noise is a problem we will run with mufflers," he said.

Tearful Goodbye To Food Stall

The surplus food stall on downtown Cormorant Street handed out its last supplies today to Greater Victoria's poor people.

A near-tearful Mrs. E. E. Harper, along with her husband, said:

"I feel very badly. But I'm 77 and running a high-blood pressure."

The Harpers have run the free food stall behind the Elks Club for the last 13 years. For health reasons, they are having to give it up and today was the last day.

★

"There have been plenty of calls from people willing to help but no one to take it over full-time," she said, as a dozen volunteers brought in food donated by Greater Victorians.

Outside, more than 50 persons—mainly women with small children—waited for the free food.

Mrs. Harper, who said, "I wouldn't have missed it for anything," said about 400 persons benefit each month from the stall.

They comprise 150 families with an average of three persons to a family, although some people have eight or nine children.

★

In bad times, the stall has served the needs of as many as 300 families.

The stall was packed with all kinds of food—bread, meat, fruit, vegetables and preserves. Volunteers collect and bring the food to Cormorant Street.

Saanich welfare administrator Frank Heaton said the ending of the free food stall will hurt many families.

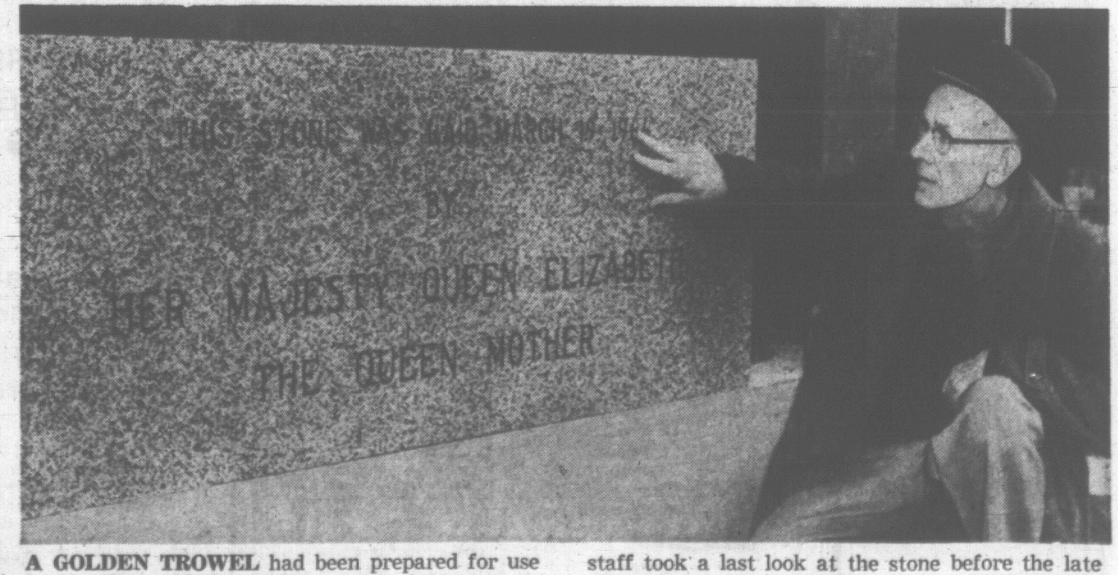
"They often got up to a week's free groceries from it," he said.

Poet Awarded Scholarship

Frank Davey, local poet and English lecturer at Royal Roads, has been awarded a Canada Council fellowship of $3,000.

He will use award for predoctoral studies at the University of Southern California, doing research into the modern non-discursive poem.

His wife Helen will accompany him to Los Angeles, where she will also do postgraudate work.



A GOLDEN TROWEL had been prepared for use by the Queen Mother in her venture into masonry today. She was to use it to spread a token glob of mortar atop this massive polished granite block. C. E. Pettigrew of the government maintenance staff took a last look at the stone before the late afternoon ceremony, laying of the cornerstone in the $7 million B.C. library-archives construction. Project is well under way as federal-provincial project, at Belleville and Government Streets.

INSIDE CITY HALL

Backward System May Be Best For Council

By JIM HUME
Times City Hall Reporter

Scissors and pencils were being sharpened at city hall this week ready for the annual assault on the 1966-67 budget.

And at least one city alderman thinks the almost fatalistic approach to the cut-and-trim method is out of date and doomed to failure.

"We seem to approach the annual budget in an extremely backward fashion," says Ald. Hugh Stephen. "We ask each department head to submit a budget for his department and then go over it with a fine tooth-comb cutting here, trimming there.

Hume

"Having done this we decide how much money we are going to need for the coming year and strike the mill rate.

"Wouldn't it be more sensible if we struck the mill rate first, decided how much revenue we had coming in and then parcelled the money out to the various departments with strict instructions to live within the budget?"

One city in England, Birmingham in the smoke-grimed Midlands, already uses the live-within-your-income type of city budgeting.

The process appears simple.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE

A special committee examines the city's anticipated revenue and works out from that what can be spent by each department on a basis of priorities.

That it is successful there is no doubt for this year Birmingham's taxes will rise only four per cent instead of the 12 per cent forecast under the old budgeting system.

Would it work here?

City comptroller James Bramley is mildly sceptical.

"It obviously works in Bormingham," he said. "But I don't know how they make it work.

"Although the budget we bring down later this month is earmarked for future spending it is the decisions that are made during the year, not at budget time, that cost the money."

Mr. Bramley cites several examples calculated to keep budget-makers awake at night.

"You can't grant a 5 per cent wage increase to garbage collectors and then only allow for a 2 per cent increase in the budget," he said. "Neither can you ask the department to hold the line.

"If you do grant the 5 per cent increase and then slash the department's budget only one thing can happen: service must be reduced, men laid off and collections changed from once a week to once every two weeks."

Another example of problems is given from the fire department.

D..NGER FACTOR

"A cut in working hours resulted in our hiring 16 or 17 additional firemen," he said. "We could have reduced the working hours and gone on with the established manpower, but that would have undoubtedly resulted in a hefty increase in fire insurance rates to say nothing of the danger factor involved when you are operating so obviously below efficient strength."

Mr. Bramley, prepared to seriously consider any suggestion that might save the city a dollar, still feels that the present method of budgeting is the best and only way.

"A department head worth is salt puts a budget forward that he concientiously feels will do the job," he said. "He knows what he will need to do the job he has already been instructed to do by city council."

While the general public will launch its anticipated scream when this year's program of increased spending is unveiled, it is that same public which forces city spending ever higher.

BETTER SERVICES

"Not only are cities being required to maintain existing services with their steadily increasing costs, but they are being required to provide an increased level of service," said Mr. Bramley.

One thing .ity councils can do to hold the line even if only slightly.

"This is purely a personal opinion," says the veteran book-balancer. "But we haven't got the money to maintain properly what we already have and we should not be getting into new activities."

It's a bit of advice city aldermen might like to take with them when next week they take their first and preliminary run at the annual budget

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

The storm which battered the coast Friday lies north of the Queen Charlotte Islands and will continue to weaken. Strong winds, cloud and showers are still occurring over the north coast region. Meanwhile a system passed through the southern interior overnight giving snow-flurries throughout. Behind this system the air mass began to dry out but some cloud and showers still prevail over the south coast. Continued drying will give further improvement to sky conditions over all areas for Sunday.

... QUEEN MOTHER

modore and Mrs. R. C. Weston, Superintendent and Mrs. G. R. Engel, RCMP, and airport manager Jack Knowland and Mrs. Knowland.

The Queen Mother had words for all of them. Then, instead of entering her limousine with her escort, Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes, she turned to the children.

The sun had dipped behind some clouds, but for them it was a brilliant summer day.

The Queen asked Shirley Raper to which Guide company did she belong?

Shirley had to look at her own shoulder patches before replying, "First Elk Lake."

"How are the Guides progressing in Victoria?" the Queen asked Johanna Bergink.

With eloquence deferring to panic, Johanna replied, "Fine."

* * *

Then on to the Brownies, a sea of upturned faces washed in smiles. Then a wave to the crowd before entering the car now drawn up for departure. Premier and Mrs. Bennett, who had come from Vancouver in the plane with the royal party, also took their places in a 12-car cavalcade.

Four natty, white helmeted city policemen on motorcycles, who somehow managed to look as bright as the eight scarlet-coated Mounties who were dodging among the camermen, cranked up their bikes. And the parade began while the Guides and Brownies gave three final cheers.

Police halted all traffic on Pat Bay Highway as the cavalcade turned south, giving the royal party a head start to discourage passers.

* * *

But, perhaps at the Queen Mother's request, progress was slow. Police said later the average speed was only 25 miles per hour all the way to Victoria.

There were pockets of people at almost every intersection and the Queen waved to them all.

At Royal Oak, at Elk Lake, at Town and Country, groups of people waited. There were more children, more Brownies, more Guides, spotted along the highway too.

And there was a tweedy woman standing alone with a Union Jack as big as a tablecloth, tacked to a stick which she waved with both arms. There was an aging loyalist who hadn't time to find a stick, who waved his Union Jack as if he was shaking a rug.

The streets were lined with people as the cavalcade drew closer to the city centre. There were several hundred people waiting at Fort and Douglas and again at Fort and Cook.

* * *

At Rockland, towards the gates of Government House, people and cars thronged both sides of the street. Many had flags.

Most of the older adults wore smiles that can only be described as tender.

They were welcoming their Queen of the years 1936 to 1952, years of hardship, war and perhaps personal loss—and she had experienced these things with them, so they had things in common.

This was a friend whose kindly face they had studied in magazines and newspapers and in church halls and state buildings, who had raised a family while they had raised families, who was a familiar as one of their own.

And they, at least, welcomed the Queen Mother to Victoria as they would an old friend.

7 Students Chosen For Overseas Work

Seven University of Victoria students have been chosen to teach in underdeveloped countries under sponsorship of the Canadian University Service Overseas.

They will cap their four undergradutate years with a two-year stint abroad, starting in September.

The students are: Daniel Curtis, 1706 Sheridan, to Latin America; Glenda Hawes, 2617 Capital Heights, to Latin America; Joan Climenhaga, 877 Newport, to the southern Cribbean; Rolf Turner, 951 Green, to India; Sandra Neve, 4031 White Rock, to the eastern Caribbean, Trinidad or Tobago; Christine Zaccarelli, 3358 Biscoe Drive, to East Africa or Zambia; Katharine Bergbusch, 1372 Craigdarroch, to Ghana.

They were considered a "pretty fair number" out of Uvic's student population of 3,000 to apply for the overseas service, by CUSO representative on campus, Dr. John Ogelsby.

Five Uvic students were seen abroad by CUSO last year.

"So far we've had 100 per cent acceptance of applicants," said Dr. Ogelsby.

The students, selected by CUSO, are hired by governments of the countries where they will teach.

Their exact destinations will be announced later.

Proudest Brownie of them all today is Margaret Patton of 195 View Royal.

On ordinary days she is just another member of View Royal Tuesday Pack at All Saints' Church.

But today she was to be the bearer of the roses—and was to present a bouquet to the Queen Mother during ceremonies at the provincial buildings.

Margaret, 10, was chosen by lot. Her mother says she was too overwhelmed to comment.

Navy Crews Attempt To Move Bomb

MADRID (Reuters)—An unidentified object believed to be a missing American hydrogen bomb will be moved from its perch 2,500 feet under the Mediterranean sea before U.S. navy crews try to raise it to the surface, it was announced today.

Rear - Admiral William S. Guest, commander of the force trying to recover the object, said he proposed to try moving it to a more favorable recovery area because of the steep slope of the sea bottom where it now is resting.

"If successful, this course of action will lessen the risk of having the object fall from its present precarious position into much deeper water," a statement from the U.S. embassy here said.

The object was located Thursday, half - shrouded by what looked like a parachute, about five miles off the fishing village of Palomares on the southeast Spanish coast.

Its discovery appeared to have ended a two - month search for a nuclear bomb that fell into the Mediterranean from a U.S. B-52 jet bomber after the plane crashed during a refueling operation in mid-air on Jan. 17, three other bombs carried by the bomber were later discovered on land.

Contractor Hits Mystery Pickets

The contractor at the Red Lion Motor Inn said today he will wait until Monday before taking legal action against unidentified pickets.

"It depends whether they are there or not," said Siegfried Marquardt.

"They have no right to be there. There is no dispute on the job. The law says the majority don't have to join a union if they don't want to but unions feel everyone must be in."

The pickets, who showed up on three days this week, are protesting non-union tradesmen on the job.

Mr. Marquardt said his company has 10 men in a union and 15 outside. Of the sub-trades at the Red Lion site, about 25 are union members and four or five are not.

He considered the unidentified pickets are the work of a union seeking certification at Marquardt Construction.

Since the pickets first showed up last Tuesday, union plumbers and electricians have not gone to work, he said. But work continued at 85 per cent of normal.

Three separate moves have been taken against the pickets.

The first was to seek an injunction, but this was not granted in B.C. Supreme Court this week on the basis of the material filed by lawyer David Hummel.

Later, two informations were taken out alleging infractions of the provincial Trade Union Act and the federal Criminal Code.

Neither has been pressed and Saanich police are considering it a private matter since no public inconvenience is being caused.

The lawyer for the pickets, Louis Lindholm, said he is surprised at both informations.

"I am extremely doubtful that either would result in conviction," he said.

He has declined to identify his clients and said they are awaiting the next move from Marquardt Construction.

Set For Festival Military Tattoos

Two tattoos are lined up for opening and closing Victoria spring flower festival, both by local army units.

Modified versions of the full-scale military tattoo will be presented on the Empress Hotel lawn at 6.15 p.m., April 2, by members of the militia unit Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's), and on April 9, by the active force infantry unit, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada.

STEEP DESCENT from the aircraft was negotiated with smooth assurance by the Queen Mother who kept her eyes on the crowd awaiting her. The lieutenant-governor, meantime, kept his eye on the Queen Mother and so did everyone else, including a giggle of cheering Guides and Brownies.

WORRISOME QUESTION!

"What was she wearing?"

That was the worrisome question for male reporters as they interviewed each other in the wake of the Queen Mother's arrival Friday night.

All they could agree on was a blue coat and a flowery blue hat.

All hail the public relations man who passed a typed note to one of the reporters who was on the verge of getting an opinion from a Brownie.

It said her dress was of parma violet shantung.

It was a straight dress, with a side panel, detailed on the bodice and hemline with eyelet embroidery in matching silk. Her hat was a toque of tulle and violets. She wore a matching wool coat.

And the solitary women's side reporter present was able to add, "Triple strands of pearls, matching earrings, a diamond and pearl brooch, shoes of deep grey, a matching bag and pearl grey gloves."

Crisis passed. But now comes another predicament.

What will she wear today?

QUEENLY GESTURE underlines a point as Queen Mother chats with Mayor and Mrs. Toone soon after her arrival. If local officials were nervous (and the mayor did drop his hat just before the royal plane arrived) the Queen Mother displayed her flair for putting people at ease.

FEMALE SEX NOT LIKELY TO RECUR?

OTTAWA (CP) — A complaint that women MPs are treated as "something accidental" in the listings of Commons committee members and committee reports was voiced in the House Friday by Mrs. Grace MacInnis (NDP—Vancouver-Kingsway).

She noted that women committee members are listed under "Messrs" with a bracketed "Mrs." after their names in the official Hansard. It was as though they were something accidental and not likely to recur.

Women had been members of the Commons long enough for them to be considered equally with men "and not like raisins in a pudding."

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux said Mrs. MacInnis's complaint would be considered.

Export of Brass Bedstead Knobs Proves U.K. Acumen—Philip

NEW YORK (AP) — After a day of promoting British products, Prince Philip turns today to tending the affairs of Variety Clubs International, a children's charity.

The primary purpose of his 11-day tour of the U.S. is to raise money for the charity.

Prince Philip attends a luncheon today with Mayor John V. Lindsay, Francis Cardinal Spellman, and youth organization representatives. Tonight, he will attend a Variety Clubs banquet.

The prince spent much of Friday touring New York stores, touting British products and drawing large crowds. He acted the role of salesman, but cautioned that no one should get the idea that he is one.

In a humorous talk at the British - American Chamber of Commerce, he tried to put to rest notions that British marketing skill is underdeveloped.

"Any country that can sell tea sets to Russians, export 1,000,000 brass bedstead knobs in 1964 and persuade foreigners to buy water from Glasgow can be relied upon to sell almost anything."

Prince Philip is on his first visit here since he toured with his wife, the Queen, in 1960. He will end his three - day visit Sunday when he leaves for Toronto.

City Business Challenged To Help In Redevelopment

Victoria businessmen were issued a challenge Friday to help their civic government in executing community renewal plans.

The businessmen got the word at the Lions Club of Victoria's luncheon meeting from G. S. Greenhalgh, director of community planning for the city.

Mr. Greenhalgh, who spent years in a similar capacity in both Regina and Calgary, spoke on the changing city.

He told the audience that they should generate whatever influence they can to spark "a minor paint-up job or possibly a major development like Place Ville-Marie (in Montreal)."

He said the city needs the businessmen's help to continue "its dynamic development."

He said it wasn't just a matter of attracting tourists but of preventing the city from becoming static.

Our Royal Visitor

IT IS ALMOST 27 YEARS SINCE today's Royal Visitor captured the hearts of this community on a ceremonial journey that had taken her and the late King from the Atlantic coast to this Pacific capital. The occasion transformed a revered symbol into a warm human personality who has enjoyed the continuing affection of Greater Victoria people.

That sentiment has been further nourished by the all-too-brief program that has renewed our acquaintance with the Queen Mother during the last few hours.

It was a happy feature of the visit that special efforts were made to arrange the motor-cavalcade routes and other appearances so as to permit as close a contact as possible with our people — some of whom are children of parents who were young admirers of the Queen Mother on her last visit here.

We are fortunate that her schedule allowed her to officiate at the cornerstone laying for British Columbia's new museum — a royal gesture to our centennial project which will be commemorated as long as the building stands.

It is the Queen Mother's great gift that her attractive appearance and renowned charm of manner have remained unchanged through the years. She stands as an enduring focus of affection and respect in a turbulent world. The people of this community will wish her a pleasant journey and a safe return to her home.

Mr. Loffmark Rides Again

THE PROVINCE'S MINISTER of industrial development, trade and commerce, rode his favorite hobby horse — economic union between this province and American Pacific Coast states—into Vancouver the other day with whip and spurs flying.

It may be that Mr. Loffmark's idea of integrating the economies of the whole Pacific Coast has a certain dollar-oriented attraction—but even that is only from the short-term viewpoint. Mr. Loffmark fails to come to grips with the really pertinent aspect of economic union —the political consequences. Does he really believe that it is possible to integrate specific areas of two sovereign nations without splitting them off, at least in large measure, from their parent countries?

It hardly seems possible that Mr. Loffmark believes the United States government would allow, as he suggests, Washington, California and Oregon (why not Alaska, too, and make it complete?) to drop customs barriers unilaterally with British Columbia and that the Canadian government would allow this province to make a similar move.

The minister propounds the theory that unnecessary industrial duplication in Canada and the United States is slowing down the economic growth of both. "The Yanks are second to none," he says, "in producing heavy industrial machinery. We in British Columbia have 50 per cent of all the hydro-electric power potential in North America. Why try to duplicate each other instead of pooling our resources?"

Thus in one swift blow the minister of industrial development seeks to reduce his province to the traditional role of "hewer of wood and drawer of water," which, along with the rest of Canada, it has been trying to rise above for decades.

If Mr. Loffmark were to travel extensively around the world—particularly throughout Asia, Africa and South America—he could see at first-hand the economic results in countries which are trying to subsist on the products of primary resource industries. He would see what happens when the primary resources give out or world demand for them weakens, and there is little or no secondary industry to fall back on.

Come to think of it, a long educational trip for the minister might impress him with the fact that money-making is not the only cri- think of it, now that they have at last had a chance to hear about it?

. . . How I Wonder What You Are . . .

THERE SEEMS TO BE A GOOD deal of haste in the handling of preliminaries for the 300-foot needle proposed for the Inner Harbor. The first public knowledge of the project came with disclosure in the legislature that title to the Belleville Street property was being cleared in preparation for construction of the tower. City Council was said to be in favor of the idea. But has anyone stopped to think about the effects of this structure on the Victoria scene?

The city's chief glory is its scenery. As a tourist centre we should protect our chief asset to the full extent, and anything which is proposed to come between us and the view should be looked at with a critical eye.

Certainly a tower of the height proposed would dominate the Legislative Buildings and the incomparable westward prospect toward the Sooke hills. Few if any such needles, built usually for fairground and tourist gimmick purposes, have displayed any real architectural beauty. What do they become once the novelty has worn off? How many tourists coming through Seattle are going to be impressed by a needle only half as high as the one they have already visited?

The legislation to remove federal restrictions on the harbor-front property places a heavy responsibility on the city council. The property had been restricted to esplanade use, although never yet developed for this purpose. The restriction had saved it from becoming the site of a paint company extension, and later of a marine warehouse. Surely a city that aspires to honors as a tourist centre should develop its unique Inner Harbor in the most beautiful way possible. The city of gardens should start at the waterfront if the title is to stick.

Does the proposed needle fit into this Victoria picture? Could it become an integral part of Victoria, or would it become merely "The Thing"? Council seems to have moved very quickly in an unpublicized way. What do the planning advisers think of the proposal? Even more interesting, what do the people think of it, now that they have had a chance to hear about it?

A Soiled Word

AN EXAMPLE OF THE DEterioration of commonly used words is found in the sign on the mobile hot-meal van that has begun to serve some of the elderly people of limited means in Saanich.

The word is "welfare". This is assumed by some persons protesting the wording to indicate what has been called social welfare. Social welfare is the euphemism which long ago was substituted for the words "relief" or "dole" in order to avoid their unpleasant connotations.

It is right and proper, of course, that the dignity and respect of an individual should be preserved against any implied stigma of poverty. It is a misfortune of our times that when this is achieved by substituting a respectable word for those which offend, the respectable word itself soon takes on a sort of threadbare disreputability

Dr. Pugsley's Euclidian Theorem

UNTIL his name appeared obscurely in the papers a few days ago I had never heard of Dr. William H. Pugsley, a professor at McGill University. Probably few Canadians outside Montreal's academic elite had heard of him, either. This is a great pity. For Dr. Pugsley, judging by his recent speech, appears to be a man of common sense, a most uncommon specimen, a very rare bird, in Canada's current debate. Anyhow, while Parliament was playing out a more than usually weird script, doubtless written by the late Ian Fleming for his hero, James Bond, Dr. Pugsley was telling the nation a few simple home truths. Of course nobody listened to him. He could not compete with the high melodrama of politics.

Hutchison

Nevertheless, the facts cited by Dr. Pugsley will remain, to threaten the nation's life, long after the present Parliament is dead. They are uncomplicated facts, really. A child can understand them. Yet the nation does not understand them because debate among the politicians of all parties scrupulously avoids facts as if they were sordid, shameful and beneath contempt.

Unanswerable

Dr. Pugsley's Euclidian theorem is neat and unanswerable. Canadians, he says, do not save enough money and fail to generate enough capital to develop their own resources. They borrow capital heavily from other nations and, to raise it, sell their resources to foreigners. "Less capital of our own can only mean we will need even more from the United States. Thus, the United States will come to own a still larger proportion of the industry here." As Euclid could say Q.E.D.

Even if foreign investment is urgently needed in a growing nation the additional need of maximum Canadian capital, saved at home, is so obvious that you would expect all government policy to be shaped accordingly. But it is not. In fact, it is shaped in the main for precisely opposite purposes.

From Ottawa to the smallest municipality government does just about everything imaginable to discourage Canadians from saving their money and investing it in their own industries.

The ever-increasing taxes collected by government at three levels are monies that cannot be saved for business investment. To be sure, the new compulsory saving device known as the Canada Pension Plan will accumulate vast sums but they will be spent by the provincial governments mainly for social investments of various kinds. All of them are desirable, some essential, but for the most part they provide no capital for business expansion. Moreover, when government is systematically inflating the currency the average Canadian may well wonder why he should save money which is sure to lose its purchasing power later on.

Capital Gains Tax

But the ingenuity of government in draining the nation's capital is not yet exhausted by any means. As Dr. Pugsley observes, the latest proposal is a tax on all capital gains. The money thus collected would no longer be capital. It would not be used for industrial investment. It would be used to pay the running costs of government, the nation's daily housekeeping bills. "A tax on the country's capital funds," says Dr. Pugsley, "can only increase the country's dependence on foreign capital."

Here is the vicious circle by which Canadians try to have their cake and eat it. On the one hand, we solemnly resolve to make the country grow by massive investment, both domestic and foreign. On the other, we commit so much of our income in advance to expanding state services that there is not enough left for adequate savings.

We talk boldly of buying our resources back from foreigners, some day, but as we are going now we shall never save the necessary capital. Indeed, as we are going now we shall sooner or later plunge into another foreign exchange crisis, devalue the Canadian dollar again and pretend that this conjuring has solved our problem when it has merely admitted our failure and ratified our folly.

Well Understood

All these facts are well understood in Ottawa and were fully explained to me not long ago by a major and exceedingly unhappy statesman who is just as smart and educated as Dr. Pugsley but necessarily not as candid in public.

Do not suppose for a moment that the politicians are too stupid to realize what is happening. They realize all right but they are caught in the net of self-deception that envelops Canada today and strangles its energies as Gulliver was pinned down by the pygmies.

When an independent, non-political thinker like Dr. Pugsley sees through the nonsense you may be sure that he will be denounced as a reactionary, an economic Neanderthal, perhaps even as a capitalist (the ultimate crime) though clearly the nation's greatest need is more capital.

If every Canadian were encouraged to make himself a small capitalist and invest in business we would have a good chance of solving our economic problem and, with it, our political problem of national independence. Instead, we prefer the slogans, the hoopla and the soothing auto-intoxication to the facts every time.

FROM OTTAWA

By MAURICE WESTERN

From the Mess: A Conservative Leader?

THE aftermath of the Munsinger debate is a pervading uneasiness about the leadership of both major parties. This cannot be disguised by caucus ceremonials. Whatever may be said or not said about it in public, it is one of the facts of our political life. On the side of the Liberals the crisis has had no effect on the more obvious candidates for the succession for the good reason that none was openly involved in the parliamentary struggle. Active as they may well have been behind the scenes, they were spectators in the House of Commons. No reason of good sense required their intervention for they were not principals in the affair, they had no interest in prolonging debate; and the points of difficulty which arose were best left to the procedural experts.

Western

On the side of the Conservatives, however, there has been a distinct change. It was Mr. Fulton who dominated the debate in the closing days and by dominating it made himself once again the subject of fascinated speculation among political observers. There was a time after his disastrous venture into provincial politics when Mr. Fulton looked the darkest of dark horses for the national race. But if merit still matters in public life, few who watched his performance this week would bet against him now.

Mr. Fulton's power does not flow simply from debating ability. He was always a formidable debater, possibly the best in his party, but he did not always have the stature he possesses today. From the time he returned to Ottawa after days of chaos, something happened to the party. Not being leader, he did not exert complete control but his moderating influence was at once apparent and, as the outcome demonstrated, it was not dissipated, even by Mr. Nielsen's discordant and violent attack of Monday evening.

Indefinable Quality

As Mr. Peter Newman observed in a column, there was a "prime ministerial" quality about Mr. Fulton's speeches. This is not a quality which is easy to define. It is certainly not a matter of lucidity or superb articulation; some very successful prime ministers have been distinguished for neither. But it includes among other things an aura of command, a deep sense of public affairs, disciplined self-restraint and the many intangibles which compel respect in all quarters of the House.

There are in the country, and especially in provincial capitals, eminent and very intelligent Conservatives who may have high ambitions. But they share one handicap; they have not been tested in the House of Commons. It is in the House that Mr. Fulton has achieved the summit of his powers.

What may happen in a popular convention, no one can say. All sorts of considerations are weighed by delegates in smoke-filled rooms and the qualities possessed by Mr. Fulton are not those which seem to have counted for most with a great body of Conservatives in recent years. If he is to be judged by the standards of the image-makers, it may well be that someone else will snatch the prize.

On the other hand, there is a thoughtful opinion that Mr. Fulton may be favored by the tide of public disgust with the politics of recent years. He has some traits; a certain diffidence, an intellectual's dislike of emotional fuzziness, a disinclination to compete in the back-slapping arts, which might at other times be considered handicaps but in changed conditions count in his favor.

Issues or Personalities

It may be that the country would now prefer the politics of issues to the politics of personalities. In that case Mr. Fulton's record should be reassuring. That he has not shrunk from issues will be apparent from his many appearances as a central figure in past controversies.

If Mr. Fulton comes well out of the Spence inquiry, his prestige in the House of Commons will be a serious problem for his rivals within the Conservative party. No one knows how the other possible heirs apparent would look if transposed from legislative to parliamentary seats. But there is no doubt in Mr. Fulton's case on Monday and Tuesday: he looked like a leader.

MARKED for READING

NOT FOR EVER

"National character" is sometimes a useful concept, but it is also dangerous because one slides so easily into the demonstrably false image of something innate, biological, that goes on and on, century after century.

—M. I. Finley, Reader in ancient social and economic history at Cambridge University.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

FOR a quiet ramble go out to Logan Park, off Viaduct Avenue by way of Interurban Road.

Here the Saanich Parks Department has made a nice hiking trail through the fifteen acres of parkland.

By the small creek you will find many little frogs, waiting with just their eyes above the water. As soon as it is quiet they will commence to sing again.

Here the Water-Parsnip with its fine-toothed leaves is now appearing; mixed with it you can find the Water-Hemlock, whose leaves have coarse teeth.

There are a number of old stumps along the way that stand out like giant flower pots crowned with Salal, Huckleberry and perhaps a few seedlings of fir and cedar.

Also on view are some "nurse logs" that show the spectrum of plant life from the lichens and mosses to the growing trees.

There is a little swamp at the western edge where the Hardack is breaking into leaf. Along the edges the Ninebark leaves have already appeared and, of course, our old friend the Arum or Skunk cabbage.

There are some really fine old broadleaf maples in this area, as well as a grove of red alders that are clean and tall. Examine the mottled trunk of one of these and see the tiny lichens growing there.

There are a number of high moss-covered rock outcrops and here the Bittercress is in full bloom.

Carefully lift a piece of bark from some old log and you will find many termites working away. Perhaps you may be lucky and find one of the queens with its extra large body and dark-brown head.

Close by there is sure to be a Salamander moving along in the shade in search of some insect.

Replace that bit of bark, please.

Letters

Lower Liquor Age

I notice the government proposes to raise to $150 the fines for minors who enter licenced drinking premises. This is supposed to make it fairer to waiters who can be assessed this much for serving them.

Surely while the act is up for consideration it is time to reduce the minor age for this purpose to 19 years from 21.

In our province a person of 19 may vote and may be trained to carry weapons and kill in the armed forces. Why maintain this silly pretence that they cannot handle liquor just as well at 19 as at 21?—For Fair Play.

Vacant Seats

The other evening I attended the Solarium "Showtime 66" and would like to say what a lot of real talent that organization has!

The audience was very enthusiastic, but there were so few people there.

Where were all those people who complained so loudly last year about the "minstrel" show? It makes one's blood boil that they do not patronize the talent of Victoria.—An Admirer.

Bird Song

What a joy it is to hear the birds singing once again.

I do hope that when the gardens are being attended to that pesticides and sprays will be used sparingly, if at all, for this kills the birds.

As I am writing I can hear a robin singing to its mate.—(Mrs.) Olive Detloe Wilson, 3059 Harriet.

Phallic Symbol

Reference is made to your recent news item regarding the proposed space needle on Victoria's waterfront.

So we too, like Pompeii, Paris, Toronto and Seattle, are to have a civic phallic symbol. To what will we be testifying? The fecundity of Social Credit or the fertility of Mr. Bennett's imagination?—Curious.

End Hypocrisy

I have been encouraged to read in recent news reports that the subject of national sweepstakes is to come up at this session. We should do away with the hateful hypocrisy to which we are now subjected, and keep tens of millions of our dollars in Canada, that now go to Ireland and Britain, for sweepstakes and football pools.

Let us all write to our MP, Ottawa, and ask that the Criminal Code be amended so that we may have a sweepstake for the Queen's Plate race, which is run annually in Toronto in June.—Doris Ashdown, 1890 Haro, Vancouver.

Forgetting Aggressors?

No wonder Russia is annoyed at—and fearful of—Germany being re-armed and furnished with nuclear weapons. This antagonism and objection is natural and understandable since Germany broke the peace pact between them and attacked Russia in the early 1940s, and probably could have conquered had not Russia's severe winter halted the Germans until Russia was able to drive them back, capturing the intermediate territory.

Why is it that communism is portrayed as the only or most aggressive power when it was fascism that twice in this century plunged the world to war? (Mrs.) L. Pratt, Galt, Ont.

Not for a Chosen Few

As a taxpayer I would like to comment on your article about civic employees receiving reduced parking rates in the Fisgard Street parkade. I heartily disagree with this situation.

This building was built with public funds for the benefit of everyone, not a chosen few.—C. W. Haines, 310 Huntington.

Condemnation

I think everyone should read and consider seriously the article by Norman Cousins, "Is the War in Viet Nam 'Just Right' for the U.S.?"

I feel it is a very factual condemnation of the world of 1966. Gallant men, innocent women and children are dying in Viet Nam so that the present industrial boom can be maintained.

Surely the money which is being wasted in the blood-bath of Viet Nam could be channelled into something more productive such as the war on poverty and the feeding of the many millions of hungry people in all parts of the world—some even in our own Canada.—M. P. B. Wrixon, 2530 Lansdowne.

Dead March as Appropriate

Congratulations to Mr. Bennett on the show he threw at the Causeway the other night — and then it wound up with a mournful, doleful playing of the Centennial tune.

This music would be more appropriate at a service in a funeral home for the "late departed". Why not substitute the "Dead March"—just as appropriate, and better known by the general public?—Temporarily Disgusted.

Destructive

Montreal La Presse

Up to the present time, this unfortunate Parliament, paralyzed by vendettas, has done nothing worthwhile. It has marked time while confronted with an enormous legislative load. When will it once again become conscious of its true responsibilities? . . . The two parties in the House, which have fallen many notches in the eyes of the public, have for weeks been in the process of destroying each other. If this sorry spectacle does not soon end, our parliamentary system will only be able to come out of it staggering. It must be hoped that this prospect has already been haunting for some time the minds of the more lucid and serious members. If not, the situation is even worse than it appears. . .

Another aspect of this interminable crisis is the profound division that it risks creating within Parliament and the two principal parties, between French-Canadians and English-Canadians. Whatever errors and responsibilities weigh on each, it must be noted that the partisan fights conducted at Ottawa in recent years have for the most part had French-Canadians as targets and victims. . . . Whatever one says, whichever way one turns, one comes back in the end to an impression of disarray, to a sort of state of impotence in face of events which exceed normal proportions. Things are at the point where only a sudden recovery close to a miracle can again give life and movement to this sorry Parliament which is at the mercy of its own contradictions.

U.K. Slashes Hanoi Trade

U.S. Pressure Seen in Move

LONDON (AP)—Under pressure from the British and U.S. governments, British shipowners are quietly phasing out their traffic with North Viet Nam.

The British government also is urging authorities in Hong Kong to discourage owners of British vessels registered in that colony from visiting North Vietnamese ports.

But there are no signs the British government is planning to outlaw the business transacted with the Hanoi regime.

"The principle of preserving free trade is important to us as a trading nation," Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart told an interviewer recently. He added that British trade with Hanoi has no military value.

For months U.S. congressmen and publicists have been worried by reports that ships flying the British, French, Greek, Norwegian and other friendly flags are entering North Vietnamese ports.

Despite contrary assurances by administration officials, some critics believe the British, in particular, have been engaged in large business exchanges with Hanoi at a time when American soldiers are being killed and wounded in the Viet Nam war.

This has produced threats of reprisals by the American maritime unions against ships of countries engaged in the North Viet Nam trade.

BRITISH TRADE

But a survey of the situation suggests British trade and traffic with North Viet Nam is marginal and diminishing and that Hong Kong also is cutting back its dealings.

Between 20 and 30 British vessels have visited Haiphong and other North Vietnamese ports from time to time. Fourteen calls were made this year, but some of these have been a single ship making more than one appearance.

At least 17 of these ships are registered in Hong Kong and on charter to foreign, including Communist Chinese, agencies which have rights to send them just about anywhere.

Lately the Norwegian and Liberian governments have banned their vessels from visiting North Viet Nam. Other countries, including Greece, have followed the British lead in getting owners to exclude North Viet Nam from new charter arrangements.

INSTANT BROWNIES was the name someone gave them during royal tours in B.C. in 1958 and 1959. The name takes in the Guides. Wherever royalty goes they pop up by the hundred, sometimes by the thousand, like park crocuses. They giggle and nudge and squeeze and jump up and down and chatter and scratch and toss their hair and often break through police lines like a screaming tidal wave. Courage was shown by the Queen Mother in approaching them Friday night. The lieutenant-governor took position behind her. Celebrities seem to sense they can walk right up to instant Brownies where lesser humans might fear to tread. By Sunday they will all have turned back into calm and collected little ladies—after infecting everyone who was close to them with royalty fever. And perhaps that's what Brownies are for. End To Rule By Military Urged In Viet

By EDWIN Q. WHITE

SAIGON (AP) — South Viet Nam's top Buddhist leader declared tonight this war-torn country "must have a congress and constitution to support the government in order to achieve social revolution."

Addressing a rally of more than 10,000 persons, Thich Tam Chau, head of the Buddhist Institute, called again for a national election and a civilian government to replace Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military regime.

However, Chau said a four-point communique issued March 12, which outlined the Buddhist demands, was not intended to criticize or support anyone, or to urge the overthrow of anyone.

Chau said he had met with Ky and Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, the chief of state, before and after issuing the communique. He said Ky and Thieu agreed with the four points and told him: "Keep quiet and keep reassured until the (government) promises are carried out."

Among those promises is an election in 1967.

In addition, the Buddhists are seeking social and economic reforms and a return to military duty alone for the 10 generals composing the ruling military directory.

Informants said men making up the directory had met for three hours to discuss the situation created by the ouster of Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Chan Thi and the Buddhist demands.

Pair Held In Killing

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police today arrested two suspects in the beating death of William Daryl Bohart, 31, of Agassiz, B.C., whose body was found in the bush off a trail in Vancouver's Stanley Park Friday night.

Police said the man had apparently been beaten and his body taken to the park and dragged into the bush.

They said Bohart was free on bail awaiting trial on a charge of conspiracy to defraud a Vancouver branch of the Bank of Montreal here of some $7,200 with cheques which had been stolen from a Seattle trust company.

CITY WELCOMES QUEEN MOTHER

Moment Keeps Its Magic

By PETE LOUDON

Capital region residents cheered, waved flags, saluted and gaped Friday night in a welcome to the Queen Mother Elizabeth that was notable for its informality.

It was a warm greeting. And the Queen Mother responded in kind, dallying with children, graciously giving every photographer time for extra pictures and slowing her car cavalcade wherever knots of people waited.

It was so informal—and the Queen Mother was so responsive—she was half an hour tardy in arriving at Government House.

Her giant Yukon touched down on schedule at Patricia Bay Airport.

There was no band and there was no color guard. But nothing could have added to the thrill of the moment for the crowd, mostly Girl Guides and Brownies.

They'd been gathering for an hour before the 5:35 p.m. touch down. The youngsters were lined before the air terminal like chicks at a feeder, giggling, gasping, jumping up and down and periodically shouting "There she is" whenever anything from a seagull to a Piper Cub appeared in the sky.

When finally the long silver plane appeared in the distance the crowd of 300 who thronged the terminal and its balcony had caught the celebrity fever from the kids.

★ ★ ★

The whining turbo prop engines were an earth-shaking fanfare. The oval door opened, the wheeled stairway was driven to position, and before the moment could lose its magic, the Queen Mother stood framed in the doorway.

There was a surge of welcoming VIPs who had been sheltering inside the terminal until the last moment. They formed up on one side of the stairway:

Mayor and Mrs. Alfred Toone of Victoria, Reeve and Mrs. J. B. Cumming of North Saanich, Rear Admiral and Mrs. M. G. Stirling, Air Com-

Last Chance Tonight

Victorians who missed the arrival of the Queen Mother and the cornerstone-laying ceremonies this afternoon will have a last chance to see her at her departure tonight.

The Queen Mother Eilzabeth was to arrive back at Government House from the ceremonies at 5:10 p.m.

At 8:15 p.m. she was to be guest of honor at an informal dinner tendered by the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Pearkes at Government House.

At 10:20, accompanied by the lieutenant-governor and his wife, by Premier and Mrs. Bennett and the mayor and Mrs. Toone, she is scheduled to leave for the airport.

Route of travel is Rockland, Cook, Fort and Douglas. The Queen Mother will be in the first car in the procession.

Arrival at Victoria International Airport is set for 10:50 p.m. After a short pause for goodbyes, the Queen Mother will board the RCAF Yukon which will carry her to Vancouver, departing at 11 p.m. and arriving 35 minutes later. There, after more goodbyes to her provincial hosts, she boards a Qantas aircraft and departs for Australia at 11:59 p.m.

Conventional Bombs Urged On China

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mme. Chiang Kai-shek said Friday that conventional bombs should be used against Communist China's nuclear installations.

She made the comment in response to questions at a National Press Club luncheon on the growing nuclear threat of Peking.

In her speech and in reply to questions the 67-year-old Mme. Chiang, wife of the Nationalist Chinese leader, stressed that any settlement of the Vietnamese war that is favorable to Hanoi would only benefit Communist China.

Soviet Spacecraft Got Stuck in Trees

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The last pair of Russian astronauts to go into space came down in a snowy forest where their spacecraft got stuck between a couple of trees, it was disclosed here today.

It took a dramatic rescue effort and an uncomfortable all-night wait in the wilderness before they were brought to safety.

The story was told in the Communist youth daily Konsomoiskaya Pravda by a top Soviet space designer who was identified only as "M.K.M."

The astronauts were Alexei Leonov and Pavel Belyaev who went aloft in the spaceship Voskhod 2 about a year ago. It was Leonov who made the first ever "walk" in space and considerable news blackout was imposed at the time on details of the landing.

The ship had to be brought down by manual control and it came to earth hundreds of miles from the planned landing area.

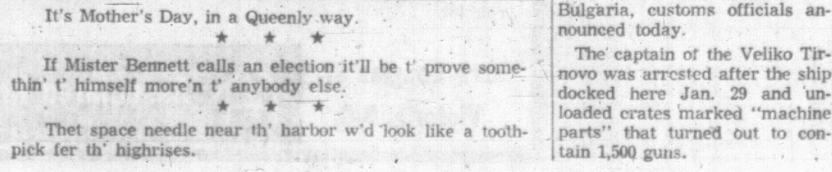
The designer said he was one of a three-man rescue party which set out on skis to reach the spot after a helicopter sighted the stranded Voskhod.

The rescuers took a helicopter to get to a spot about 1¼ miles from the Voskhod. It took them two hours to travel the distance on skis through the thick forest.

Poles Sheared

NANAIMO (CP) — Telephone service north and south of Ladysmith was interrupted today when an automobile driven by an unidentified driver sheared off three telephone poles beside the North Oyster road.

The poles were left hanging by the wires.



It's Mother's Day, in a Queenly way.

Illegal Gun Cargo Found Aboard Ship

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) —A Bulgarian freighter seized for secretly delivering Communist-made rifles to Lebanon has been released and has sailed for Bulgaria, customs officials announced today.

The captain of the Veliko Tirnovo was arrested after the ship docked here Jan. 29 and unloaded crates marked "machine parts" that turned out to contain 1,500 guns.

Lebanese customs fined the ship $1,900,000. The ship's agents however, reported that the freighter was freed and the captain allowed to leave after paying a fine of only $33,000.

Reports said the arms were to be shipped to Aden, where terrorists are waging a campaign against the British in the colony and the surrounding South Arabia federation.

SEVIGNY WARNED —PAPER

MONTREAL (CP)—La Presse says that a few months before Gerda Munsinger left Montreal to return to Germany, John Diefenbaker asked Pierre Sevigny, associate defence minister, to end his association with the woman.

The newspaper says that the meeting between Mr. Diefenbaker, then prime minister, and Mr. Sevigny took place in great secrecy and followed rumors which had been circulating in Parliament that "certain ministers" were having relations with a woman of doubtful past.

At the same time, says La Presse, Mr. Diefenbaker had in his possession certain confidential documents which had been sent to him by the RCMP.

NOT A SPY

The newspaper says Mr. Diefenbaker informed Mr. Sevigny that there was nothing in these documents to indicate that Mrs. Munsinger was a spy.

Meanwhile, La Presse says, the RCMP began investigating Mrs. Munsinger on the request of certain influential members of Parliament who took a dim view of the friendly relations she had with certain cabinet meetings.

There were, in fact, two meetings between Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Sevigny, the newspaper says.

In the first, it says, he simply asked the minister to consider the consequences of his continued social relations with the woman, but in the second he told the associate defence minister that Mrs. Munsinger probably had a criminal past, or, at least, knew intimately certain members of the underworld.

PHOTOGRAPH

At the second meeting, La Presse continues, Mr. Diefenbaker assured Mr. Sevigny that Mrs. Munsinger did not have a background in espionage.

The newspaper says that during this second meeting the Conservative prime minister showed Mr. Sevigny the confidential file on Mrs. Munsinger he had received from the RCMP, and that he also told the associate defence minister that the RCMP had a photograph showing a cabinet minister dancing with the woman.

Mr. Sevigny, the paper says, decided to end his association gradually with Mrs. Munsinger and told his chief this.

INSIDE CITY HALL

Backward System May Be Best For Council

By JIM HUME
Times City Hall Reporter

Scissors and pencils were being sharpened at city hall this week ready for the annual assault on the 1966-67 budget.

And at least one city alderman thinks the almost fatalistic approach to the cut-and-trim method is out of date and doomed to failure.

"We seem to approach the annual budget in an extremely backward fashion," says Ald. Hugh Stephen. "We ask each department head to submit a budget for his department and then go over it with a fine toothcomb cutting here, trimming there.

Hume

"Having done this we decide how much money we are going to need for the coming year and strike the mill rate.

"Wouldn't it be more sensible if we struck the mill rate first, decided how much revenue we had coming in and then parcelled the money out to the various departments with strict instructions to live within the budget?"

One city in England, Birmingham in the smoke-grimed Midlands, already uses the live-within-your-income type of city budgeting.

The process appears simple.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE

A special committee examines the city's anticipated revenue and works out from that what can be spent by each department on a basis of priorities,

That it is successful there is no doubt for this year Birmingham's taxes will rise only four per cent instead of the 12 per cent forecast under the old budgeting system.

Would it work here?

City comptroller James Bramley is mildly sceptical.

"It obviously works in Bormingham," he said. "But I don't know how they make it work.

"Although the budget we bring down later this month is earmarked for future spending it is the decisions that are made during the year, not at budget time, that cost the money."

Mr. Bramley cites several examples calculated to keep budget-makers awake at night.

"You can't grant a 5 per cent wage increase to garbage collectors and then only allow for a 2 per cent increase in the budget," he said. "Neither can you ask the department to hold the line.

"If you do grant the 5 per cent increase and then slash the department's budget only one thing can happen: service must be reduced, men laid off and collections changed from once a week to once every two weeks."

Another example of problems is given from the fire department.

DANGER FACTOR

"A cut in working hours resulted in our hiring 16 or 17 additional firemen," he said. "We could have reduced the working hours and gone on with the established manpower, but that would have undoubtedly resulted in a hefty increase in fire insurance rates to say nothing of the danger factor involved when you are operating so obviously below efficient strength."

Mr. Bramley, prepared to seriously consider any suggestion that might save the city a dollar, still feels that the present method of budgeting is the best and only way.

"A department head worth is salt puts a budget forward that he concientiously feels will do the job," he said. "He knows what he will need to do the job he has already been instructed to do by city council."

While the general public will launch its anticipated scream when this year's program of increased spending is unveiled, it is that same public which forces city spending ever higher.

BETTER SERVICES

"Not only are cities being required to maintain existing services with their steadily increasing costs, but they are being required to provide an increased level of service," said Mr. Bramley.

One thing city councils can do to hold the line even if only slightly.

"This is purely a personal opinion," says the veteran book-balancer. "But we haven't got the money to maintain properly what we already have and we should not be getting into new activities."

It's a bit of advice city aldermen might like to take with them when next week they take their first and preliminary run at the annual budget

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

The storm which battered the coast Friday lies north of the Queen Charlotte Islands and will continue to weaken. Strong winds, cloud and showers are still occurring over the north coast region. Meanwhile a system passed through the southern interior overnight giving snowflurries throughout. Behind this system the air mass began to dry out but some cloud and showers still prevail over the south coast. Continued drying will give further improvement to sky conditions over all areas for Sunday.

. . . QUEEN MOTHER

modore and Mrs. R. C. Weston, Superintendent and Mrs. G. R. Engel, RCMP, and airport manager Jack Knowland and Mrs. Knowland.

The Queen Mother had words for all of them. Then, instead of entering her limousine with her escort, Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes, she turned to the children.

The sun had dipped behind some clouds, but for them it was a brilliant summer day.

The Queen asked Shirley Raper to which Guide company did she belong?

Shirley had to look at her own shoulder patches before replying, "First Elk Lake."

"How are the Guides progressing in Victoria?" the Queen asked Johanna Bergink.

With eloquence deferring to panic, Johanna replied, "Fine."

★ ★ ★

Then on to the Brownies, a sea of upturned faces washed in smiles. Then a wave to the crowd before entering the car now drawn up for departure. Premier and Mrs. Bennett, who had come from Vancouver in the plane with the royal party, also took their places in a 12-car cavalcade.

Four natty, white helmeted city policemen on motorcycles, who somehow managed to look as bright as the eight scarlet-coated Mounties who were dodging among the camermen, cranked up their bikes. And the parade began while the Guides and Brownies gave three final cheers.

Police halted all traffic on Pat Bay Highway as the cavalcade turned south, giving the royal party a head start to discourage passers.

★ ★ ★

But, perhaps at the Queen Mother's request, progress was slow. Police said later the average speed was only 25 miles per hour all the way to Victoria.

There were pockets of people at almost every intersection and the Queen waved to them all.

At Royal Oak, at Elk Lake, at Town and Country, groups of people waited. There were more children, more Brownies, more Guides, spotted along the highway too.

And there was a tweedy woman standing alone with a Union Jack as big as a tablecloth, tacked to a stick which she waved with both arms. There was an aging loyalist who hadn't time to find a stick, who waved his Union Jack as if he was shaking a rug.

The streets were lined with people as the cavalcade drew closer to the city centre. There were several hundred people waiting at Fort and Douglas and again at Fort and Cook.

★ ★ ★

At Rockland, towards the gates of Government House, people and cars thronged both sides of the street. Many had flags.

Most of the older adults wore smiles that can only be described as tender.

They were welcoming their Queen of the years 1936 to 1952, years of hardship, war and perhaps personal loss—and she had experienced these things with them, so they had things in common.

This was a friend whose kindly face they had studied in magazines and newspapers and in church halls and state buildings, who had raised a family while they had raised families, who was a familiar as one of their own.

And they, at least, welcomed the Queen Mother to Victoria as they would an old friend.

7 Students Chosen For Overseas Work

Seven University of Victoria students have been chosen to teach in underdeveloped countries under sponsorship of the Canadian University Service Overseas.

They will cap their four undergradutate years with a two-year stint abroad, starting in September.

The students are: Daniel Curtis, 1706 Sheridan, to Latin America; Glenda Hawes, 2617 Capital Heights, to Latin America; Joan Climenhaga, 877 Newport, to the southern Cribbean; Rolf Turner, 951 Green, to India; Sandra Neve, 4031 White Rock, to the eastern Caribbean, Trinidad or Tobago; Christine Zaccarelli, 3358 Biscoe Drive, to East Africa or Zambia; Katharine Bergbusch, 1372 Craigdarroch, to Ghana.

They were considered a "pretty fair number" out of Uvic's student population of 3,000 to apply for the overseas service, by CUSO representative on campus, Dr. John Ogelsby.

Five Uvic students were seen abroad by CUSO last year.

"So far we've had 100 per cent acceptance of applicants," said Dr. Ogelsby.

The students, selected by CUSO, are hired by governments of the countries where they will teach.

Their exact destinations will be announced later.

Margaret, 10, was chosen by lot. Her mother says she was too overwhelmed to comment.

Navy Crews Attempt To Move Bomb

MADRID (Reuters)—An unidentified object believed to be a missing American hydrogen bomb will be moved from its perch 2,500 feet under the Mediterranean sea before U.S. navy crews try to raise it to the surface, it was announced today.

Rear - Admiral William S. Guest, commander of the force trying to recover the object, said he proposed to try moving it to a more favorable recovery area because of the steep slope of the sea bottom where it now is resting.

"If successful, this course of action will lessen the risk of having the object fall from its present precarious position into much deeper water," a statement from the U.S. embassy here said.

The object was located Thursday, half - shrouded by what looked like a parachute, about five miles off the fishing village of Palomares on the southeast Spanish coast.

Its discovery appeared to have ended a two - month search for a nuclear bomb that fell into the Mediterranean from a U.S. B-52 jet bomber after the plane crashed during a refueling operation in mid-air on Jan. 17, three other bombs carried by the bomber were later discovered on land.

Contractor Hits Mystery Pickets

The contractor at the Red Lion Motor Inn said today he will wait until Monday before taking legal action against unidentified pickets.

"It depends whether they are there or not," said Siegfried Marquardt.

"They have no right to be there. There is no dispute on the job. The law says the majority don't have to join a union if they don't want to but unions feel everyone must be in."

The pickets, who showed up on three days this week, are protesting non-union tradesmen on the job.

Mr. Marquardt said his company has 10 men in a union and 15 outside. Of the sub-trades at the Red Lion site, about 25 are union members and four or five are not.

He considered the unidentified pickets are the work of a union seeking certification at Marquardt Construction.

Since the pickets first showed up last Tuesday, union plumbers and electricians have not gone to work, he said. But work continued at 85 per cent of normal.

Three separate moves have been taken against the pickets.

The first was to seek an injunction, but this was not granted in B.C. Supreme Court this week on the basis of the material filed by lawyer David Hummel.

Later, two informations were taken out alleging infractions of the provincial Trade Union Act and the federal Criminal Code.

Neither has been pressed and Saanich police are considering it a private matter since no public inconvenience is being caused.

The lawyer for the pickets, Louis Lindholm, said he is surprised at both informations.

"I am extremely doubtful that either would result in conviction," he said.

He has declined to identify his clients and said they are awaiting the next move from Marquardt Construction.
